DON'T PUT ELDERLY 'OUT-TO-PASTURE'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Opposition to putting the elderly out to pasture in out-of-the-way places is voiced by the Hellyer housing task force.

The seven-man team stressed that special care be taken in selection of sites for elderly citizens' housing projects.

It said this was vital "to ensure that these people are able to retain physical and social contact with the rest of their community."

The elderly must be made to feel they are still a very real part of the community.

11% Sales Tax Removal Urged

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The first major task force report of the Trudeau government calls for an attack on Canada's housing problems across a broad front.

Recommendations range from larger National Housing Act mortgages with lower down payments and more time to pay, to elimination of the 11 per cent sales tax on residential building materials, and a shift in the major burden of education costs from the property owner to the general provincial taxpayer.

In all 47 reforms are recommended that would shake up present financial, technical and legal systems.

"Every Canadian should be entitled to clean, warm shelter as a matter of basic human right," the housing inquiry headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer declares in a report tabled in the Commons.

The report also takes aim at land speculation with a recommendation that all profits from sale of land be treated as taxable income. It suggests as well a special tax be imposed when land is bought and sold without improvement.

Building of an entirely new city is proposed as a pilot project for new policies and methods.

NHA Rate Should Be Set Free

The NHA interest rate, says the report, should be set free to find its own level in the market. The task force rejects subsidizing mortgage interest rates for low-income buyers as a costly measure that would inevitably add to the tax burden on the income group it was meant to help.

The task force proposed establishment of a new federal department of housing and urban affairs and of a central mortgage bank to provide additional liquidity for existing lending operations.

Establishment of the task force was announced July 17 and the first public hearing was held in Ottawa Sept. 15. The task force covered 80,000 miles investigating the country's present housing situation and gathering opinion from experts and the public.

Calling for a substantial increase in the present ceiling, $18,000, on NHA mortgages, the report suggests "that the $30,000 range would appear appropriate in present circumstances."

Forty years is mentioned as a possibility to replace the present 25-year payment period. The report's firm recommendation is simply that the term "be lengthened to the extent that might be of assistance to prospective borrowers."

Also proposed is a progressive reduction in down payment requirements "to the point where middle and lower-income groups can obtain modest housing under a lease-purchase system without initial equity participation."

The task force paints a vivid picture of city slums where poverty "is abundantly visible in the decrepit structures which form its housing, the cracked pavement of the streets which are its recreation area, and the rodents which are its wild life."

Income Subsidies for Poor

It proposes a new approach to the housing problems of the poor, including income subsidies to enable poor families to find their own housing in the market, a more selective approach to urban renewal, including renovation of sound existing housing rather than the creation of vast subsidized-housing projects bearing a social stigma, and vigorous enforcement by municipalities of bylaws protecting minimum housing standards.

No large new public housing projects should be undertaken, the report recommends, until the federal government has initiated "a thorough research program into the economic, social and psychological issues of public housing."

Pilot housing projects for Indian, Eskimo and Metis peoples should be given a fair trial and vigorously pursued if successful the report says.

The needs of the old also receive special mention. Special care is called for to ensure that housing projects for the old should be located where their occupants will be able to keep in touch with their community.

Municipalities Should Act

The report calls on municipalities to move boldly into buying and developing of land for housing.

They should "acquire, service and sell all or a substantial portion of the land required for urban growth within their boundaries," it says.

A related proposal calls on the federal government to make direct loans to municipalities or regional governments to help assemble and service land.

To relieve the individual property owner of the heavy burden of school taxes the report says at least 75 to 80 per cent of education costs should be paid by the provincial treasuries from general tax revenues.

Universal adoption of a national building code and streamlining of housing regulations are recommended as a means of cutting down red tape that hampers building programs and makes them more costly.

Speculators Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal housing inquiry struck hard at land speculators in its report today It recommended that all profits from land sale be treated as taxable income and that a substantial part of land required for development be assembled by municipal governments.

The report spoke of massive profits by speculators and said the present system is heavily over-weighted in their favor.

Besides urging that all land-sale profits be treated as taxable income, it urged that consideration be given to a special tax where ownership is transferred without improvements.

And within recognized limits of market demand, it said, municipalities should ensure that property assessment procedures encourage rather than discourage use of land to its maximum planning potential.

Citing Saskatoon as a good example, it sketched a system under which municipalities or regional government would cut out speculators by buying up land, servicing it as needed and re-selling it to builders.

SUGGESTS DIRECT LOANS

The federal government should make direct loans to municipalities to assist this assembly procedure, it said.

The report, prepared by a committee headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, said the right to own and dispose of property and take a reasonable gain from labors is an integral part of the Canadian tradition.

"But the task force seriously questions whether such rights can be stretched to encompass situations where the owners of the land reap gigantic financial benefit not from improving or working it, but merely by allowing it to lie fallow or in admitted under-use while the efforts of the community around it make such land an ever increasingly valuable asset."

Protestant Extremists Jailed

BELFAST (AP) — Police seized two leading Protestant extremists and took them to jail today while Prime Minister Terence O'Neill prepared to face a vote of confidence.

Police arrested Rev. Ian Paisley in a hospital lobby and took him to begin a three-month sentence on charges of unlawful assembly. Paisley protested that the police broke an agreement to give him time to consider an appeal.

A number of Paisley's Free Presbyterian churchmen followed their leader to the prison gate. He rolled down a window of the police car and called out: "Just say that the police broke their word, that is all."

Paisley went to hospital for treatment of a hand cut Tuesday when he scuffled with police who tried to arrest him at his home.

Paisley's chief aide, Maj. Ronald Bunting, was arrested at dawn and taken to jail in his pyjamas after police broke down his front door. The police said Bunting wouldn't let them in.

Bunting had also received a three-month sentence Monday on charges resulting from a demonstration last November.

BOTH CAN APPEAL

Both men can get out on bail if they decide within 14 days to appeal their sentences.

The government meanwhile proposed tougher laws to quell religious and political disorders as the prime minister tried to rally support for the confidence vote.

Bunting later was brought to court at Bangor, County Down, and sentenced to a further month in jail on charges of assaulting police and obstructing police while resisting arrest.

Iraq Accuses Israel Of Massing Troops

(From AP-Reuters)

Iraq accused Israel of massing its troops to attack the 20,000-strong Iraqi force stationed in Jordan while in Iraq itself a new mass spy trial was reported under way.

Baghdad radio, in a broadcast monitored in the Lebanese capital of Beirut, said the new trial began Tuesday behind closed doors. It said the defendants were accused of working for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The broadcast did not mention the number of defendants, but London sources said earlier that 35 persons, 13 of them Jews, would be tried by Iraq's revolutionary court on charges of spying and sabotage.

In Baghdad, Information Minister Abdullah Salloum al-Samarri told a news conference that Israeli forces were preparing to attack Iraq's forces in Jordan in reprisal for the public hanging of 14 persons including nine Jews convicted of spying for Israel.

The Israelis were enraged by the executions, and their government denied the victims had been spying for Israel.

PROVOKE PROTESTS

The executions also provoked varying degrees of condemnation in several capitals.

"This is a purely internal affair with no room for intervention by any other country," Samarri said in the trials.

Iraq already has announced its forces are in a state of military readiness for any Israeli reprisal.

Pope Paul said today the executions caused dismay and abhorrence in the world. The fact that nine of the victims were Jews aroused the suspicion that racial motives were involved which should not exist among civilized nations, he told pilgrims at his weekly general audience at the Vatican.

But the pontiff said he hoped Israel would not take revenge for the executions.

The Arab world outside Iraq itself has been silent.

In Canada, the government said it was seriously concerned at the execution of the 14 men.

RETARD SETTLEMENT

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in Ottawa that the executions were the kind of events which retarded and diminished the prospects of a lasting settlement in the Middle East.

Sharp said he had received messages from many Canadians over "these disturbing events—events which most surely outrage public opinion everywhere."

The U.S. state department announced it has urged Israel not to retaliate. Diplomats in Washington believe a reprisal raid coming so soon after Israel's Dec. 28 commando attack on Beirut International Airport might start another full-scale war.

State department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference in Washington: "The position every American administration has taken regarding the cycle of provocations and reprisals has been a consistent one. It should be avoided."

Iraq hanged the 14 alleged spies Monday despite clemency appeals from Pope Paul, UN Secretary - General U Thant, Britain and the United States.

HOWL FOR MORE

Travellers arriving in Beirut from Iraq said mobs in Baghdad howled for more executions as the hanged men dangled from gallows in the city's central square.

Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol blamed the world for

NDPer ASKS PROBE ON INSURANCE PROFITS

Wootton Report 'Too Hot to Pigeonhole'

By JOHN SLINGER

William Hartley (NDP — Yale Lillooet) said Tuesday the Wootton report on car insurance charges that insurance companies have been fixing prices on a no-competition basis in B.C. for nearly 100 years.

"What greater condemnation could you have of an industry than that?" he asked MLAs, to preface his list of reasons why the province should adopt "publicly - owned, publicly - operated car insurance."

An insurance agent in Meritt, Mr. Hartley charged the government used a form of public insurance for its own 5,723 vehicles and quoted the highways department 1967-1968 report as saying cost for full liability insurance on these vehicles was only just more than $25 a year.

"Yet this government refused to take action to give the same cheap coverage to private citizens.

"When the Socreds go down they'll be known as the slickest con artists in the history of this province!"

His cry brought Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan to his feet demanding the statement be withdrawn because of a standing rule in the house against "that sort of language."

The Speaker ordered it withdrawn and Mr. Kiernan, almost choked with anger, said "I refuse to take that from this member or any other person in the country."

Earlier, Mr. Hartley charged that the way the government benches had sat silent on the Wootton recommendations "indicates that you have been well paid."

WITHDREW CHARGE

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, on a point of order, said the session had just begun, car insurance was mentioned in the throne speech and demanded the "flagrant accusation" withdrawn.

After being asked twice by the Speaker, Mr. Hartley withdrew it.

Mr. Bennett indicated in the throne speech that, with the house's permission, he will send the Wootton report to committee this session.

Mr. Hartley told the house that if the government was willing to set a full-scale royal

TREES EXPLODE LIKE 'CRACKERS'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Near zero in the Vancouver area and as cold as 60 below in the central interior, with nothing in sight but more of the same.

That was the weather picture in mainland British Columbia today, as an unprecedented cold snap stretched into its second month.

The temperature climbed to only 18 above in Vancouver Tuesday, and was expected to be about the same today, along with snow.

On the Chilcotin plateau 300 miles north of Vancouver, it was 59 below Tuesday night and trees exploded like firecrackers as they split from the cold.

The Matsqui and Sumas districts of the Fraser Valley, about 40 miles east of Vancouver, were belted again Tuesday by strong winds and drifting snow. Dairymen, unable to get fresh milk to the market because of blocked roads, again began dumping as storage tanks filled.

commission to find answers to questions concerning the car insurance industry, "there must be something seriously wrong."

The government spent $.3 million and the insurance companies $.5 million "to make sure the report would be the kind of report the companies and the government would want—not the kind the people want."

'TOO HOT'

But, "this is the kind of report that is going to be too hot for the government to pigeonhole."

His chief criticism was that insurance companies still require blame to be fixed before making payments on accident claims.

"This is what's wrong with your insurance system, Mr. Attorney-General and you're the only person that can do anything about it."

Outside the house, Mr. Hartley said the government would lose an election if publicly-owned versus privately-owned insurance became an issue.

He told MLAs that the government's refusal to bring in no-blame claim payment requirements had prompted one insurance company to offer him 33 per cent on insurance sales commissions—an increase from 15 to 20 per cent.

INVESTIGATE PROFITS

And he criticized the Wootton commission for failing to investigate profits made through the insurance companies' reserve investments.

His reasons why a public plan would be better:

- More efficient. Now are 175 companies in province doing "business at fixed prices" with 175 general managers, 175 head offices—175 duplicate operations;
- Cheaper. Legal costs represent 30 per cent of damage claims. With no-blame clause, there would be no legal costs;
- All inclusive. It would cover pedestrians and passengers as well as drivers;
- Good for B.C. Government could ensure reserves are invested directly in province. Companies now can invest money, in approved securities, anywhere.

SMELTER NEED

Speaking of the need for a copper smelter in the province, Mr. Hartley said if Japan could profit from a secondary industry based on one of B.C.'s natural resources, why couldn't B.C. do the same.

The province made $78 million exporting copper last year. If a smelter were built in the Yale-Lillooet riding, centre of the province's copper mining industry and a federal designated area, the $78 million and federal grants would go towards the construction.

He challenged Premier Bennett to set up a Crown corporation to build a smelter and finance it with a two-cents a pound royalty on smelted copper.

REMOVE SIGN

"If you don't take this challenge you will be remiss in your responsibility as leader of the government and as a citizen."

At one point, the Speaker asked James Chabot (SC—Columbia River) to remove a sign from his desk that proclaimed "Hartley for Leader."

It was a reference to the NDP's internal struggle to find a successor to party leader Robert Strachan who has announced plans to resign his post in April.

More Control Indians Tell Chretien

TERRACE (CP) — Delegates from Indian bands in north and central British Columbia Tuesday told Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, that they want more control of their own affairs at the band level.

However, Percy Williams of the Skidegate band said the federal government would have to give band councils more money as their responsibilities increased.

In discussions Monday night on proposed changes in the Indian Act, delegates urged that band councils have complete control over their funds.

At present they can manage revenue but not capital funds.

The meeting also agreed that bands should be allowed to form business corporations on the reserve and urged that each band be allowed to choose the form and degree of local government for its community.

Delegates demanded that bands in the area have three representatives at a "summit conference" in early March in Ottawa to review and correlate suggestions for changes in the Indian Act.

James Gosnell of New Aiyansh was elected representative for interior Indians, Larry Guno of Prince Rupert for urban Indians and Heber Maitland of Kitimat for coastal Indians.

Morton Resigns Director Post

DUNCAN — Mayor Donald Morton stepped down as a director of Cowichan Agricultural Society at the 101st annual meeting.

Leonard Swan was elected to fill the unexpired two years for Mayor Morton who said he is resigning because of a heavy work load.

Five new directors elected for three-year periods were: George Braithwaite, Gordon Grier, Norman Quist, Erich Roemer and John Van Eyk.

NAMED KIWANIAN of the year, by the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, is Dr. Hugh Borsman, a Victoria gynaecologist. Dr. Borsman was presented a plaque and commended for his "quiet and efficient" work. He canvassed businesses for the Kiwanis TV auction, and recruited 65 canvassers for the December Kiwanis Children's Village Blitz. He co-chaired the Kiwanis fishing derby and arranged speakers for the club's weekly meetings. Dr. Borsman has been in the Victoria club almost 10 years.

California Socked Again By Storms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rain, hail and snow lashed out again Tuesday at California, particularly the southern half of the state—already reeling from its most devastating weather disaster in 31 years.

Lightning hit four jetliners in the air, but no one was injured.

Two more bodies were found in the Los Angeles area, raising to 93 the number of storm-related deaths since Jan. 18. One person was found dead under a collapsed retaining wall. The other body was in a house crushed by flood waters.

Unofficially, statewide property damage from nine days of torrential rains was estimated as high as $138,000,000.

"turning a blind eye to the fate of Jews in Arab countries." He quoted the Bible: "Oh daughters of Babylon, that art to be destroyed, happy shall be he that repayeth three as thou has served us."

The British government condemned the executions and drew a protest from the Iraqi government, which charged that the Israeli propaganda machinery was "out in full force to slander Iraq and feature the hangings as a program against Iraqi Jews."

In London, shots were fired and a Jewish demonstrator was stabbed in a rooftop struggle at the Iraqi Embassy during an all-night vigil at the embassy by thousands of British Jews.

Two men in leather jackets scrambled onto the embassy roof and hung two blue and white Israeli flags from a parapet 80 feet above a street.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress, cabled Secretary-General Thant that he is seeking Big Four backing for UN intervention to get 8,500 Jews out of Iraq, Syria and Egypt.

Thant held a strategy session in New York with his special Middle East peace envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden, after calling at a news conference for moral pressure by the Big Four to achieve a Middle East settlement.

Lenders Should Be Checked

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal housing inquiry recommends that private mortgage-lenders be canvassed twice a year to see that they are putting sufficient money into housing.

If they fail to meet government-established targets, the inquiry's report says, the government should consider authorizing new mortgage-lending institutions which would draw on funds deposited by the general public.

The report said that a minimum of 1,000,000 new houses and apartments will be needed in the next five years to keep pace with new housing demand, catch up with the backlog, and provide sufficient surplus to make the housing market truly competitive.

Drug Makers 'Exclusive Club'

OTTAWA (CP) — The major drug manufacturers were labelled Tuesday night as an exclusive club with high profits and big tax-benefit promotion expenses who can afford to cut prices or face competition from cheaper imports.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford pinned the label to the members of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association of Canada, telling the Commons health committee "we are breaking up this exclusive club" to give small Canadian firms a chance to compete.

And, if the big firms prove balky, Mr. Basford poised a threat of direct government intervention in prescription drug production and distribution.

To a suggestion by Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo) that a crown company be set up to bring cheaper drugs to consumers, Mr. Basford said repeatedly he isn't closing off the possibility of acting on any suggestions.

He said he has told presidents of big drug firms that in their shoes "I'd want to make this bill work."

The bill in question is a government-sponsored change to lessen the Patent and Trade Marks Act protection against importation of patented drugs.

PLANS OTHER STEPS

Mr. Basford said it is only one of several steps under way or planned to inject new competition in the drug industry and, in that way, bring about lower prices to the consumers.

A 12-per-cent sales tax on manufacturers' sales had already been removed. Scientific and price data on drugs would be made available by the government monthly to doctors, starting next October.

Loans would be available to smaller drug firms who wanted to expand their facilities. And, finally, discussions would be held with the provinces to find co-operative ways of ensuring that the consumer benefitted at the drug counter from the effects of greater competition among manufacturers.

The legislation implements part of the recommendations last year of a Commons committee which found industry profits about double those of most industries and drew attention to huge promotion budgets.

As the first day's hearings ended, Raymond Rock (L — Montreal Lachine), accused committee chairman Dr. Gaston Isabelle (L — Hull) of being "unfair and dictatorial" in not hearing arguments for extended examination of industry witnesses.

The steering committee is to decide this issue later.

Limit of Tolerance

IRAQ'S MASS EXECUTION OF 14 spies, including nine Jews, with a promise of as many as 65 more cases to come, cannot fail to inflame Middle East passions even more than heretofore and keep the whole area under increased tension for many weeks. While the spy cases clearly are a matter of internal security, as United Nations Secretary General U Thant admits, the public manner of the executions and their implications for the current political situation raise the whole matter to an international plane.

Under such circumstances, the Iraqi actions constitute an escalation of the Middle East war of nerves The border skirmishes, the Israeli-Egyptian shelling incidents, and commando raids — these have contributed to the critical situation. The Israeli raid on the Beirut airport, while itself a reprisal, raised the danger another notch. Now Iraq has seen fit to add still more to the problem, to the point where U Thant warns that a nuclear war could be the outcome of further escalation. Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol's declaration that "the Lord shall avenge their blood" is a chilling reminder of the ineradicable passions aroused.

The Arab reluctance to recognize the Israeli state by dealing officially with it at a peace conference, the Israeli insistence on such a face-to-face confrontation if any real agreement is to be reached, create even greater impediments to progress than the details of territorial relinquishment, guarantee of passage, and the other terms which have been suggested. But it seems clear that while the United Nations can help to outline acceptable terms and clear the way for negotiations, any lasting settlement must be between the Israelis and Arabs themselves.

An imposed peace would be second best and destined to cause repeated problems far into the future. But an imposed peace, not by the United Nations but by the Big Four powers, may become necessary as the only way in which to avoid involvement in a war which could spread to globally destructive proportions.

Both the Arabs and the Israelis should reflect that such a peace, patrolled and guaranteed by Russia, Britain, France and the United States, might be less acceptable to either side than one arrived at mutually. But the other nations cannot take the risk of the Middle East bursting into flames—even though they are willing to add to that risk by arming the angry participants—and further heating of the struggle may well call forth joint action.

Big Four agreement on such a problem would in itself spell a great step forward in global diplomacy. But it would be tricky going — and not guaranteed to meet all the wishes of the smaller nations whose destinies will be decided by the giants.

Preserving the Country

DR. PATRICK McGEER HAS DEfined in simple, straight-forward terms the Liberal Party's resources policy for British Columbia — development without destroying the land.

Implemented as he proposes, it would provide the direct answer to the problem of strip-mining and ensure for the people of this part of the world the preservation of a country in which aesthetics and healthful recreation areas will be retained for generations yet to come.

The Liberal leader represents modern thinking in this attitude to exploitation of our natural wealth. It is not enough that major development operations should take place; as they proceed adequate care should be taken to see that they do not leave behind a wasteland. Dr. McGeer draws a graphic contrast between his party's policy and that which has been practised in too many regions by the Social Credit administration. Where the present government appears to have pushed development to the ultimate in its quest for dollars, Dr. McGeer sees other values which cannot be ignored now and which will grow in importance in the years ahead.

In the short run, as far as extractive industries are concerned, this may involve increased costs, either to the developing agency or to the provincial treasury. In the final analysis those costs will be reclaimed through the maintenance of a province retaining unpolluted its attractions for a population increasingly aware of the amenities it possesses.

In an earlier era, British Columbians were made aware of the despoliation inflicted by the cut-and-get-out loggers. Their methods of extraction were modified by a government responding to public reaction. Dr. McGeer updates that earlier policy to apply to other industries. His outline of the course to be pursued should have wide appeal to the people to whom the province belongs.

The Bombs Explode in Brittany

THE BRETON NATIONALIST response to President Charles de Gaulle's ill-advised "Vive Québec libre" cry has given Canadians at least a passing interest in the unrest now afflicting Brittany. The nationalists there drew attention to their position by replying to the de Gaulle 1967 shout with placards urging the liberation of Brittany first, Quebec second.

Now the Bretons are preparing for a visit by de Gaulle next month. Extremists have heralded the event by setting off bombs as an indication of their dissatisfaction with the treatment accorded the region by the French central government, symbolized by the president. In efforts to promote independence from France, the Breton nationalists argue that they are not Frenchmen, but are distinct from the Republic as Scottish, Welsh and Irish nationalists claim they are from England — and, apart from that, Brittany is receiving the short end of the economic stick in relationships with France. This is an area which has traditionally depended on fishing and farming for a livelihood. The returns from those resources are failing to keep pace with modern French living.

The central government, seeking to relieve distress, is championing an industrial complex for the region, urging the fisherfolk and small farmers to relocate close to centres where work is, or will become, available. The farms, according to one concept, will be merged to form agricultural units large enough to justify extensive machine farming. The problem, not new to post-war France, involves uprooting a familiar way of life among people who are disinclined to change.

President de Gaulle should first solve this problem, make the Breton economy viable in a modern context and reconcile the nationalists to acceptance of the French identity, before indulging in dreams of an overseas empire.

". . . I've set the alarm for next July . . ."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

A Platitudinous Journey to the Sun

THE Prime Minister, in a statement last October on the departure of the ministerial mission to Latin America, explained that the work was part of a policy review. "I am confident," he said, "that this review will demonstrate that there is real scope for strengthening Canada's relations with Latin America to the mutual advantage of both."

Western

This may explain the fact that the mission's preliminary report, although conveying little that is new and nothing that is exciting, has been extended to 36 pages of single-spaced type.

Eager taxpayers, perusing this paper, will be impressed with the skill of the writers in marshalling platitudes and emphasizing the obvious. To cite one or two examples:

"In all countries visited the mission was offered a warm and most hospitable reception. The atmosphere in the talks was at times cordial, frank and, as a rule, quite informal. Members of the mission entered into a dialogue with its Latin American counterparts, which they would very much like to continue."

This means, presumably, that the ministers and their retinue are ready, eager and willing to go back next winter when the snow begins to pile up in Ottawa.

Blazing Revelation

Then there is a long, and mostly historical, paragraph about cultural affinities ending with this blazing revelation: "In short, Canadians have much in common with the people of the Latin American countries." Further investigation might show that we have much in common with members of the human species in practically any country. Would it not have been possible to establish such basic points in advance of the "voyage of discovery?"

The ministers, in the course of their travels, had political talks with members of the various governments. Admirable. What did they learn that they could not have learned from our competent diplomats in the Latin capitals? Here are some of their own examples:

"In Venezuela the significance of the general election which was shortly to take place was analyzed and the government's economic and social programs were explained."

Oh, come.

"In Peru the mission was given an account of the reasons for the recent coup and of the aims and outlook of the new government."

Whoever heard of a government, formed in such a fashion, that would not give reasons justifying the coup to anyone prepared to listen?

"In Argentina the determination of the government, before all else, to strengthen the basically sound Argentine economy was made clear." Mr. Peron used to express the same determination. But see any government hand-out.

History Book Stuff

"In Mexico the mission gained a greater understanding of the basic aims and particular accomplishments of Mexican governments since the revolution, and it noted the substantial economic gains already made in Mexico." They could probably have done the same thing in the parliamentary library.

The mission formed "three clear impressions" from this round of talks.

"First, there can be no doubt that Latin America is a very important part of the world and that in future it will be increasingly influential."

See any general report by any Canadian foreign minister at any time since the Second World War.

"Second, it was clear to the mission, as it travelled through the vast region it was visiting (it took nine hours to fly from Rio de Janeiro to Mexico City), that it is misleading to think of a single or homogeneous Latin America just as it is a mistake to think of say, Europe or Asia, in such terms."

Good. The school text books are right, after all.

"Thirdly, a commonplace of modern political life, and of international relations as they exist today, was also brought home to the mission. Ministers of development of finance or economic affairs were closely associated with both the domestic and international aspects of economic and financial questions. At the same time ministers of foreign affairs did not lose sight of their domestic situations when discussing foreign affairs, and they paid attention not only to political problems but also to the economic issues related to them."

It has never been much of a secret that Latin American governments are interested in aid. But at this point the writers turn a little coy. They conclude by saying: "There could hardly have been a clearer illustration of the extent to which domestic and international affairs are necessarily inter-related, and of the extent to which economic and political issues have become closely interconnected."

Meditation on Truisms

With our foreign policy reviewers meditating over truisms like that, it is not surprising that the review is taking so long.

It turns out that the Latin Americans, being polite (and possibly expectant) hosts, were more than willing to listen to Canadian views about practically everything. There were chats, for example, about Nigeria, Rhodesia and a Canadian perspective on conditions in Africa. The Latins were also interested in the Canadian government's review of its relations with Europe and NATO. They must have been very patient.

One cannot escape the impression that the distinguished Canadian tourists might well with the aid of a few standard histories, reference works, back numbers of Foreign Trade (published fortnightly by Mr. Pepin's department), checks with the embassies and the smallest of crystal balls, have written their report before leaving Ottawa. The time saved from the Mexican revolution and Peruvian coup might then have been used for matters of more obvious relevance, or for sight-seeing, or even for departmental administration at home.

Reticent on OAS

The question of most general interest is, no doubt: Does the government propose to carry Canada into OAS? On this point the official missionaries are distinctly reticent. They do remark (under another head): "It was clear that in some of the countries visited the armed forces play a significant role. The question of how this might affect certain aspects of Canadian policy toward countries of the area would appear to require careful consideration in the policy review." But it did not require Peru to establish this point which has been known to newspaper readers for years and years.

How close to an answer does the mission come? Here is the summation:

"In the political sphere there is the question of whether Canada should take an early decision to apply for membership in OAS. Alternatively, the Canadian government could proceed from the premise that, before seriously contemplating this major institutional review, it would be best for Canada to develop closer bilateral relations with all, or a selected group of, Latin American countries and to increase co-operation with those inter-American and regional organizations with which Canada is well placed to work effectively."

This is where we started; evidence, presumably, that we are at least holding our own. The ministerial mission is now to constitute a task force to make up its ministerial mind.

Letters to the Editor

Crazy?

Has everybody gone crazy? The day after we read in the Times that most animals, including polar bears, are in danger of extinction, we are told that a member of the Legislative Council in the North West Territories is sponsoring a private bill to legalise "sports hunting" of polar bears.

When people in responsible public office set such an example, there seems little hope of preserving wild life much longer. — (Mrs.) Kay Cowin, 916 Park Boulevard.

Front Wheel Control

During the past few weeks since we have been subjected to snow, ice and freezing temperatures, all mediums of communication have been discussing and advising motorists on the vital subject of traction.

In order to steer a car, the front wheels must keep turning without any sliding action. However, with improved traction on the rear wheels and greater braking ability on the front, the tendency is for the front wheels to stop turning as soon as the brakes are even slightly applied thus making the car unsteerable. The only way to regain steering control is to discontinue application of the brakes which may be equally disastrous. It is vitally important to be able to stop the car under full control, regardless of driving conditions, in the shortest possible distance. With the greatest braking force being applied to the front wheels, it is all the more important that they have as good if not better traction than the rear wheels.

I have nothing to sell, but I can highly recommend the use of good quality well studded snow tires or equivalent on all four wheels. — P. B. Hall, Cobble Hill.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, Jan. 29, 1908.

The poultry show opened in the Market Building today. It will continue until Friday night. Victoria has the reputation of having poultry and pet stock second to none on the continent. Those who attend the show during the week will be convinced of that fact. In addition to the entries from the city there is a large number from Nanaimo, Vancouver and United States points. A number of pigeons are also being sent from Seattle.

Focussing On the DMZ

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

NO ONE seems to have noticed it, but it is still a significant fact that the negotiating posture taken by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. in Paris on Saturday represented continuity with a capital C. Three months ago, when the Paris talks moved into their second phase, the Johnson administration policy-makers naturally began work on the posture to be adopted when procedural wrangles ended and discussion of "substance" began. In the upshot, it was generally agreed that the best opener would be a demand for genuine demilitarization of the miscalled Demilitarzied Zone, as promised by Hanoi before the final bombing halt.

Alsop

This was—and still is—the most sensible opener, for many obvious reasons. It made military sense, because of the elaborate fortification and supply build-up in the DMZ, carried out by Hanoi despite the prior promise and with the aid of the bombing halt. It made political sense, as a modest but decisive first test of the seriousness of Hanoi's peaceful intentions.

Sensible Opener

These, obviously, were the main reasons that genuine demilitarization of the DMZ was the key point in Ambassador Lodge's opening statement. Another reason, perhaps, was the fact that President Nixon's new policy-makers had expected the procedural wrangles to continue for another two months or so.

Hence they were caught by surprise, as were their predecessors, when Hanoi's negotiators so abruptly departed from the normally rigid Communist rule of prolonged preliminary debate about such matters as the agenda. The new administration's negotiating posture therefore had to be pretty hastily decided upon.

The work already done by the Johnson policy-makers may thus have had some extra impact on the Nixon policy-makers. At any rate, it is a fact that the opening statement they chose for the first Paris meeting "on substance", was nearly identical to the opening statement that would have been recommended to President Johnson by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Walt W. Rostow.

Continuity

Continuity could hardly be carried further. The real question, in truth, is not whether there is continuity now. The real question is how long, so to say, this continuity will continue.

The answer to this really vital question depends in turn on whether the Nixon administration has the fortitude to meet, and parry, and one must add, endure, the further thrusts Hanoi may make. Desperate thrusts must be expected since Hanoi's negotiators are talking against the exceedingly unhelpful backdrop of a fundamentally deteriorating military situation in South Vietnam.

To illustrate, the injection of North Vietnamese troops as pseudo-guerrillas, at the village and hamlet level, has just been reported in a remarkable story from the III Corps area by David Hoffman of the "Washington Post." If confirmed, this development will certainly prove to have far-reaching significance.

Communist Erosion

It clearly signifies, to begin with, that the war has now eroded the Communists' local support in South Vietnam down to and indeed below the danger level. Sending in northerners as pseudo-guerrillas is exactly comparable to giving a hasty blood transfusion to a sinking patient, and it is like giving a blood transfusion, moreover, with all the added risk of a real difference of blood-type.

Yet this kind of hasty blood transfusion could make local trouble for a while in some provinces of South Vietnam, by temporary reinforcement of the Viet Cong. Above all, as was remarked when Hanoi's adoption of this novel expedient was first suggested in this space, widespread use of northerners as pseudo-guerrillas could somewhat retard the deterioration of the enemy's military situation.

The delay, beyond doubt, is the real object of the exercise, if the exercise has indeed begun. In the end, to return to the comparison above-given, the foreign-ness of the blood-types must cause the blood transfusion to fail. But that could take some time.

Tests of Fortitude

If such a delay is achieved by Hanoi, it would certainly test the new administration's fortitude. Another test will obviously come if the enemy high command gets off the ground with the renewed offensive that is indicated by the much-increased infiltration from North Vietnam. Still another test may well be in preparation in Laos.

In short, the road ahead can include some rocks that will cause rough going for a while. But that does not alter the fundamental weakening of the enemy situation, which means the road cannot be endless.

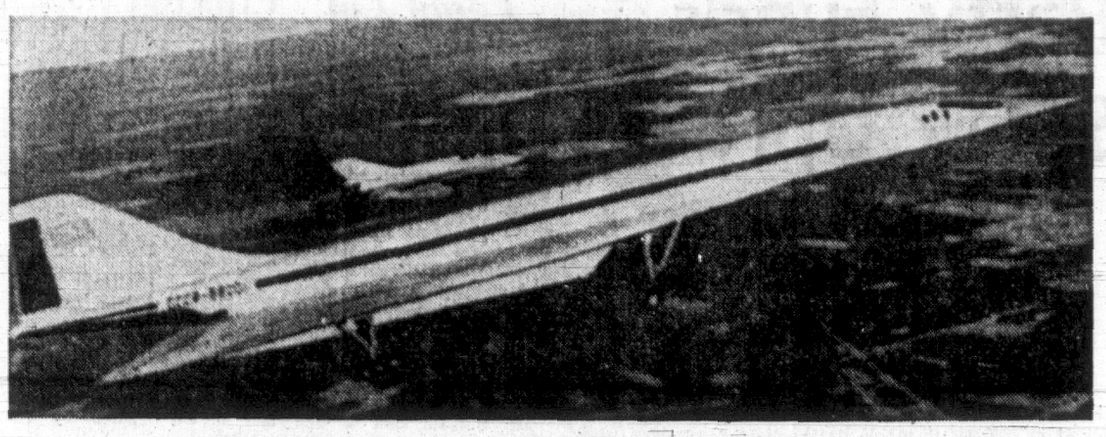
The Supersonic Hazards



The Tupolev may set standards for other airlines.

The townfolk of Omsk or Tomsk are not likely, on the face of it, to stage sit-in protests in the local Aeroflot offices about the sonic boom.

Nor, when the Tupolev 144 flies the first supersonic passenger service next year, between Moscow and Osaka, are the operators likely to route it so that it trails its carpet of thunder over China.

In short, the introduction of the supersonic airliner on trans-Asian routes will be non-controversial.

And that is a pity, because the Russian operations will establish precedents for supersonic overflight on land, in an atmosphere of international competition for aeronautical prestige, which may weaken the pressures in Western countries to keep the sonic boom under control.

If Concorde, the Anglo-French machine, had come first, and the boom proved as bad as some fear, supersonic flights over inhabited land would probably be banned by public outcry.

By NIGEL CALDER, New Statesman

The Tu 144's resemblance to Concorde is due to similar reasoning by the designers rather than to commerical espionage or collusion.

Indeed, British and French pre-Concorde work independently produced a similar paper-dart configuration, as does the revised design for the faster American supersonic airliner, following Boeing's abandonment of its swing-wing concept.

Running almost neck-and-neck at the stage of the first flight (assuming it leaves the ground within the next few weeks), the Concorde will nevertheless spend much longer under test than will the Russian machine.

It may be that the Russians are unduly optimistic about a maiden passenger flight early next year, but they have the dubious advantage of not aiming for an international certificate of airworthiness.

What will the attitude of the Russian operators be to the radiation hazards that confront passenger and crew at the great cruising heights envisaged?

The sun is the danger, especially in the present phase of the sunspot cycle, when intense magnetic upheavals from time to time eject bursts of radiation from proton flares; these are potentially unhealthy for anyone venturing above the protective layers of the earth's atmosphere.

●

The Concorde carries radiation detectors, with the idea that it should duck down to lower levels if the solar proton count looks threatening. A medically sound policy, no doubt, but personally I might prefer mild irradiation to the fright of a sudden descent.

Meanwhile, the astronomers are putting in a lot of effort into improving weather forecasts for the sun, and these will doubtless be included in the met. briefings of the supersonic pilot.

Optical and radio observations around the world and automatic orbiting spacecraft keep a constant watch on the sun, and the flare is spotted some hours before the radiation in question arrives.

●

The problem is to know, before it reaches the environment of the earth, whether it is particularly intense or not. J. F. Loutit, a distinguished British radiation biologist, is quoted in Nature as saying that the likely warning period may be as little as 10 minutes.

Whether the Russians are cautious or casual about solar weather and of course they are interested in the problem because of their astronauts — they certainly cannot ignore the more mechanical and potentially catastrophic risks of terrestrial weather.

Even unusually warm air can have a bad effect on the efficency of the engines. At supersonic speeds, ordinary hailstones become deadly dangerous.

For this reason, and also because of the strong updraughts and downdraughts that attend them, the pilot will have to steer clear of towering thunderclouds, with the aid of early-warning weather radar.

Harder to anticipate, though again the subject of much research, is the man-killing "CAT" that haunts blue skies — clear-air turbulence. But in any case all this dodging about and changing speed to avoid protons and clouds and CAT promises to alarm people in their homes as well as the passengers.

The manoeuvres create superbooms, where the boom reinforces itself at certain ill-placed points on the ground, and becomes a blast wave.

So life will not be dull for the Soviet Pioneers of civil supersonic flying. The British and French manufacturers and operators may well eventually sigh with relief that they are not the first to assess the snags.

To exaggerate the risks to life would be foolish — most of the time the natural threats mentioned will not even arise, and there is no reason to question the competence of the designers and builders.

Things would have to be very bad indeed before supersonic flying became as dangerous as motoring.

●

But in an industry as safety conscious as civil aviation officials are paid to worry, and one of the things that may worry them is that the last comparable stride forward in flying was that taken by the ill-fated Comet I.

BELIEF IN GOD HIGH IN CANADA

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

In a study of thirteen nations, Canada stands among the top three as holding a belief in God. Today's level of 92% compares closely to that of twenty years ago, when it was at a 95% level. Only the U.S. and Greece have a greater proportion of its people with a faith in God.

On the other hand, only 37% of Canadian adults believe in the Devil, but we still rank among the top four in this ratio.

In Canada younger people (87%) and men (88%) are less likely to hold a belief in God, as compared to older people, fifty and over (95%) and women (96%). Church affiliations make a considerable difference, as among Roman Catholics the level is 97%; among Protestants, 90%, while among other faiths, it drops to 84%.

Below is a comparison between 13 nations covered in a Gallup International study:

TV Documentary: Is It True?

By CHRISTOPHER RALLING
The Listener

(Mr. Ralling is a BBC television producer.)

Everyone who works in factual television has been aware of a problem smouldering away for a good many years now.

Producers discuss it, senior executives put it on their agenda, critics touch on aspects of it, and occasionally something happens which causes it to flare up in the face of the viewing public.

In its broadest form the problem is what sort of truth documentaries ought to be concerned with.

There should, of course, be only one sort of truth — the true sort. But unfortunately it is not as simple as that.

Many of the things worth discussing in human life are never going to happen on their own accord in front of a camera.

Old rules dropped

This has led people working in films and television to move further and further away from the old ground rules of objective documentary. At the same time television drama has been borrowing documentary techniques.

The result is a no man's land between the two, which is an exciting and dangerous place to be; and from the audience's point of view a very confusing one.

I doubt if any easy solutions are waiting just around the corner. But clearly the time has come to map out the ground, and mark in a few of the mine-fields.

The crumbling fortifications of the objective documentary are still there, but it is very debatable whether they can any longer be defended.

Several knowledgeable people claim that they cannot, that however balanced and fair a program may be, it always originates from a subjective viewpoint.

"Subjective" and "objective" have always been emotive words, with a different meaning in Moscow from the one they have in London.

It is clear that a documentary can be committed or uncommitted. It may or may not, have an axe to grind.

The evidence can be cooked and a subjective or committed film passed off as an uncommitted one.

And that will continue to be a problem, and a source of misunderstanding.

Mind must select

But once it is grasped that there must be a mind (whether it belongs to an individual or a committee) behind every bit of work, then the air begins to clear a little.

That mind must select even if it does not angle; it must shape the material even where there is no desire to shape the reaction of an audience; it may be fair or unfair.

Where balance is required, someone has to choose the point of balance.

Another problem exists for a large organization like the BBC. Ideally it should open its doors to as wide a range of people as possible; and in terms of those who appear in front of the camera, it does.

But where a newspaper editor can ask almost any literate person to write an article, his opposite number in TV, if professional standards are to count for anything, cannot ask anyone to make a film.

This means that quite a small number of directors are likely to be putting their individual stamp on what the nations see.

Not cross-section

They may be very different from each other, but they are hardly a cross-section of the nation.

There is no complete answer to this point; and it lies at the heart of most of the more strident criticism levelled at the larger broadcasting organizations, and particularly at the BBC.

The only thing to be said is that the standards that operate are journalistic ones: vigilance, accuracy, fair-mindedness.

The pressures are largely journalistic too: shortage of time, shortage of space and the desire for a scoop.

What separates a film-maker from a journalist is all that cumbersome equipment. In making a documentary film it is virtually impossible not to fabricate.

If anything, however small, is staged for the camera it is no longer real life. ("Would you mind turning slightly this way, sir, we can't quite see your face?")

Nevertheless in that moment a scene was rigged for the camera. Not even the most stringent piece of cineverite has ever been completely free of that kind of thing. It is part of the normal day-to-day business of directing.

Most of it is quite innocuous and certainly doesn't matter. But it is a most important point to grasp.

From it flows the fact that all documenatry directors are permanently on a slippery slope.

In almost every filmed interview on television the interviewer's questions are repeated later, quite probably after the interview has departed from the scene.

The reason is innocuous enough—only one camera. But even this simple technique is open to abuse.

An interviewer can make himself out to abuse.

An interviewer can make himself out to be a much bigger hero than he really was, positively grilling this president or that general by a little rewording or a change in intonation: "Do you really mean to tell me, sir, that you were unaware ..."

Nevertheless there is a widely held and growing view that you can do anything, or almost anything in a documentary so long as your motives are sound.

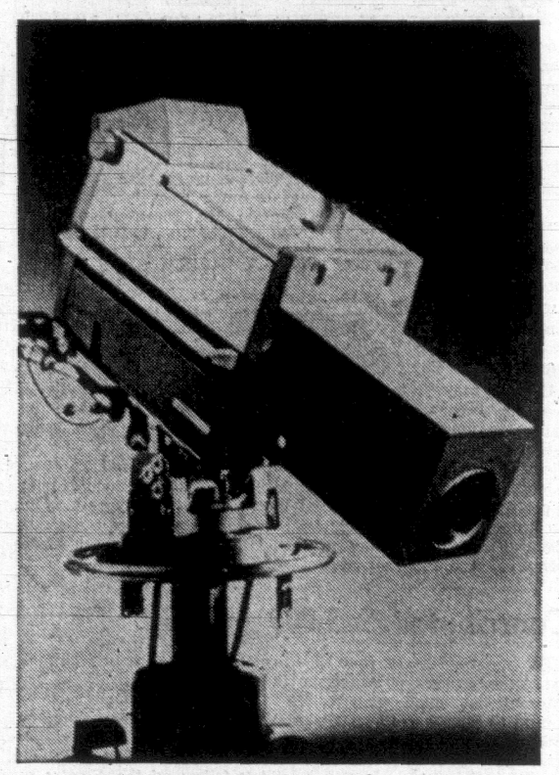
Serves a purpose

It is maintained in some quarters that the time has come to abandon the word "documentary" altogether, since its meaning is now so vague.

The world "documentary" has never been a great crowd-puller, but I believe it still serves a purpose.

It is a declaration of intention to stick to the facts; and that puts the emphasis in the right place, which is a proper relationship with the audience.

Mature audiences can take almost anything so long as they know what they are watching.



'Rigging' for camera always present.

Who's Been Digging The Generation Gap?

By ART STOTT

A few years ago, when the Greater Victoria Welfare Council named a subcommittee to take a third run in 10 years at the juvenile delinquency problem in this area, some of us who had served on the earlier study groups called not only for new blood, but young blood on the subcommittee. We felt that it would be valuable to have at least one member who belonged to the age group to which we were addressing our inquiries. That way, we figured, we'd at least have an avenue of communication.

Stott

A young man from the University of Victoria joined us, brought a thoughtful approach to his participation in the work and quickly corrected our misconception of the community of language and thought processes among the groups in the generation to which he belonged.

"These people," he said, "live in a world entirely different from the one I know. They think differently, they have different values and they speak a language which may involve words I use but they do not always have the same meaning."

His explanation comes to mind when I think about the so-called generation gap to which is attributed the inability of youth and its elders to reach common ground on important issues.

★ ★ ★

There comes a time, of course, in virtually every person's life when the burgeoning self-confidence of youth attempts to strengthen itself by assertiveness over older people and reveals a general inclination to think that senility sets in about age 30. In most instances, this period last only a few years—usually until the young become old enough to have children of their own and start paying taxes.

Perhaps the breach between ages has been widened by sensationalism in recent years—or maybe some new element has been added.

It seems to me that one of the factors which deepen the schism today is the inability, or the disincination, among some of middle age to make time to bridge the gap between them and the youngsters. I've had my reservations about the once-popular campaign to make dad his son's pal. Normal kids like to play with those of their own age—should do, in fact. Still, in a more leisurely, less affluent time there were opportunities for the mingling of the older generation with the new.

In my own case, I recognize the debt I owe to a lot of people who ranged from four or five years my senior to those old enough to be my parents and who had the time and kindliness to make years at the old Victoria Amateur Swimming Club golden memories. Some of us, from the time we were about 10 to the time we were 13, used to spend seemingly endless days at the old Gorge clubhouse, packing lunch and supper to eat there.

We were joined, on days off, or in the early evening, by the Wellburns, the Hibbersons, the Silburns, the Balnaves, Dick Dunn, the Robertsons, Pete Johnson, the Barrets, the Clydes the McAllisters and others who, enjoying swimming and the company of the crowd there, were always ready to help us with a little coaching and encouragement. They made us feel at home while we shared our sandwiches and sipped our tea. They were interested. They found pleasure in giving us happiness. They shared our triumphs. They had sympathy for our small disasters. They cared.

We were the lucky youngsters, by my reckoning. Yet we were hard-times kids to a degree. We hadn't money to throw around. We weren't deluged with toys. A nickel was a nickle and a dollar was a fortune.

A few years later, of course, we reached that stage when the elders just didn't understand us, weren't nearly as well educated as we were, were falling behind the times and should have been put on the shelf.

Fortunately those elders had builded well during our formative years. The affection they had planted in us did not wither. The generation gap wasn't much more than a shallow depression.

The experts explain to us now that comparisons with our own childhood are irrelevant. This is a different world. They tell us to remember that we belonged in the era of the T-model Ford. Today's kids operate in the space age with corresponding concepts.

Sure. But kids still fall down, skin their knees and cry. They still bruise their hearts. They still appreciate an elder who has time for interest in their doings and sympathy for their hopes.

Just possibly, when we're attacking the youngsters for their thoughtlessness, withdrawal, dissatisfaction and rebellion, and when we're blaming it largely on the generation gap, maybe we should stop to determine who has been digging the generation gap deeper.

Party Funds Spark Uproar

Finger-Shaking Exercise Of Dares and Counter-Dares

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

The British Columbia Legislature spent a nostalgic five minutes Tuesday with all parties self-righteously locked in a furious mock battle over campaign funds.

Charges and counter charges were shouted across the floor, prompting partisan peals of derisive laughter and finger-shaking exercises much like an old-time election rally inside a hall on a cold winter's day.

Each party loudly dared the others to make a clean breast of their political donations — and each also tried to drown out the answering counter-dares that it come clean too.

The eruption gave a drowsy house a fun recess of participatory debate and pop-up calisthenics during a soporific afternoon of four speeches.

It was touched off by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson. With a gleam in his eyes, he suddenly shifted gears during a sonorous address on justice administration to even the score for an NDP accusation the previous day that the distillery and brewery interests had bought off Social Credit.

"If there ever was a well-oiled political machine it is the NDP today," he shouted, stirring the somnolent house into a happy hullaballoo.

'Don't Talk About Dollars'

"These fat cats say 'look at our nickels and dimes' but they don't talk about their dollars," the attorney-general said with a scornful sweep of his pointed finger at the NDP benches.

"They don't tell the people about the campaign funds they receive from organized labor in the U.S."

NDP leader Robert Strachan shouted back "tell us about the $50,000 you beat out of the hotelmen."

"Tell us about your campaign funds," Liberal leader McGeer shouted at all sides as the background heckling increased.

Let me make this clear, we are in favor of disclosing campaign funds but only on a national basis," Mr. Peterson tried to continue his speech.

Jeers burst out from both opposition parties. He roared back they knew a provincial disclosure wouldn't prove anything because "federal parties like the NDP and Liberals" would cover their B.C. expenditures under national headquarters costs.

"You . . . let organized labor in the U.S. provide the big money . . . we know who calls the shots in the NDP," Mr. Peterson taunted the opposition.

Premier Bennett jumped up beside Mr. Peterson excitedly denouncing the NDP "selling out to the Yankees . . . selling out the CCF principles to the Yankees. . . ."

"Are you anti-American?" demanded Dave Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam) with feigned consternation.

Mr. Peterson, dramatically waving a sheaf of photostats aloft, said he had the evidence against the NDP.

He read from what he later identified as U.S. department labor reports, ignoring Mr. Strachan's repeated protests that the figures had been made public by the NDP.

Contributed $43,000 in 1961

The reports showed that United Auto Workers of American international union contributed a total of $43,000 to the NDP in 1961 including $18,000 to help with the expenses of the NDP founding convention.

"See, see —they had to change the CCF name to the Democratic Party to please the American labor bosses," Premier Bennett cried as he bounced up from his seat again.

"They sold out the old CCF for Yankee dollars," he called up to the press gallery as the hub-bub continued behind him.

Mr. Peterson said the UAW contributed $23,900 to the NDP in 1962, $12,000 the following year, and $40,000 the next year.

"This is just one union," the attorney-general called over the continuing uproar "and there are thousands of them" chimed in Mr. Bennett.

"What happened in 1966?" asked Mr. Peterson with mock horror. "The NDP only got $1,000. I suppose that year you didn't follow all the dictates of the labor bosses from the States."

"No, no — they (UAW) knew the NDP wasn't going to win the election that year anyway," Premier Bennett roared with relish while Mr. Strachan kept up his barrage of "all these figures have been public for years — when are you going to make yours public?"

Mr. Strachan and Mr. Peterson then began a de-escalating duel over tabling of the photostats.

With both voices and vehemence gradually winding down to normal Mr. Strachan would demand they be tabled and Mr. Peterson would decline until the sequence tapered off in step with the subsiding cross-floor heckling.

Moments later several MLAs were yawning again and Mr. Peterson had shifted gears back to a survey of the need for compensation to private citizens who are mugged while trying to help catch a crook.

Sentence Reduced

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Court of Appeal Tuesday cut John Postnikoff's 10-year drug trafficking sentence to five years. Postnikoff appealed both conviction and sentence, saying a $15 sale of heroin to RCMP undercover men was never completed.

Legal Aid Campaign Resumed

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) resumed his campaign Tuesday to needle the government into giving citizens the right to sue the crown and to obtain government-paid legal aid for both civil and criminal cases.

As in past sessions, he reintroduced private bills to create the two programs with just as little hope of seeing them adopted by the Social Credit majority.

Mr. Gardom said he was waging his battle again because the government has not yet acted on either proposal.

"Judicare has top priority and should be a comprehensive province-wide matter of right with legal aid not relegated to the charity of individual lawyers but state-supported and state-run . . . providing an equal chance for justice for all and eliminating the oft-heard complaint that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor."

He said his bill to permit suits against the government is needed because "the concept that the crown can do no wrong and government is umbrella'd from the arm of the law should have perished with the theory of the divine right of kings."

Criticism Ridiculed By Peterson

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Tuesday lashed back at critics who wave the Macdonald Report on Higher Education in B.C.

He ridiculed Liberal leader Pat McGeer's claim that the report by the former University of B.C. president had mapped out a firm plan for the province's total post-secondary education requirements which had been ignored by the cabinet.

The report, made in 1963 when Mr. Peterson held the education portfolio, recommended four affiliated colleges be established in various centres of B.C. with the University of B.C. remaining the province's only university.

"The government did not accept all of the recommendations because if the Macdonald Report had been treated as a 'firm plan to meet total education requirements' as contended by (McGeer) and implemented in full, there would not be a University of Victoria here today or a university in Burnaby," said Mr. Peterson.

"And there wouldn't be any community colleges on the North Shore (North and West Vancouver) either."

Manitoba Unveils Medicare Program

WINNIPEG (CP) — The compulsory Manitoba medical insurance program which goes into effect April 1 will have a monthly family premium of $9.80 with the premium rate for an individual set at $4.90, the provincial government announced today.

Doctors operating under the plan will be allowed to bill patients on a schedule "approximating" 85 per cent of the Manitoba Medical Association's 1967 schedule of fees and there are no provisions for billing beyond this amount.

The announcement said information at the government's disposal "clearly indicates" that payments to doctors under the Manitoba plan would equal those in other Canadian provinces.

The plan's over-all cost for the first year is estimated at $55,000,000 — including optometric and chiropractic services to be covered by the established premiums—with Ottawa picking up approximately $26,000,000 of the tab under federal medicare legislation.

Billings for the medical plan and the present compulsory hospital insurance coverage will be combined so that, with the present hospital premiums of $7.20 per family and 3.60 per single person, the combined monthly bills for both hospital and medical insurance will be $17 per family and $8.50 per single person.

CONGO SEEKS TO BUY JETS

KINSHASA (AP) — The Congo is negotiating with Italy for 17 Macchi jet fighters, informed sources report. If the deal comes off this year as the Congolese hope, it would give The Congo one of the most formidable air forces in the newly-independent areas of black Africa.

There has been a general purchase agreement but price and terms are still under discussion, the sources said. Italy would train Congolese to fly the two-seater aircraft, basically trainers.

'Untangle Education Medium'

By JOHN SLINGER

The education message has become tangled in the medium, the youngest Social Credit MLA told the house Tuesday.

The way Robert Wenman, Delta's 29-year-old member, looks at it, the regimented instruction evolved from three Rs being droned in red-brick school houses is just not with it any more.

During the throne speech debate, he proposed a system of "theme schools" with courses tailored to individual students.

And if the new math confuses parents, Mr. Wenman's explanation of his new school should follow nicely:

"Theme schools help evolutionize program and facility media efficiency in order that the message may effectively be a part of an expanded media."

A teacher in his own right, he maintains teaching subjects such as education, music, art and drama within a rigid timetable is "largely a waste of student and teacher time."

He would reshape the school day—in fact he would start it at 8 in the morning—to have current academic, technical and vocational subjects taught during the first four hours.

In the afternoon, he would send the students out to visit community centres or arenas or he would have athletes, musicians, and professional types in to meet them.

The program could continue into the evening, "to blend adult recreation with secondary students."

Mr. Wenman said this would help bridge the generation gap and do away with program overlaps and duplication and would avoid the present clash between school and community administrations.

There now is costly overlap and duplication "consistently encouraged by local empiremanship."

The new program, which Mr. Wenman asked permission to try out in one school in the Delta system, would see maximum utilization of school and other community facilities and better return on the tax dollar.

The best macaroni.

CLEAN UP NORTH B.C. MLA TELLS SOCREDS

The NDP member for Atlin Tuesday scorned Premier Bennett's plans to add the Yukon and part of the Northwest Territories to British Columbia.

Frank Calder described his riding, the province's largest and one of three bordering the Yukon, as being in B.C.'s front yard.

"I think we should clean up our own front yard" before moving to take in more land, he told the legislature.

He estimated that before long "northern development of our province is going to be 30 years behind" development of the northern territories.

Mr. Calder charged the government with being lax in completing four major road or bridge links between industrial centres in his riding.

'NOTHING DONE'

"Ever since this government came to power, it has made major announcements of great developments in the north. . . ."

Many people said of Mr. Bennett, "of all the premiers of the province, this premier is the builder of the north."

But, during all the government's years in power, "still nothing has been done."

If it hadn't been for oil development in northern areas, the north would be "completely neglected" and wanting to join Alberta, Mr. Calder said.

'VERY UPSET'

One thing needed was a new highways department superintendent in the area. The present one is too old and behind the times, he said.

Mr. Calder said he is "very upset" by the government's mining program. Calling it "economic colonialism," he described it as filling the province full of holes and exporting what they take out of the holes.

"What should be considered is secondary industry."

Mr. Calder touched on a few suggestions the province might take to the next federal-provincial constitutional conference.

REGULAR ELECTIONS

In particular, elections should not be called at the government's "whim" but should be regularly held every four years.

The federal government "discriminates against the whole country" by not having absentee ballots for transients.

There was not enough time in a large northern riding for the transient population to get registered for federal elections.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson pointed out that voters could register at any time for provincial elections.

FLOWER BOAST WILTED

Winnipeger Implored To Quit Weather Hex

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A friend telephoned me yesterday and in a roundabout sort of way accused me of being responsible for our month-long run of winter weather.

Forbes

Did I recall, she asked, that I had written a column back in December, in which I boasted about the flowers then blooming in Victoria gardens?

Also, did I remember that in a following article I told of a 90-year-old Winnipeg women who scolded me (in a gentle way) about Victorians who were "a trifle smug" about their winter flowers, their mild winters and green yuletides.

If she was younger and could stand the sharp changes of climate, this woman said, she'd take the clear skies and bright sunshine that go with Winnipeg snows any day in preference to our winter rains and dull grey days.

Soon after that the temperature dropped and the snow came.

There's every possibility that this Loyal Winnipeger wished it on us, my friend suggested. If so, it might be a good idea if I got in touch with her right away and begged her to remove the hex.

★ ★ ★

Other phone calls (letters too) have come to me asking why I have not written something about "that Judy La Marsh," he "lack of political loyalty" and the fact that she has "set the cause of women back" anywhere from 25 to 100 years.

My answer is that I am not sure that Miss LaMarsh does lack political loyalty. And I do not subscribe to the theory that in writing her book, she has done a disservice to women.

I have read articles and reviews (written for the most part by men) dealing with the LaMarsh conduct. I have seen television interviews (conducted by men) and I've tuned in on radio confrontations where male voices controlled the program.

In the last two instances, Miss LaMarsh fielded questions with dignity. While I may not have agreed with all her answers, they were given as straight statements of fact and with few embellishments.

Now I'm reading the LaMarsh book. When the title is deleted, it is not as startling as I expected and certainly not nearly as filled with juicy tidbits about goings on in the House of Parliament as are the Newman books on the Diefenbaker and Pearson years.

★ ★ ★

Some say she has been too harsh in her criticism and too biting in her disdain. Also that the book was written with a vindictive pen.

These things are easily said when the author is a woman like Judy LaMarsh whose blunt, straight-from-the-shoulder responses became her trade mark during her time in politics.

During those years she worked long and hard and she accomplished much that was worthwhile.

She did heavy ground work on the Canada Pension Plan and on the medical care insurance bill. She put the gigantic Centennial Year program together and saw it through to a successful conclusion.

★ ★ ★

She tangled with the CBC hierarchy and instituted changes in its personnel. And she fought for youth allowances, smoking research, film development, amendments to the Citizenship Act, educational television, and increased university grants.

Through it all she was (and still is) a champion of women's rights. She never missed an opportunity to urge Canadian women to greater activity in their struggle for recognition. At the same time she was also urging that qualified women be given equal opportunity with men to hold policy-making positions.

These are facts that should be remembered. Facts that make it impossible for me to say in a spirit of denunciation—"that Judy LaMarsh."

Weather Slows Up Water Tunnel Work

The Sooke Lake-Goldstream water tunnel project has been slowed by weather conditions, water commissioner Ron Upward said Tuesday.

The Greater Victoria water District spokesman said gravel and cement have been freezing but work is progressing slowly.

In December it was reported there was still 13,400 feet to go and crews were progressing at 90 feet per day. The five-mile tunnel has been dug throughout its route and now is being cement lined.

Mr. Upward said winter weather has caused a layoff of 40 water district employees. Woods operations are completely closed. Loggers have not been working since before Christmas.

The extended winter has left five feet of snow on the watershed but Mr. Upward does not fear for flooding. He said despite its depth the snow represents only about one day's rain in water runoff.

If there is a sudden melt he expects damage to be confined to roads "and we may have a few washouts."

Worst effect of the prolonged snows is that the district must now crowd 12 months work into 10 months "and if we have a fire season, it's going to be touchy."

Pakistan Sets Crisis Debate

KARACHI (Reuters) — Troops guarded key trouble spots in East and West Pakistan today as the government moved toward consenting to opposition demands for a full parliamentary debate on a wave of violent demonstrations sweeping the country.

The government-dominated National Assembly so far has refused to permit a public debate on the crisis, but Khan Abdul Sabur, communications minister and government leader in the assembly, scheduled a four-hour debate on the issue for Friday.

At least 24 persons died in the disturbances and about 1,000 others were arrested.

School Trustees To Debate Merger

The case for and against amalgamation of school districts will be debated by Saanich Peninsula school trustees next month.

Board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott asked members to study the question Monday night so the subject could be aired at the next meeting.

She also asked trustees to consider the stand of the B.C. School Trustees Association which in a recent brief to Education Minister Donald Brothers said amalgamation should only be considered where it can be shown to result in both educational and economic gains.

In other business, trustee Jack Armstrong served notice he will move at the next meeting that students registering for senior matriculation pay a $25 deposit against the $200 tuition fee.

The deposit would be forfeited if the student withdraws after registration.

Purpose of the deposit, against the first instalment of fees, is to eliminate students who are attempting to enter university but feel they may be rejected. It would also enable more positive planning of courses, timetables and staff requirements at Claremont senior secondary school, the only school in the area offering Grade 13.

Taipei Envoy Visits Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Nationalist Chinese Ambassador Hsueh Yu-chi said Monday he had a frank talk with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp Friday as a result of recent statements by the minister on the question of Canada recognizing Red China. (See page 6.)

"I did not deliver any note," he said in commenting on a Taipei report that his foreign office was awaiting replies from Rome and Ottawa to its "protest" against moves to recognize the mainland regime.

The ambassador said he had requested the talk with Mr. Sharp. It lasted 40 minutes. "I found him frank, honest and friendly."

SHIPYARDS BUSY WITH 'BOOMLET'

Local shipyards are doing a brisk business but neither the workers, management nor union officials are too impressed.

"In this business it's either a feast or a famine," said McKay-Cormack manager Gordon Kyle. "Right now we're busy but we don't know what will happen when our current contracts are finished. After that there isn't anything in sight."

A Yarrows Ltd. spokesman said the situation is much the same with his company.

"We are very busy right now," he said. "We have quite a bit of barge work in hand and we're going to be at this level for six months. But unless we get more work before then, things will slow down considerably."

And this means layoffs for shipbuilders trapped in the west coast shipping cycle.

LEFT TOWN

But for the first time in local shipbuilding history their displeasure with this cycle is being felt.

Many highly skilled workers laid off when Victoria Machinery Depot closed, and others affected by the shipbuilding lull earlier this year, have left.

Some, mainly welders and machine fitters, have gone to work in construction fields, while some have joined busier shipyards in eastern Canada and the United States.

NEW JOBS

Others have abandoned their trades for more stable employment.

"They can't be blamed for this," says Mr. Kyle. "For them it's a vicious circle and now when we're busy there's not enough to supply us. It's too bad."

Neil Hindle, business agent of Local 191, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said none of the more than 300 members in his union is unemployed, but added he would not describe the shipbuilding surge as a boom.

"I think it's more of a boomlet and should be interpreted that way," he said. "I don't think it's going to last."

Before Magistrate

A woman who gave a bogus $10 cheque and eight cents cash for a fuel oil delivery in November pleaded guilty Tuesday to false pretences.

Gertrude Raincock, 827 Station Road, will be sentenced Feb. 6 after a pre-sentence report is prepared.

Mrs. Raincock said she had since given the company a money order for the oil, which court heard had yet to be negotiated.

The woman said she had problems at home and needed heat for her family of three children. They had run out of oil.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the woman had previous convictions for the same offence in 1961 and 1966.

Hugh Blair Wilson, 18, of 720 Bixhill was committed for higher court trial on a charge of trafficking in marijuana.

Wilson, represented by Dermod Owen-Flood, earlier elected trial by judge and jury.

Kathrin Eberlin, 711 Front, was remanded to Feb. 6 for sentence after pleading guilty to stealing $102 worth of clothing and other articles from the Bay Jan. 16.

Included in the items were a $35 sweater and a totem worth $33.

She could give no explanation to the magistrate and said it was her first offence.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

A man who was involved in an accident on Douglas Street Saturday was fined $375 on three charges.

Paul Smith, of Vancouver, pleaded guilty to hit-and-run, careless driving and having no driver's licence. He was also prohibited from driving in Canada for 18 months.

He told the magistrate he "got scared and ran."

Two-Semester School Year Alberta Plan

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Half of Alberta's high schools are experimenting with or planning the division of the school year into two equal semesters, an official of the Alberta School Trustees Association said Monday.

Students could begin the year Aug. 1 or Jan. 1, which would help students beginning employment or entering post-secondary educational institutions, said Stan Maertz, an executive assistant with the association.

ASTA director Warren G. Schmidt told the Western Conference of School Board Associations that benefits include flexibility of programs and a more comprehensive education.

Under the system, there would be a two-week Christmas vacation and a week's special activities midway through each each semester, he said.

Tories Lead In Free Telecasts

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives got more free time on individual CBC television stations than the Liberals during the June 25 election campaign, the Commons was informed Monday.

The Conservatives got 14 hours and two minutes for such local broadcasts and the Liberals 13 hours and 33 minutes, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier told Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) in a Commons return.

The NDP got 10 hours and 59½ minutes free local television time on CBC stations, Social Credit one hour and 28 minutes and the Ralliement Creditiste one hour and 22½ minutes.

On individual CBC radio stations, the NDP got 15 hours and 55 minutes, 35 minutes more than the Conservatives. The Liberals got 16 hours and 49 minutes and Social Credit and Creditistes 15 minutes each.

On the CBC national television network, the Liberals received one hour and 30 minutes in free time, the Conservatives one hour and 15 minutes, the NDP 45 minutes, and Social Credit and Credistes 15 minutes each.

On national CBC radio, the Liberals got one hour, Conservatives 50 minutes, NDP 30 minutes, and Social Credit and Creditistes 10 minutes each.

If the political parties had had to pay commercial rates for all this free time, national and local, the cost would have been $256,455.

DEBUT OF NEW TOYOTA sports coupe in North America was made at Montreal International Auto Salon with appearance of the Mark II in hardtop (shown) and sedan models. The 108-h.p. car, reflecting influence of domestic car styling with fast back deck, was designed to fill gap between Toyota's smaller Corona and luxury Crown models, competing with Volvo, Peugeot and BMW. Top speed is 105 and features includes body steel thicker than used in domestic cars, electro primer and paint finishes and lightweight overhead camshaft engine.

Canadian Private Debt At Record $9.2 Billion

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians owed an estimated record $9,200,000,000 at the end of last year, excluding mortgage loans.

That is about $700,000,000 more than a year earlier, and more than twice as much as in 1960.

Yet to date, bankers, loan companies and economists see no end to the credit limb Canadians have climbed on, nor any sign of it breaking.

Since 1965 Canadians have pledged an amount equal to about 20 per cent of their disposable income annually—the money left after taxes—in credit. This compares with eight per cent in 1951 and 16 per cent in 1960.

"But it's not at all obvious that debt has increased out of proportion to wages, prices, and other factors in the economy," says Prof. E. P. Neufeld of the University of Toronto's economics department.

"The figures may mean simply that more people are using credit, without anyone going deeper into debt than before."

Prof. Neufeld also says there is no evidence that people are getting into financial difficulty as a result of the credit climb.

"It may be a good thing for the country for people to become better acquainted with credit."

LEAD THE FIELD

Since the early 1960s, chartered banks have led the field in the amount of personal loans granted.

By last November, Canadians owed their banks a total of $3,500,000,000, about 40 per cent of all personal credit outstanding in the country. Sales finances and loan companies combined were owed about $2,600,000,000.

Bankers estimate that by December outstanding bank credit had risen by another $74,000,000. But they are not disturbed.

"Borrowing ability usually follows income trends," says W. J. Dixon, deputy general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia. "As long as both trends are the same there is no reason to worry."

Mr. Dixon says his bank usually sets its customers' top capacity to pay at between 15 and 25 per cent of disposable income, with any credit outstanding to other agencies deducted from the income figure.

Credit unions are listed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as Canada's third-largest group of credit-granters. Figures are not up to date, but by last November credit unions had more than $1,000,000,000 owing them.

Department stores were owed $547,000,000, life insurance companies $536,000,000 in policy loans, other retailers $415,000,000, and oil companies, through credit cards, $137,000,000.

STILL SEEK CREDIT

Neither rising interest rates nor fear of inflation has so far crimped the customer's desire for credit, loan companies say.

Their lending rates to small borrowers are expected to range up to 24 per cent this year.

But E. G. Jarmain, vice-president of Canadian Acceptance Corp., one of Canada's largest small-loan companies, says there has been no slackening in customer demand yet.

"It should be a good business year."

CAC keeps its bad debt rate confidential. But other major finance companies quoted theirs at less than one per cent last year, no greater than at any time in the recent past.

In its economic forecast for Canada in 1969, the Prudential Insurance Co. sees consumer spending increasing by almost eight per cent to $43,900,000,000 from last year's $40,800,000,000.

"People will continue to want cars, especially small ones, and other durable goods," Prudential says.

The company predicts consumers will cut back their savings and borrow "to satisfy pent-up wants."

Cabbies, Computers Unite for Science

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Petroleum Institute said Tuesday it will use the human nose, balloons blown up by New York City cab drivers and computers in a $3,000,000 research project this year to develop means to clean up the air and water.

Of the total amount, $1,900,000 will be devoted to automotive pollution research in co-operation with the United States government and the automobile industry.

Kerryn King, chairman of the institute's committee for air and water conservation, said human sniffers would be used in a study concerned with elimination of objectionable odors from exhaust emissions, particularly those of diesel fuels. His remarks were in a speech prepared for a news conference.

In an investigation of carbon monoxide as it may affect the human circulatory system, cab drivers—because of their everyday exposure to this gas—will blow up balloons to provide samples of exhaled air for study.

A computer analysis will be made of data from instruments installed in test cars to record driving activity. This project will cover Los Angeles, Houston, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Cincinnati, Chicago and New York.

P. N. Gammelgard, the institute's vice-president for environmental affairs, said control devices in use on all 1968 and later model cars have reduced hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions from the typical car by two-thirds from the pre-control level.

He said it is expected that with the addition of evaporative loss controls in 1971 the over-all reduction of hydrocarbon emissions will be better than 80 per cent.

HOUSING MEET SET FOR B.C.

House builders from Victoria and five other districts outside of Vancouver next month will host the largest convention of the National House Builders Association ever held.

A total 1,500 delegates are expected at the four-day meeting to be held at Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver starting Feb. 2, the first time the national convention has been set for B.C.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer will be a featured speaker, going into details of his housing task force inquiry.

The display area will be 10 per cent larger than for any previous convention, the association said.

Usually, the host city's NHBA group is sponsor of the meeting, but with no local branch of the association in Vancouver, the B.C. council consisting of Victoria, Kamloops, Kelowna, Prince George and the lower mainland-Surrey units, is organizing the convention.

French Buy Turbo Engine

MONTREAL (CP) — A turbofan engine developed by United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. will power the prototype of France's newest business aircraft.

United Aircraft said in a statement the JT15-D turbofan engine, now undergoing flight tests, has been purchased to power a twinjet known as the SN600, being manufactured jointly by the French state-owned companies Sud Aviation and Nord Aviation.

The engine, under development since 1966, has a cruising speed of 475 miles an hour and will operate at low cost, the company said.

The first engine for the French eight-place twin-jet is expected to roll off the assembly line in early 1971.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Annual Reports Ignored

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

(This a service provided by the Victoria Times and by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

During the coming weeks many corporations will be issuing their annual financial reports for 1968 to their shareholders.

Most of these reports will fail shareholders. This is not because the reports do not contain the facts but because the shareholders believe that they cannot understand the reports and so do not read them.

Too many owners of shares regard themselves as merely investors with no relationship to the company they, in fact, own. They look upon the purchase of shares as no different from depositing money in a bank account. In some companies the same distorted view is even held by the directors who fail to recognize that they hold office by election by a majority of the shareholders.

If shareholders would recognize their position as business owners, they would read the reports of stewardship from the directors they have appointed as the business managers. And if they read the facts they will discover that there are no magic formulae and the incomprehensible mumbo-jumbo does not appear.

SUMMARY

The usual form of an annual report contains a narrative summary by the president or other executive officer of the company. In this, the principal events of the past year are related and the intended developments or changes, if any, for the future are set out. The degree of detail varies extremely, dependent upon the ability and intent of the executive to inform the owners.

The financial position and the results of the operations during the preceding year appear in the financial statements which normally consist of a balance sheet, a statement of income and expense, and a statement of the sources of funds and the application of funds. There may be other supporting schedules to give more details of the figures in these principal statements.

There should also be an auditor's report upon the financial statements. This report informs the shareholders that an independent auditor has examined the records of the company and that in his opinion the financial statements do present a fair view of the financial position at the end of the year and of the results of the year's operations. The auditor does not report upon the management's prudence, or lack of it, this is for the shareholders to determine in their own judgement of the facts presented.

SEE DEALER

It is not practical in this one column to explain all of the content of a set of financial statements for all types of business. Almost every investment dealer publishes a booklet upon the subject of "how to read financial statements" and most dealers are delighted to have their clients enquire for such guidance; it is their business to serve the investor.

For the shareholder who wants to learn more, the Investment Dealers Association provides a lecture course in most principal cities and a correspondence course for those who cannot reach the lectures.

Company ownership is no longer the exclusive field of the wealthy, it is for everyone who has funds available. Many families use their family allowance cheques to provide a savings fund for their children by investing in Canadian business. The ordinary individual may own a very small number of shares of any one company but this does not mean he is a small shareholder. To him the small quantity is just as big as the millionaire's 10,000 shares. They are co-owners of the business and have the same rights and duty to share in its fortunes and its control, proportionate to their share holdings.

Door Open to Small Royalty on Kaiser Coal

Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said if a "major" royalty—say $1 a ton—was to be charged coal taken from the Crows Nest field, Kaiser Coal Co. would never have signed the contract.

He held open the possibility of a "minor" levy being charged if Kaiser's coal-to-Japan plan proves economically successful.

However, the provincial and federal governments "have taxation machinery reasonably adequate" to make such a levy unnecessary, he said in an interview Tuesday.

Until the current deal went through, Crows Nest Industries Ltd., whose major market was Japan, was able to stay in business only through subsidization.

It made little sense to "levy a major royalty on a product that up to now has had to be subsidized by the national government to find any market at all," said the minister.

Royalties were "not necessarily the best method of deriving revenue" in all cases.

He was commenting on statements made in the house by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan that Kaiser was paying no royalties on this coal. Mr. Strachan said strip mining should not be permitted unless it brought adequate financial return.

Robert Wenman (SC—Delta) told MLAs that Kaiser would pay a direct 15 per cent of coal profits to the province and would pay a standard corporate gains tax to the federal government, of which the province will receive 28 per cent.

Mr. Kiernan confirmed the statement and said the 15 per cent came under a provincial statute and applied to all mining and logging profits. It was paid before other taxes were deducted.

The Kaiser contract, new rail transportation and the Roberts Bank facilities would, it was hoped, make possible delivery of large quantities of coal without subsidization.

Without the $600 million sale to Japan, the Roberts Bank development would not have come about and the western provinces, would have been unable to stay "in the forefront as a modern shipper of goods." Modern techniques being incorporated will make the Greater Vancouver complex the "number one port in North America," he said.

Can. Dynamics

Canadian Dynamics Instrument Division Ltd. of Vancouver submitted the low tender of $119,017 Tuesday for British Columbia Hydro's new Burnaby Mountain control centre. It will enable a single operator to control water flow to all Hydro turbines. High bid of 11 was $389,505 from a Montreal firm.

Ford Motor Co.

Ford Motor Co. plans an expansion of its turbine engine development program this year amounting to 20 per cent, a spokesman for the firm says.

"In addition to truck powerplants, we will be developing gas turbine engine versions for industrial and marine uses," said Ivan Swatman, Ford's chief engineer for the turbine operation.

Shell Canada Ltd.

Shell Canada Ltd. had estimated net income of $54 million or $1.62 a share in 1968, compared with $49.4 million or $1.49 the previous year.

In a preliminary report of its financial results, Shell also said it has arranged for the private placement of $75 million (U.S.) worth of 25-year 7½-per-cent debentures to meet capital needs.

Commonwealth Block

Bahama land sales to British Columbia residents by a subsidiary company in the Commonwealth group have been blocked by E. T. Cantell, provincial superintendent of insurance.

Mr. Cantell said Monday a prospectus filed on behalf of North Andros Development Co. is being held in abeyance awaiting his approval, which is required in accordance with the Real Estate Act.

Air Canada

Yves Pratte, Air Canada chairman, says the airline will not sell shares to the public to finance the $300,000,000 equipment program it plans over the next five years.

Mr. Pratte said in an interview Monday after he addressed the Toronto Canadian Club, that bond sales could provide the money.

HBOG Co. Ltd.

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. has net earnings of $26.79 million for 1968, 21 per cent higher than the $22 million earned in 1967.

Earnings per common share were $1.38, up 16 per cent from $1.19 in the previous year.

Libby-Owens-Ford

Higher sales, but lower earning in fourth quarter 1968 have been reported by Libbey-Owens-Ford Co.

The company said sales for the three months were $111,593,000 and earnings were $13,847,000, or $1.16 a share. It said this compared with sales of $102,542,000 and earnings of $15,339,000, or $1.29 a share, in the similar 1967 period.

For the year 1968, consolidated sales were $420,092,000, an 11 per cent increase over 1967's $379,148,000, and the highest in company history.

Earnings for the year were $48,623,000, a 21.5 per cent increase over 1967.

Coal Flow Prospects

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta will be shipping coal to Japan at the rate of 6 million tons a year within 14 months under one contract alone, A. R. Patrick, provincial mines and industry minister, said Tuesday.

Mr. Patrick, just returned from Japan, also reported two large Japanese assembly companies are studying the province as a possible location for plants.

The minister was present last week when Nippon Kokan Kaisha and McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. signed a contract for annual delivery of approximately 2 million tons of high-quality coal over 15 years, starting in May, 1970 from the company's Smokey River deposits, 225 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Other contracts between Japanese interests and mines in the Crowsnest Pass area of B.C. and Alberta call for delivery of approximately 6 million tons a year.

Mr. Patrick said he visited officials of eight Japanese steel companies and has been assured that within the next six months the McIntyre contract will be doubled.

"And by the time the coal starts moving 14 months from now it will have been tripled," the minister said.

The minister declined to name the companies who are considering establishing plants in Alberta but said one of them is connected with coal.

Mr. Patrick said he told Japanese steel company officials that Alberta would be a natural place for a steel mill. He added the Japanese officials are definitely interested and want more information.

The minister said a steel company "from the opposite direction to Japan" is positively interested in expanding to western Canada.

"I can't say what company it is but it was prevously considering all the western provinces as a potential site. Now it is deciding between Alberta and British Columbia."

CAN'T SEND BOYS OUT AGAINST MEN

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smithe, who built Toronto Maple Leafs into a National Hockey League power, said Tuesday night Canada's national team should be disbanded.

Referring to the Canadian team's losing record against Russia in world amateur competition, Smythe said the job of building a contender should be turned over to professionals.

In a speech to the 18th annual sports celebrities dinner, Smythe said:

"Staff Smythe and Dave Molson should be given the job of raising a team to represent Canada."

★ ★ ★

Staff Smythe, Conn's son, took over the Leafs when his father retired. Molson operates Montreal Canadiens in the NHL.

He said "Staff and Dave" could build a team, possibly an all-star club, to return Canada to amateur hockey respectability.

"We have good young boys on our national team, but they're playing against men," Smythe said.

"In no sport can you send out boys to fight men. The Canadian team should be disbanded as it stands.

"You've got to have hewers of wood and drawers of water."

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH

(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON — For Charlie Sifford, the next important test will not come on any of the golf courses on the professional circuit. He has already proved he could win one of the big ones. Threw that 63 at 'em, five birdies and an eagle in a row for a back-nine 28, in the first round of the $100,000 Los Angeles Open, and made his early lead stand up with the help of playoff moxie for the $20,000 first prize.

Now will he be invited to Augusta? No Negro golfer ever has, you know. The Masters people, who soak their tournament in antebellum magnolia, and are pleased at its aroma of the Old South, has never gotten around to desegregating their tournament. In the past, the only Negroes at the Masters have been attired in waiters' breeches or caddie clothes.

In this matter, the defence of the Masters people has been a fairly valid one. There had been no Negro golfer of sufficiently commanding ability to warrant a Masters invitation. But now Charlie Sifford has come along and a new judgment is required.

●

Actually, the Masters people themselves won't make the decision on Sifford. He isn't eligible by their rules which automatically qualify former U.S. Open or U.S. Amateur winners and the six top pros of the preceding year. Sifford is gaining in prominence but he isn't one of the six top pros yet.

For an invitation to the Masters, Sifford is now dependent on his fellow pros in the PGA, the 18 of them who are former winners of the tournament and are entitled to add one player of their own choosing to the invited list. This privilege goes to former Masters winners under Rule 13 of the eligibility code.

Thus, Sifford's fate is in the hands of a special group of pros who in their own time have been invested with the green jacket symbolic of a Masters victory. Most of the names are well known. To drop a few there are Sarazen, Demaret, Palmer, Nicklaus, Hogan, Nelson, Snead. And Gary Player, Middlecoff, Doug Ford and Gay Brewer. That accounts for most of the surviving 18 who have won the Masters.

Sifford has a special plus going for him. Virtually all of his fellow pros have professed fondness for the cigar-smoking, baggy-panted 46-year-old Negro who shuffles among them with little to say, and occasionally gives them lessons in golf with his splended short game. Unless Sifford slumps badly, the time will be coming when they must give the Masters people the yes-or-no on the first Negro who may rate an invitation.

●

The PGA's record with respect to Negro golfers has not been a good one. It was not until 1954, when a court suit was threatened, that the organization expunged the "Caucasians only" clause from its bylaws and permitted a Negro named Jim Rhodes to play in a California tournament.

Even the more august United States Golf Association never had any such exclusion device as the PGA. In 1896 a Negro caddy named John Shippen actually played in the very first U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills in New York, and finished fifth and won $10 in purse money. However, in the next half-century, the USGA did not encourage Negro participants.

There was a crisis in the 1938 Canadian Open at St. John's, New Brunswick, when a Negro player showed up at the first tee with a letter of acceptance of his entry. Play was held up for a half-hour, and Freddy Corcoran was asked to help the tournament people make a ruling. He did, in the Negro's favor.

"First I found a pro who was willing to play with him," Corcoran related. "Jug McSpaden was my man. McSpaden shot a 67, and wouldn't change partners the next day. He won the tournament." According to Corcoran, Joe Louis was financing most of the colored golfers in the 1940s and 1950s, including, for a time, Sifford.

Sifford has the typical caddie's swing, which says nuts to the theory that the left knee must be held in position while the right knee pivots. "Tony Lema and so many other good ones put both knees into their swings," Corcoran said, "and Sifford does, too."

Like most of the other top Negro players, Sifford came out of the group that hustled other Negro golfers for a living, before they were welcomed to the PGA tournaments. Lee Trevino, current U.S. Open champion, admits he, too, was a hustler. One can learn golf that way. Apparently, one learns humility, too. When Sifford won the 1967 Hartford Open and received the big cheque, he said, "I want to thank Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer."

Neither Nicklaus nor Palmer entered the tournament.

Cycling Clinic Slated

British Columbia's junior bicycle riders are being offered a free coaching clinic to assist them in preparation for a pair of national events next summer.

Organized by the Canadian Cycling Association, the clinic will be held at 7 p.m. Friday in the Alma YMCA, 10th and Highbury, in Vancouver.

Members of the coaching committee will be Lorne Atkinson, Tony McMillan, Roger Sumner and Jack Ferguson, who hope to prepare riders for a pair of August events—the national junior championships in Vancouver and the Canadian summer games in Halifax.

Further information may be obtained from district CCA chairman David Preston, 2327 Trutch St., Vancouver 5.

SUCCESSIVE GOLF ACES GETTING TO BE HABIT

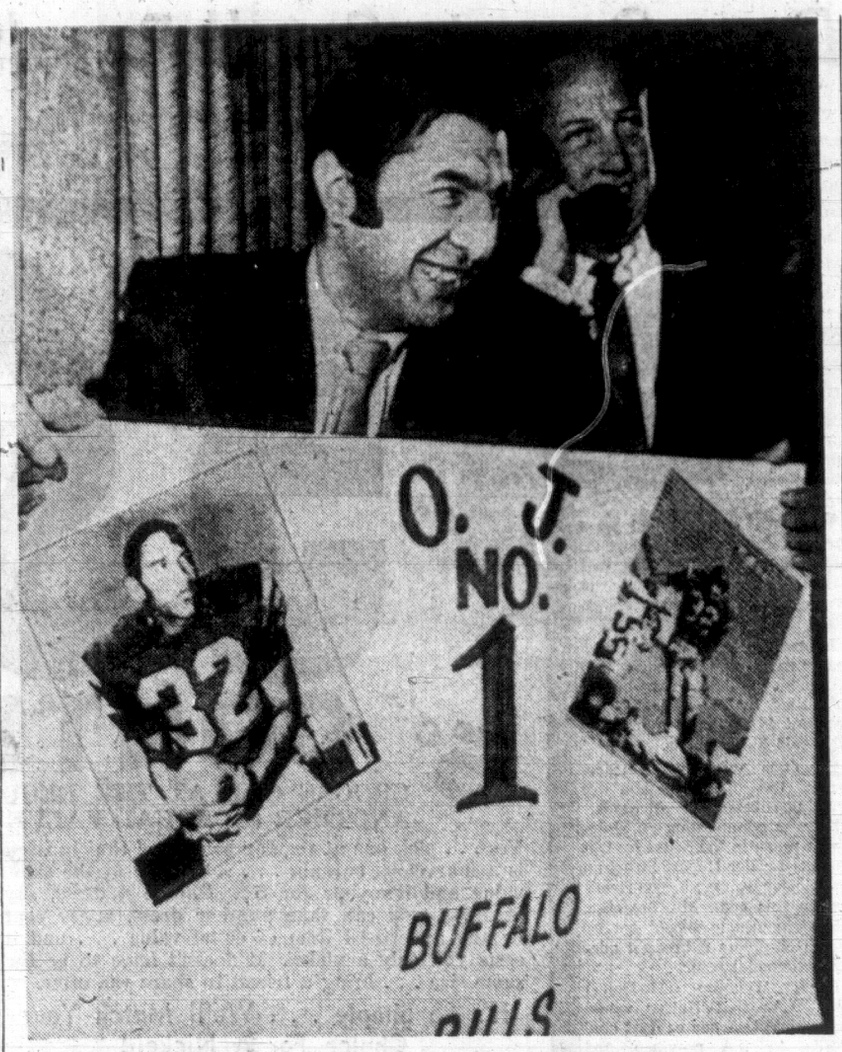
LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Two golf pros scored consecutive holes-in-one on the same hole Monday in a qualifying round at the Andy Williams San Diego Open.

John Kennedy aced a 158-yard par-three third hole at Torrey Pines Golf Course.

Claude Harmon Jr., playing with Kennedy, stepped up to the tee saying: "That's a hard shot to beat."

Harmon then shot his hole-in-one.

The same feat occurred last week when William Stark, 69, and Robert Raymond, 79, shot consecutive holes-in-one on the island of Madeira, Portugal.



OH HAPPY DAY, WE PICKED O. J.!

Happiness at professional football draft Tuesday was having the first selection and Lou Sahadi, of Buffalo Bills, displays pleasure and sign after his club had drafted O. J. Simpson, Southern California's great running back. Holding telephone in background is Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Getting Stars to Sign Next Problem for Pros

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffalo Bills, hoping to turn pro football's worst record into one of its best, looked ahead to signing O. J. Simpson while they and 25 other teams today completed the two-day draft of college players.

The Bills, whose 1-12-1 record earned them the right to draft first Tuesday, selected Simpson, and both parties said they anticipated no trouble in reaching an agreement.

After the Bills picked the Heisman Trophy running back from Southern California, the American and National leagues waded through seven rounds of their third common draft, selecting a total of 182 players in 12 hours, 11 minutes.

MORE ROUNDS TODAY

They had 10 more rounds today before turning their attention to contract negotiations. There were, of course, other college stars besides Simpson drafted.

For example, there were four other running backs picked in the first round—Leroy Keyes of Purdue by Philadelphia, Larry Smith of Florida by Los Angeles, Ron Johnson of Michigan by Cleveland and Calvin Hill of Yale by Dallas.

Smith was one of three Los Angeles choices in the opening round, the others being split end Jim Seymour of Notre Dame and tight end Bob Klein of Southern California, while Hill was one of two Ivy League players to be taken, the other being quarterback Marty Domres of Columbia, who now belongs to San Diego.

Quarterback Greg Cook of Cincinnati also was drafted in the first round, by Cincinnati Bengals, but all-America Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame was left until Pittsburgh grabbed him in the second round.

The Bills, of the AFL, intend to convince Simpson he's going with a good organization, too. O. J. had said repeatedly during the season he wanted to go with an NFL team.

Asked about that feeling following his selection, he said: "I prefer the NFL because I think it's a stronger league over-all. But the Super Bowl showed the AFL is not that far behind."

He also was asked about the $600,000 he has been reported to be asking to sign.

"I haven't heard of that particular figure, and I don't believe that is it," replied the man who smashed the major college rushing record last season by gaining 1,709 yards.

Canucks Crush Gulls, Close Gap on Bucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks moved within a point of first place in the Western Hockey League Tuesday night, with a comfortable 10-1 victory over San Diego Gulls, one-time WHL leaders.

Led by Bob Barlow's three goals, Canucks outshot Gulls 45-21 George Gardner handled Vancouver's netminding while Bob Champoux and Jack McCartan tried uncuccessfully to stop Vancouver.

Canucks now have 56 points, one fewer than Portland Buckaroos. Gulls are third with 50 points. Seattle Totems have 46, Phoenix Roadrunners 38 and Denver Spurs 27.

San Diego is at Portland tonight while Vancouver is at Seattle.

Ted Taylor and Len Lunde scored twice each for Vancouver and singles came from Ted McCaskill, Murray Hall and Duke Harris as Canucks held period leads of 3-1 and 5-1.

Willie O'Ree scored San Diego's lone marker at 14:51 of the first period before 6,561 spectators, giving Gulls a brief tie 47 seconds after Hall opened scoring for Vancouver.

Eight boxers will represent Millstream in its first inter-club competition — a Saturday night card at Campbell River. Boxers from Alberni also are scheduled to mix it up on the card.

Anatoly Says Ken Played Like Man

Russians Extend Victory Streak In Rugged Game

WINNIPEG (CP) — Determination and bone-jarring body checks weren't enough to tree the Russian bear Tuesday night, but the sport pleased coach Anatoly Tarasov.

The Russian national hockey team won 3-2 over Canada before 9,000 fans, their sixth straight conquest. But often the Russians found themselves underneath hard-hitting Canadian defencemen, especially ex-professional Ken Stephanson.

Russian coach Tarasov, in a post-game conference with reporters, had a few kind words for the 26-year-old, 188-pound Winnipeg native who wears No. 4 on his jersey:

"Hockey is a man's game and No. 4 played like a man . . . But in hitting both men get the bruises."

Stephanson's presence was felt early. He knocked Boris Mahailov over the boards in the first period and kept up the bruising pace through 60 minutes of play.

DIDN'T SPOIL STRIDE

But the hitting wasn't enough to knock the Russians off stride as they skated to period leads of 1-0 and 2-1.

And Tarasov was happy with the officiating by Gordie Kerr and Lou Joyal, who could be accused of a little leniency.

"When refereeing is good", Tarasov said, "It is not noticed. The players are given a chance to play the game. That is the way it was tonight".

Russia got goals from Valerie Kharlanov, his fifth in six games, Vladimir Petrov and Aleksandr Maltsev. Both of Canada's goals were scored by Kevin O'Shea of the Ottawa-based nationals. Fran Huck assisted on both.

Jack McLeod, coach of the Canadian squad, was happy with his team's efforts in spite of the defeat.

"This is why we wanted this series with the Russians—to give our many rookies an opportunity to play their kind of game. It's a different game, believe me, and they're catching on. They're getting used to it now and we're getting closer."

TAKE FOUR EACH

There were eight penalties called in the fast-moving encounter with both teams taking four each. The third period, in which the Russian's superior conditioning showed, was penalty-free.

Goalie Wayne Stephenson played a standout game for Canada, turning away many difficult shots in making 35 saves. Victor Konovalenko stopped 27.

The Russians continue their tour against the Canadians in Ottawa Thursday, the last original stop, but the Soviets have three additional games lined up before returning home next week.

They will play Canada Friday night in London, Ont., and in Quebec City Sunday. They will play in Sherbrooke, Que., Monday, but the game will be against a team of Quebec Senior League all-stars.

FIRST PERIOD

1. Russia, Kharlanov (Maltsev) 11:47. Penalties — Romishevsky (R) 3:32; O'Shea (C) 4:46; Kuzkin (R) 14:29; Romishevsky (R) and Ferguson (C) 16:59.

SECOND PERIOD

2. Canada, O'Shea (Taggart, Huck) 0:26.
3. Russia, Petrov (Kharlanov) 13:40. Penalties—Ferguson (C) 5:58; Carlyle (C) 10:14; Firsov (R) 11:07.

THIRD PERIOD

4. Canada, O'Shea (Huck) 12:43.
5. Russia, Maltsev (Vikulov) 13:19. Penalties—None.

JUNIOR HOCKEY LEAGUE SENDS OUT INVITATIONS

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — The British Columbia Junior Hockey League is planning to expand to eight teams, probably in time for the 1969-70 season, the league president said Tuesday.

Howard Hamilton of Penticton said representatives of the six teams, Victoria, New Westminster, Penticton, Kelowna, Vernon and Kamloops, voted Sunday at a meeting to go ahead with expansion.

Nor-West Caps and Kerrisdale Centennials, two junior B teams in the Vancouver area, have been invited to join, he said.

The league hopes to have all arrangements completed by March, said Hamilton.

Arbour Liked St. Louis Look

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just two years ago Al Arbour was a minor league defenceman on the verge of retirement. Now, he is an all-star in the National Hockey League.

Arbour, like many others, owes his new lease on life to NHL expansion.

The 36-year-old announced his retirement after finishing the 1966-67 season with Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. He was going into the construction business with some friends in Sudbury, Ont.

AL ARBOUR
. . . career extended

Then, St. Louis Blues selected him in the expansion draft June 5, 1967.

Numerous phone calls from St. Louis coach Scotty Bowman, general manager Lynn Patrick and owner Sid Salomon Jr., finally convinced Arbour to fly to St. Louis two weeks after the Blues had opened their 1967-68 training camp.

WENT TO LOOK

"I just went down to look things over," he said. "I wanted to see what kind of organization they had, what kind of city and so on. If I didn't like it I was going to go home."

Arbour liked what he saw and stayed. The decision paid off because just last week Arbour played in his first all-star game and helped the Western Division tie the Eastern Division team 3-3.

"It was the best move I ever made," Arbour said of his decision to join St. Louis. "The Salomons are the greatest people you could ever play for. So are the fans."

WASN'T SPECTACULAR

It is a happy note in a career that began with Detroit Red Wings during the 1953-54 season.

Arbour went from Detroit to Chicago Black Hawks and later Toronto Maple Leafs. His chief distinctions were that he played on Stanley Cup championships teams in all three cities and that he was the only player in the NHL to wear glasses on the ice.

But Arbour generally was regarded as a fringe NHL player, steady but far from spectacular.

ESPOSITO ON TOP

In the league scoring race, Boston's Phil Espsito had built up a solid lead over Chicago star Bobby Hull. The slick Bruin centre, who has collected 73 points on 30 goals and 43 assists, now has an eight-point bulge over Hull.

Only one point behind Hull is Detroit veteran Gordie Howe.

Second Tour Confirmed

WINNIPEG (CP — Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Tuesday confirmed a Canadian tour by a second Russian hockey club, Moscow Selects.

The team will arrive in Winnipeg Feb. 24 and play the first of three games against Canada's national team Feb. 25.

The Soviet club also will play two games in Ottawa, one in Calgary, one in Edmonton and one in Toronto.

The eight-game tour will end March 9.

Martin Must Pay Pitcher

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Brewer, former Chicago Cubs pitcher, was awarded $10,000 for medical expenses by a circuit court jury Tuesday in a damage suit filed against Billy Martin, former Cincinnati Reds' second baseman.

Brewer suffered a fractured cheekbone under his right eye in a scuffle with Martin during a baseball game Aug. 4, 1960, in Wrigley Field. Brewer charged that Martin struck him with his fist.

Calgary Event Taken Off Tour

CALGARY (CP)—The $20,000 Willow Park Classic has been taken off the agenda for next summer's Canadian golf tour.

IN FIRST ROUND . . . . . . OF COAST FINAL

City Skips Learn Foes

Two Victoria Curling Club skips, Pat Thompson and Jim Armstrong, who guided their rinks to the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's playdowns, have learned which mainland skips will be their foes in the opening round of the competition at Vancouver's Capilano Winter Club.

Thompson has drawn Barry Naimark of the Vancouver Curling Club while Armstrong is to face Art Roberts of North Shore in the first round of the provincial semi-final contest.

The eight-rink, double-loss-elimination style competition is slated to begin Friday night and continue until a winner has been decided on Sunday.

In other draws slated for Friday, Gary Wray of Chilliwack plays Ted Harris of Ladner while Glen Pierce of Burnaby battles with University of British Columbia's Don Bogie.

Surviving rink from the playdown goes to Kimberley for a best-of-three B.C. final against the B.C. Association's champion to decide the provincial representative to the Canadian final in March at Oshawa.

Vikette Hopes Crushed By Loss to Maplettes

University of Victoria Vikettes, hampered by the absence of scoring ace Heather Witzel, sidelined by foot troubles, suffered more than the usual pains of defeat Tuesday night at the Uvic gymnasium.

Not only did Vikettes bow to Victoria Maplettes 49-41, but in doing so, failed to gain a playoff berth in the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League.

It was the final game on the schedule for both squads.

Maplettes will take on Mt. Pleasant Legion of Vancouver for the right to meet league-champion Molsons in the final. Mt. Pleasant and Molsons close out the league slate tonight in Vancouver.

Angie Radonovich paced the Maplettes by sinking 18 points, one more than teammate Mary Coutts.

Jeannie Robertson, Rose Witzel and Gail Vaughan each counted eight points for the students.

Starting Spot Elusive

SAN DIEGO — Victoria professional Bill Wakeham has been stymied in a fourth attempt to qualify for a U.S. Professional Golf Association tournament.

But this time it was a bit closer.

Wakeham was one of a group carding 73s Monday in the qualifying round for the Andy Williams Open, starting Thursday. Only two qualifying berths remained, so a playoff was held.

Two of the group birdied the first extra hole and collected a chance to start while the remainder continued to play to decide the order for alternate berths.

Wakeham didn't come near enough to be in the running but Bob Cox of Vancouver placed second at the fifth extra hole and could start if there are more than two cancellations.

Ken Fulton of Trail and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor were on the list of 18 earning the chance to play.

Aussies Spoil Dramatic Bid

ADELAIDE (Reuters) — The last two Australian batsmen successfully thwarted a dramatic West Indian attempt to win the fourth cricket test here today, leaving the game drawn.

At one stage, Australia appeared certain of reaching the target of 360 runs it needed for victory in 344 minutes.

But six wickets fell after tea —including three by runouts—to provide an exciting climax to the match. Australia now leads the series 2-1 with one test to come.

Australia was 339 for nine at the close with No. 11 batsman Alan Connolly playing out the last few minutes with Paul Sheahan.

Earlier Charlie Griffith, West Indian fast bowler, prompted a storm of booing and jeers from the crowd when he ran out Ian Redpath at the bowler's end while backing up too far.

Final scores: West Indies 276 and 616; Australia 533 and 339 for nine.

The West Indies batsmen turned a first-innings deficit of 257 into a formidable lead of 357 as they amassed a record score of 614 for nine wickets at the end of the fourth day.

Their fighting comeback launched Monday by Rohan Kanhai and Joey Carew was continued Tuesday by Basil Butcher and David Holford.

Butcher contributed a brilliant 118 and Holford an invaluable 80 as the West Indians reached their highest score ever achieved in a test innings against Australia.

It was Butcher's seventh century in tests for the West Indies and the highest innings by a West Indian batsman in a test match against Australia in Adelaide, bettering by one run Kanhai's effort during the 1960-61 tour.

Japanese Victory

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) —Japan's Seibu club got two quick goals in the third-period and held on Tuesday for an 8-7 victory over the intermediate Prince George Mohawks in an exhibition hockey game. For Japan, Canadian-born Mel Wakabyashi picked up two goals.

Richardson Falls In Club Playoffs

(Times News Services)

For the first time in 12 years, Saskatchewan's men's curling playoffs are progressing without the presence of Ernie Richardson.

The five-team world champion and his rink failed to survive his own club playoffs, losing 5-4 in an extra end to Harvey Mazinke. It was Richardson's last chance to claim one of the six berths allotted Regina Curling Club in the city final.

Formula Allows Minimum Services

The new education finance formula in B.C. may force districts to maintain only minimum educational services, the B.C. School Trustees Association said Tuesday.

Walter Sawadsky and Leigh Hill, BCSTA researchers, made the statement in a report to the conference of the Canadian Council for Research in Education at the Empress Hotel.

The formula, which applies an "instructional unit" grant to school districts, is putting a greater burden of education costs on local taxpayers, they said.

Property owners may balk at additions to education programs, they said.

The provincial government's share in costs fell from 51 per cent in 1967 to 43 per cent last year under the new formula.

The formula permits local taxpayers to vote on budget amounts which are above the government set level.

The BCSTA report forecasts if the cost of education shifts further onto the shoulders of local ratepayers "then there will be great opposition to local decisions to increase the level of service beyond the foundation level, a level intended to provide no more than standard minimum educational services."

Teachers Bogged Down By Clerical Duties

Teachers today have a "virtually unmanageable" job and must have non-professional aides in the classroom, A University of Saskatchewan professor told education researchers Tuesday.

Professor Frances Friedman was addressing the second-day session of the conference of the Canadian Council for Research in Education, under way at the Empress Hotel until tonight.

The modern teacher is "attendance taker, computer, hostess, clerk, wet nurse, ticket seller, counsellor, cashier, housekeeper, decorator, policeman, surveyor and administrator . . . " Professor Friedman said.

"When does she have time to teach? Is she not wasting her true professional ability, which is her talent to teach and inspire?" she asked.

'ONLY THEMSELVES'

"Lawyers have secretaries, doctors have nurses and technicians, college professors have graders and assistants but teachers have only themselves. This is not enough.

"Therefore, the need of subprofessionals to handle nonteaching functions exists," she said.

Unless some type of aid in the classroom is arranged soon, many teachers will find themselves "bogged down in technical and clerical duties which could be performed by others."

A well-planned carefully supervised program of teacher aides would be a valuable asset to the teacher in the classroom.

Professor Friedman cited several programs using such assistants in the United States. They are used to prepare report cards, supervise study halls, assist in school laboratories, monitor halls, reading and correcting student themes, record data in student files, supervise loading and unloading of school buses and other jobs.

TRAIN AIDES

Training programs have been set up in many school systems to train aides in the tasks set out for them and usually requires a high school education.

Professor Friedman cited a 1960 report prepared by the Alberta Teachers' Association which said there was no difference in what students learned in classrooms where aides were used and in rooms where only the teacher was used.

She called for more study into relationships between teachers and aides and what the teacher role will be with changes in the school system.

'Universities, Labs Must Work Together'

Universities and separate laboratories for educational research and development must work together to find new and better ways of teaching children, an education consultant and lecturer said here Tuesday.

Dr. Francis Chase, once head of the education division of the University of Chicago, was addressing the Canadian Council for Research in Education.

The universities are still the best place for free and creative research into educational processes and programs, he said.

The laboratories carry out "programmatic research" and put many of the theories into practice under testing programs.

But some laboratories have had such loose guidelines they have been going off on their own with little relation to what is being done in universities, Dr. Chase said.

After some criticism of their role, the labs are now beginning to organize research and development.

"I find this an exciting period," Dr. Chase said, "and I think constructive things are going to be done."

There is a great "capital" of theory in the universities for these laboratories to put into practice, he said.

"We have not succeeded in establishing institutions for systematic and sustained development" of educational theories.

Many projects which were begun in the United States have run into a stage of "arrested development" and researchers are looking for ways out of the problems found in the projects.

"We've got more of this arrested development (in education) in the U.S. than any other country. We're always looking for a panacea," Dr. Chase said.

Education Minister Donald Brothers welcomed the CCRE to the city and told them no one would ever achieve "the ideal state of education" because the ideal was always changing.

He said educators could only continue to experiment and innovate new teaching programs and practices to keep up a variety in education.

Instant Replay

Four schools in Ottawa have almost instant ability to gather information on films for classroom teaching, the Canadian Council for Research in Educaton was told.

Teachers can telephone a central filing library and have the educational films broadcast on cable television within minutes.

Dr. D. S. Abbey, of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, outlined the "Information Retrieval Television" to the session.

The IRTV system is faster than any audio-visual or educational television system because there is a librarian and technician on the other end of the telephone from the teacher.

If a class wants a film to supplement a particular lesson, they merely call, find out if it is available, and ask to have it broadcast to the classroom.

The IRTV scheme was just one of several advances in electronic educational aids outlines at the conference.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JAN. 29, 1969—PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

On a flat day early last December, Oak Bay Marina's Mv Lakewood eased her 61-foot length away from her berth. After some necessary backing and filling, she hooked up to one of the strangest tows this port has seen . . . or rather failed to see, since most of it was submerged.

Operation Sea Change was under way.

Moving gently astern of the Lakewood were two wire-mesh seal pens from the Undersea Gardens complex. Instead of seals, they held live ling cod and rockfish, wolf eels, flounders, greenlings, dogfish, skates, sablefish, starfish, sea anenomes and bewildered octopi.

With the tourist attraction's many-windowed viewing hull scheduled for enlargement and a new Inner Harbor berth, its marine livestock was being shifted to temporary moorings elsewhere.

Manager Mrs. Evelyn D. Young of Victoria Undersea Garden — others now draw visitors at Seattle, Oregon's Newport, and Santa Barbara—asks me not to reveal the spot. But there, fed by skin diver, the fish are flourishing.

Casualties during the unique transfer?

"One dogfish," says Mrs. Young, "which we'll certainly have no trouble replacing. And a skate that hadn't been in good health before the move."

Victoria Good Citizen Freeman 'Skipper' King, winter-clad in duffle coat and rubber boots, dropped in this morning with news of two well-loved wild parks. Francis is one, the other bears Freeman King's name, and the joined pair comprise a 225-acre wildlife sanctuary in Prospect Lake area.

Four deer, one of them a large buck, have moved in. They are browsing on willow twigs and cedar fronds, and are obviously doing not too badly.

The same for the park woodpeckers, Skipper reports. The flickers are apparently finding nourishment in ants from hills cleared of snow by whipping winds, and the larger pileated species continues to probe snag or standing timber for woodborers.

But the small birds are harder hit, and so far on his chilly patrols, Skipper has scattered about 150 pounds of poultry scratch to keep them from starving.

"And apples," he told me. "There's nothing the robins and varied thrushes like better. I've gone through two boxes already."

At this point, I asked the tough and cheerful naturalist how he himself is making out.

"Fine!" he said, tugging his duck-billed cap into place. "Had to shovel through a drift on my driveway, but with chains for the back roads I have no trouble getting around."

At 78, may we be so hardy!

Family Dashes From Burning City Dwelling

LET'S DO IT EFFICIENTLY

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria's community service agencies flew into action today to help the burned-out family of Henry Sparvier.

And once again, the need for a co-ordinating emergency aid bureau in Greater Victoria was underlined.

A Times news team at 9 a.m. today visited the burned-out family of eight where they had been taken in by neighbors.

The Sparviers were sharing a ground-floor apartment already crowded by a family of five. Another family lives upstairs.

Mr. Sparvier is out of work and his family needs help. The first to offer it was the Salvation Army, which sent 13 blankets in the middle of the night in a police car.

This morning the family did not know whether more aid was forthcoming. Still shocked by their predicament, they had not even taken stock of their situation.

The Times advised the Red Cross of the situation and explained the mother required diapers for the five-month baby — and probably a great deal more if investigation were possible.

MUST APPLY

A spokesman at the Red Cross said blankets are made available to the Salvation Army. If more aid was required the family must apply

"We would have to hear from them."

The spokesman said it was possible baby clothing could be furnished but no drivers were available.

The Times phoned the Salvation Army and explained the circumstances. An official took the family's address and said police had been advised to tell the family if it needed clothing, members could pick it up at the Salvation Army stores.

When told that the family was still numbed by its loss, the Salvation Army spokesman agreed to send an investigator.

Contact wa made with the B.C. Protestant Orphanage and an official there said he would investigate whether the institution could take the Sparvier family in until other arrangements were made.

Later, Community Welfare Council advised the Times it had made further arrangements with St. Vincent De Paul Society, a member agency of Community Chest.

The society was placing the family in a motel and would furnish beds and bedding and clothing as required. The motel would be a temporary arrangement until permanent quarters are found.

Five minutes later the Times was informed by the Salvation Army that one of its representatives and a man from the orphanage had just completed transfer of the family to the orphanage.

DUPLICATION

The community rescue had been accomplished—as usual with the newspaper and various independent and uncorrelated agencies each going about it in its own way . . . with a duplication of effort.

The main thing was, the family, 10 hours after the fire, was in receipt of generous care.

But within the various agencies there was serious consideration being given suggestions expressed to the Times by a fireman, anonymously:

Why can't we have one emergency bureau which could be contacted by police or firemen and could swing into action immediately?

It could call on the various agencies which offer aid as the aid is required. It should have an emergency budget to place the family in care immediately.

The way it is now, the community rallies for some cases, depending on the situation, while some others receive little aid. Sometimes agencies duplicate efforts and waste time.

Sometimes people in the community turn out with emergency aid—often baskets of clothing which don't fit.

Everyone wants to help—but let's do it efficiently.

6 Children, Wife Roused By Husband

A Victoria family of eight fled in the snow as fire destroyed their John Street home at 2:30 a.m. today.

Sheltering with neighbors are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sparvier, 572 John, and their six children, ranging from five months to eight years.

The blaze erupted in a cupboard from an overheated stove-pipe.

The stove it served had been loaded with wood and chips from a nearby mill as the family tried to maintain warmth in the non-insulated wood-frame house.

Awakened Family

Henry Sparvier, 36, and drawing unemployment insurance, said he was sitting on his bed having a cigarette before turning in when he saw the flames through a crack in the cupboard.

He roused the children and his wife.

"I tried a couple of buckets of water, but it didn't work" he said.

He said the children moved quickly out into the 14-degree weather and snow, some of them without waiting to put on their shoes.

"Darryl, he's two, was calm. He sat there and got dressed and said he wanted his coat."

While city firemen fought the blaze, which demolished the roof of the home, the family was taken in by Cyril Prescott and his family at 2519 Ludgate.

Need Diapers

Mrs. Sparvier said the Salvation Army sent some blankets but she needs diapers for the baby and some of the family need more clothing.

She did not think the family possessions were lost. She said firemen spread tarpaulins over everything. But gallons of water had probably soaked everything and smoke damage was expected.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said only the fact Mr. Sparvier was awake saved a possible tragedy.

He said the home is owned by Rudolf Reicheneder, 1818 Belmont, and is insured.

The owner told firemen the wood heater was not in the house when he rented it to the family.

Damage totalled about $4,000, firemen reported.

FROZEN HOSE being bent by fireman is testimony to bitter weather into which the Sparvier family fled. Fire ate out the roof. Bad-luck house was scene of a shooting some years ago, before present occupants arrived. Const. Harry Hoshal was seriously wounded while seeking out a suspect.

POSITIVELY N.B.I.S.

THINK AHEAD . . . AND SMILE!

Despite the wintry blizzards, the provincial cabinet looked ahead to the delights of summer sunshine today.

It decreed that Daylight Saving Time will start at 2 a.m. April 27 and end Oct. 26 this year.

The two or three-inch snowfall which hit Victoria today is expected to taper into flurries tonight.

Clear cold weather will follow —and there's "NO BREAK IN SIGHT," the weathermen say.

Temperatures dropped to 13 in the city overnight and to five degrees at the airport. The snow began to fall at about 3:30 a.m., whipped by brisk north breezes.

High for today was expected to be 25 degrees but tonight's low could be 12.

TRAFFIC SNARL

The newest snowfall brought a flurry of fender-bending to city streets. At one point today about 30 cars were involved in a massive tie-up at Foul Bay and Lansdowne.

The continuing cold was blamed for a general shortage of pressed sawdust logs. Every dealer in town appeared to be sold out Tuesday afternoon.

Log producer, B.C. Forest Products Ltd. was limiting sales this morning to 30 per customer and there were long line-ups of purchasers.

Many drivers have found they can improve their traction in new snow by carrying heavy weights in their trunks. But one unidentified Cadboro Bay resident warns against the system he tried.

He put a 100-pound sack of potatoes in his trunk. They froze, then thawed and left him with a trunkfull of instant mashed spuds.

Rights' Group Meets Tonight On Next Move

The Victoria branch executive of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association is meeting tonight to decide what action will be taken amid charges and denials that Saanich police harassed three teen-agers last week.

"This is not a dead issue," said Mrs. C. S. Burchill, honorary secretary of the association.

"All three teen-agers maintain what they swore in affidavits was correct."

A report issued by the Saanich police commission late Monday said it "can find no foundation for any of the allegations" and that there was "nothing to criticize in the behavior of the police concerned."

It is a fact, however, that the three teen-agers left the police station in the early hours of a below-freezing morning after being questioned about an incident earlier in Cadboro Bay.

SHOES CONFISCATED

The youths said their shoes were confiscated and they were turned out of the police station.

The police commission said the teen-agers were asked to take their boots off and did so. The boots were needed to check with footprints at a service station.

The commission said the youths were "not forced" to leave in their stocking feet.

"They were simply advised that they were free to go and they left of their own accord without asking for any assistance."

(Police earlier had tried to reach the parents. The mother of one boy said she could not afford taxi fare while the parents of the other two boys did not answer the phone).

'COMMON SENSE'

A former Saanich prosecutor, meanwhile, criticized police for allowing the teen-agers to leave without shoes.

Kenneth Murphy said in his view police could not forcibly take shoes without making an arrest, unless the youths surrendered them in which case the police got them voluntarily.

However, since the police commission said the boots were voluntarily surrendered, "they should have made some arrangement for them to get other footwear. It's just a matter of common sense."

Crash Victim Still in Coma

Barbara Bonner, 21, of 3175 Norfolk, is still unconscious and in poor condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The daughter of former attorney-general Robert Bonner suffered head and pelvis injuries in a two-car crash early Sunday.

Oil Can Found in Car Detective Tells Trial

A five-gallon oil can was found in the car of a man alleged to have set fire to a house, it was stated in Victoria county court Tuesday.

Garth Dyke Drover, 31, was charged with setting fire to a house at 1304 Dunsterville on Nov. 16 last. The house, owned by Robin Adkin, had been moved to Dunsterville from another district and was empty at the time.

Detective Frank Briers of Saanich police said, after the fire, he found an overturned oil can in a car standing outside Drover's home at 3066 Carroll Street.

He said Drover had previously admitted the car was his.

Witness said a call reporting the fire came in at 12:45 a.m. on Nov. 16 and he was on the scene a few minutes later.

"The house was burning furiously," he testified. "Flames had broken through the roof and were shooting 25 to 30 feet in the air."

Detective Briers said he found fresh, unscored tire marks on the road in front of the burning house. He covered these with planks of wood so they could be examined later.

After Saanich fire department had extinguished the blaze, he went into the house and collected several samples of burned wood.

"They smelled of fuel oil," Detective Briers said.

Soon after 4 a.m., in company with Detective Leslie Ledson, he visited Drover's home at 3066 Carroll Street.

"As we entered the house, we noticed a strong smell of fuel oil," Detective Briers said. "The accused was lying fully dressed on a mattress in the front room. He got up and we noticed his clothing smelled of fuel oil."

Detective Briers told Drover that he had information that he (Drover) had threatened to burn Mr. Adkin's house down.

The accused became agitated and ordered the two detectives to leave his house. Outside they found the car and the overturned oil can inside. Oil had seeped through the floorboards of the car.

"It smelled like the oil in the burned house and in Drover's house," Detective Briers said.

He said he and Detective Ledson returned to Drover's house at about 2:45 a.m. on Nov. 18. They took Drover to the police station and charged him with arson. He said he had nothing to say until he had consulted a lawyer.

SAW CAR

Thomas Lakeland said he notified Saanich police of the outbreak of fire at 1304 Dunsterville. He lived nearby and had an unobstructed view of the house from his kitchen window.

He said he saw a car stop outside the house and, a few minutes later, heard the sound of breaking glass. Soon after, Mr. Lakeland testified, he saw a glow in the basement window and smoke rising from the roof. He telephoned Saanich police.

Answering crown counsel Alan Bigelow, Mr. Lakeland said he throught the car was light in color and of 1953 or 1954 vintage.

Three boys who live nearby—Christopher Page, 14, James Campbell, 14, and Gordon Drummond, 14—testified they saw a light-colored car parked in front of 1304 Dunsterville.

The hearing continued today.

'Old Boy' Just Ignores 26-Year Generation Gap

By ROBIN BURGESS
Uvic Correspondent

If there's a generation gap at the University of Victoria, Norm Wright, 46-year-old presidential candidate in the Alma Mater Society elections Friday, hasn't heard about it.

In a unique reversal, Mr. Wright, leading a slate of nine candidates called the United and Independent party (U. and I.), is running on a platform of rational liberalism. His main opponent, 26 years younger, is a staunch conservative.

FEAR BASED

"I don't accept radical conservatism—I think it is based on fear," Mr. Wright told a rally Tuesday.

"But I don't accept radical activism either because I think it is also based on fear."

He said criticism of students actively involved in bringing about academic reforms is not justified.

"No one thinks it odd if an old-age pensioner campaigns within the group to get benefits for old-age pensioners. It's considered perfectly legitimate."

The U. and I. candidate's main opponent in the presidential showdown is 20-year-old Drew Schroeder, who heads a nine-man slate, the United Student Movement, dedicated to moderate-conservative student government.

SWASTIKA

Comic relief was provided by a "bodyguard" wearing a swastika armband which stood beside Mr. Schroeder as he spoke.

The guard was apparently not part of Mr. Schroeder's campaign, but a dissenting student expressing his opinion of the USM candidate's platform.

Mr. Schroeder sounded a warning against a "turn toward the left" on Canadian campuses.

"We want to improve the image of the student in the academic community."

By getting the support of the community, students will be in better bargaining positon with the provincial government, he said.

In a question and answer period all candidates were asked to list the amounts and sources of their campaign funds.

$360 IN COSTS

Mr. Schroeder, who has run the most active campaign, cited donations from the candidates and their parents. He said the total cost was about $360.

Mr. Wright estimated his costs at about $120.

Three other candidates are also running for AMS president.

Ray Kraft and Dan Gerwing are independents. A third "surprise" candidate is Lex Varmley of the Logical Positive Party. The LPP platform is based entirely on old slogans.

Veterans Open 50th Convention Friday Morning

British Columbia Command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada will hold its 50th annual convention in the Empress Hotel Friday and Saturday.

It will be opened Friday at 10:30 a.m. by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson. With him on the platform will be Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria, minister without portfolio Grace McCarthy, and Jack Lundberg, Dominion president of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans.

A motion to support the transfer of Shaughnessy Military Hospital, Vancouver, to a civilian authority will be placed before the convention.

Subdivision Turned Down

Saanich lands and planning committee agreed Tuesday to reject a request to subdivide five acres at 790 Haliburton, between Beaver Lake and Cordova Bay.

The application sought to split up the land into 10,000-square foot lots. At present there is a 1.6-acre minimum subdivision size.

The committee was told that how subdivision should proceed in this area is under review.

Ask The Times

Q. How are municipal police court magistrates appointed and what qualifications are required? Are RCMP personnel given preference?—R. E. G.

A. Appointments are made by the provincial Attorney-General's office. Legal training is an advantage but not mandatory. In many smaller, rural areas magistrates are not lawyers. A magistrate must be of good character, an upstanding citizen and intelligent. Retired RCMP personnel sometimes are appointed magistrates but there is no stringent rule regarding this.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Strenuous Romp Raises Eyebrows

By PENNY SAVER

"Down along Bay, I spied a little cove that was froze; Down along Bay, I spied a little cove that was froze. I said, Man, if salt water's that way, it must be mighty cold today." I came home singing this little ditty (words by Penny) after taking a little romp in that white stuff. The tune I stole with my usual accuracy (not evident in the last line) from a blues number called "Down along Cove" that I have heard reiterated on our record player by one of the singers the children love. When they heard my song, they became convinced that their snowy-booted mother had finally flipped her lid. "Your grammar is atrocious, your singing abominable and your last line too long. And why were you on Bay Street anyway? Have a hot cup of chocolate," said my elder son pushing me into a chair and a cup in my hand. I tried to explain that I had a sudden desire to take a walk in the snow; that, in any case, the tide had been out when I passed the little cove so that my "froze cove" was probably just wet, drifted snow, and that my walk, though strenuous, had been great fun. But to no avail—they still thought I was completely insane.

Insanity is treated in our family by complete rest, so I was relieved of my dinner chores for the evening. This gave me a chance to catch up on a bit of correspondence. These were not long, newsy letters I was writing—or I would only have finished one. They were brief notes and I had found just the right sort of notepaper for them. I found, in fact, two kinds of hasty notes. The first were hand-made in British Columbia, silk screened notes that come in packages of six for $2.40. Each note in the set is different. The designs are all abstract patterns done in bright colors. The other notes I saw are in black and white. A package of 10 is $1.50. Made in British Columbia, they are designed by Barbara White and Sylvia Sinclair. One set depicts the provincial wild flowers, all done, so far as I remember, by White. The other package, most of which uses Sinclair drawings, shows the different Canadian animals such as the beaver, racoons and so forth. There are five different designs in the last package. All these notes are the standard size, approximately four by five inches with a single fold.

For Creases Sharp

Needless to say, instead of being outside romping, my daughters are inside sewing—after homework of course. The eldest girl has made herself a fashionable pant-suit with wide-legged trousers and for the first time in her life came up with a pressing problem. Her answer was a pressing cloth. This $1.39 pressing cloth is specially treated with chemicals so that it will give a "live steam action." This makes a sharp crease easy to attain, yet won't get the material wet or cause it to develop a shine on the surface. The cloth is dampened (but not soaked) and placed between the iron and the garment. This cloth enabled my daughter to get a sharp crease in her woolen suit pants and helped me steam a sweater back into place. It is a must for men's suit pants and just the thing for corduroy.

With ruffles and tucks back in style, many home sewers will be glad to hear that pressing mitts are still available. A pressing mitt is a bit bigger than a hand and padded. It can be laid straight on the ironing board or slipped on the hand for greater control. Because it is small and rounded it can be placed in small, difficult-to-iron places like the puffed sleeve of a little girl's dress. The padding keeps your hand from being burned—provided you don't try to iron from the wrong side as I nearly did once. These pressing mitts are 98 cents each.

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 383-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Love Sickness Can Be Helped

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a minister who has gotten a lot of good ideas for my sermons from your column, but I must disagree with you. A woman wrote that she had "fallen in love" with her pastor, and couldn't keep from thinking some thoughts she shouldn't entertain while sitting in church. You advised her to transfer to a sister congregation without telling her pastor the reason.

Abby, we clergymen are aware that some of our parishioners do fall in love with us, and we are trained to cope with that situation. It happened to me, and with the help of a psychiatrist I was able to set the lady straight.

I would have suggested that the woman confess to her pastor how she feels about him. Then I would recommend that she see a psychiatrist, and together they can work her problem through. If she follows your advice and transfers to another congregation she will still have the same feeling.

NO NAME, PLS.

DEAR NO NAME: Unfortunately not every clergyman is trained to cope with the above situation. Neither would every woman who "falls in love with her pastor" agree to confess her feelings to him, then consult a psychiatrist and "work her problem through."

I still think the lady would do well to follow my advice.

DEAR ABBY: I have been criticized for giving a relative a vacuum cleaner for a wedding present. Will you lease tell me that is wrong with such a gift? Granted it is not as glamorous as silver or crystal, but in my opinion it is a lot more useful for a newly wedded couple who are just starting out in housekeeping.

I would like your opinion IN PRINT, please, but withhold my name.

PRACTICAL

DEAR PRACTICAL: Good for you! It's good to know there are practical folks like yourself who refuse to get sucked into giving gifts that are more ornamental than useful.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that some working mothers have better behaved children than some stay-at-home mothers — that it's the quality—not the quantity of time spent with children that counts.

I am not a working mother, but the daughter of one. I'm not bragging, but I think my brothers and sisters and I (there are four of us) are very well brought up. We are all proud of our mother and wouldn't do anything to upset or disappoint her. We each have our duties and do them without having to be reminded.

We see more of our "working" mother than some of our friends see of their mothers who are so wrapped up in their clubs and organizations that they don't have time for their own children.

One I know is so busy helping "underprivileged" children, that her own have run completely wild. I am 17, and the youngest of four, and I think we are all better off for having had a working mother.

Sincerely yours,

PAM

Older Houses Can Adapt And Obtain Modern Look

Older houses have an undeniable charm when maintained properly and kept up-to-date. They seem solidly built, ceilings generally are high, and they usually have architectural details that can be adapted to the needs of each family that occupies the house.

For instance, the alcove pictured here was a standard arrangement of a dressing table between two closets. Under a window, the location was ideal. But for a small boy, present occupant of the room, a dressing table was less than nothing. For him, it became a work centre, with desk and side shelves, the unit designed by Doris Palmer.

HARDY FINISH

Because a normal, active, small boy is notably hard on his surroundings, the desk was made as impervious as possible to smudges and wear, with laminated plastic applied to all surfaces. A white, wood grain pattern covers the front and drawers, with a dark blue slate design on top and outlining the drawers. In fact, the top looks like a slate slab, indented as it is one inch from all edges.

The recess is 49" wide, with the desk 27" deep and 29" high, the bottom drawer 18" from the floor. Shelves, 32" long and 6" deep, spaced 11" apart, fill the wall on both sides. They are handy for books and for displaying mementoes. Bright colors seem right for youngsters, and these are bright, red on the walls, white shelves, and blue shutters.

Lines Around the Mouth

The mouth area comes in for so much attention, the quicker the lines are smoothed out and made to disappear, the younger you will look. A lotion-like substance 2nd Debut applied nightly will make the lines fill in and the skin become smooth once more. You will probably use 2nd Debut on your entire face to banish dryness, but do use a little extra care around your mouth. After applying the 2nd Debut massage very lightly, until it disappears into your skin. Your drug or dept. store has 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength and you'll find it a genuine delight to use.

School Board Trustee From Ottawa Tells Of City's Ambitious Audio-Visual Program

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

Mrs. Robert A. Berry, of Ottawa, rarely watches television herself, but she can generate a lot of enthusiasm about a system called IRTV that may bring televised audio-visual teaching aids into the 53 schools governed by the board of which she is a member.

"But not all our experiments work," she warns. "Everyone says television is an excellent teaching aid but no one knows exactly how good it is or whether it gets to all the students, or just to some."

Mrs. Berry is in Victoria to represent her school board and the Canadian School Trustees at a three-day conference on educational research. The IRTV experiment now in progress in four Ottawa schools will be one of the items discussed.

IRTV stands for instant retreival television.

The heart of this system, developed by Bell-Northern Electric, is a control centre containing a library of lesson tapes. This is connected with each classroom in the district by a 12-channel cable, a television and a telephone.

When a teacher wishes to implement his lesson with one of the tapes, he calls the centre. The tape is then broadcast to him on one of the channels, either immediately or at a predetermined time.

"If you have a good television program, a child can see rather than be told," explains Mrs. Berry.

"A teacher who is in the classroom all the time has no chance to prepare a really good presentation. In making a television show he has more time to work in. It demands more of him as a teacher, too, for he must perform. Other teachers will judge the success of his performance by the number of times they use the tape.

INCREASES INTEREST

"He is able to bring in outside resource material; he can break the lesson so it is not just someone talking, talking, talking. He can say, instead, 'watch this' and keep the child's interest."

If Mrs. Berry sounds sold on IRTV it is because the Ottawa school board has been producing educational shows for the past five or six years. They do this with the cooperation of the CBC and a local commercial station, CJOH.

"But there would always be classes that missed the shows because they had to be in the gym and there was no way for the teacher to get the show again."

This is where IRTV comes in, but the system is expensive and so new that it may have undiscovered problems.

The Ontario Institute of Studies in Education will assess the results of IRTV in the four schools now using it over a two-year period, checking to see if the system is as practicable as it seems at first glance, and deciding whether the benefits to the student are worthy of the expense.

"We were anxious to call in an objective observer because we don't want industry to control the education system," she says, explaining that school boards have quite a bit of money to spend and industries would quite naturally like to help them spend it.

ANHEIM EXAMPLE

Mrs. Berry became enthusiastic about classroom television after talking to the chief superintendent of schools for Anheim, Calif., at a conference in Banff several years ago.

Anheim, she explains, grew up very quickly and, faced with a shortage in teachers, "turned to television in panic. To their surprise the pupils showed a dramatic improvement, especially in mathematics."

She reported this to her school board and her enthusiasm led them to investigate and eventually experiment with educational television.

How did a housewife, mother of two and wife of a scientist with the Defence Research board get into the world of schools and school boards?

"I had been a broadcaster at home," she begins. "I became incensed about the difficulty of getting my child into the hospital and wrote to a television show called "Personally Speaking" suggested they look into the matter of hospital shortage. They invited me to be on a panel dealing with the subject."

The show raised quite a fuss, and Mrs. Berry went on to do several radio talk shows on different topics. "Then when the University Women's Club, the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Women's Forum, of which I was a member, decided to join forces and run some women for public office they called me and asked if I would like to run for the school board. They ran four candidates and I was the only one that got in. That was in 1960 and I've been on the board ever since. It gets into your blood."

IRTV is only one of many aspects of education that interest Mrs. Berry and she makes it clear that she and her fellow trustees consider it their job to keep abreast of both what is happening in education and the public response to the schools they administer.

RESPONSIBILITY MOUNTS

"There was an era when people thought all the trustees should do was look after finances — not learn about what was going on in the schools," she says.

"But the more complex society becomes, the greater is the responsibility of the school board for a child's welfare. The better the job the schools do, the less expense there will be for society later in corrective measures.

"Still, in the end, it all comes right down to the Joe in the classroom, and how well he is doing his job."

"It gets into your blood," says Mrs. Robert A. (Eva) Berry of her job as school trustee for Ottawa. Her school board activities take up much of her time, but she manages to work a few days a week for the Genetic Society of Canada.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Colors Can Influence Exercise

Are you performing in living color? In other words, do you realize what a really important effect color has on your life? It has an impact on your appearance, your moods, your personality, and indirectly even on your health.

Lowman

I have been aware of these facts, but I had never thought of color in connection with exercise. I read recently that Mr. Lewis Cheskin, an expert in motivation and color research, believes that certain colors activate you to exercise while others discourage you.

This is certainly a valuable bit of information for women, because they have a difficult enough time exercising regularly, surrounded by any color, living or dead. There is no doubt that the motivation theory is sound psychologically. For many years color has been considered seriously when planning the decor of mental institutions, hospitals, hotels, schools, and homes.

Very bright colors, especially red, are not used in institutions for the mentally disturbed. They are too stimulating. Studies have indicated that children learn faster when the walls of the schoolroom are bright, like a soft but cheery yellow. Soft blues and greens are relaxing in any situation.

Mr. Cheskin finds that red and red-hued shades promote the urge to activity. Therefore, these are helpful colors to have in an exercise room. He also feels that these, in combination with greens and blues, give one the feeling of exercising in the outdoors.

Not everyone has an exercise room. However, you might take advantage of this theory about color by wearing colorful clothing, maybe a red leotard instead of one which is black or grey. Anyway, wear something peppy. You might also have a red or rose mat to lie on. To add another pleasant psychological touch to the exercise routine, always do your exercises to music. This makes a great difference!

The following exercise will add real living color to your cheeks because it stirs up circulation. Bend both knees and place your hands on the floor in front of you, heels off floor. Straighten your left leg out behind you. With a jump, bend your left knee and extend your right leg out behind you. Continue, changing position of your legs with each jump. One knee bends as the other one straightens.

If you would like to improve the contour of your legs send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my leaflet, "Why Not Take Steps Toward Lovely Legs?" to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Woman Envisions Lodges for the Disabled

OTTAWA (CP) — If Canadians are going to have a just society they must concern themselves with the country's handicapped people, Mrs. Alicita Marshall of Toronto told a recent meeting of members of Marina Creations of Ottawa.

Mrs. Marshall, who founded Marina Creations in 1954, said that until her organization was formed there was no program for home-bound handicapped.

Marine Creations has established 12 volunteer branches in Canada and one in the United States for the purpose of helping disabled persons to work in their own homes on hand-made boutique items.

"I can see it grow into a countrywide organization providing employment for hundreds of disabled men and women," Mrs. Marshall said. She is the widow of George A. Marshall, a vice-president of the Society for Crippled Civilians from which her organization evolved.

"Why should this country be importing some $32,000,000 worth of artificial flowers, souvenir-type gifts and boutique items when our own handicapped could find full-time employment?

"I think that it will some day make a multi-million-dollar industry."

Mrs. Marshall's dream is to initiate the building of lodges where the disabled can live in dignity and comfort, fully employed.

SEW SIMPLE

Tip Given On Cording

By Eunice Farmer

I am repeating an extra little tip for use when you are making some covered cording for belts, spaghetti straps or Chinese ball buttons. When you intend keeping the cord in the finished covered cord, you must use twice the length of string or cord.

Sew the centre of this cord firmly to the end of your bias strip of fabric on the WRONG side of the fabric. Next, bring the cord down the RIGHT side of the fabric, carefully holding the bias strip over the cord and machine stitch fairly close to the cord.

IMPORTANT: At the beginning of the stitching, stitch at a wide angle from the cord and gradually work in toward the cord. This makes turning much easier. For additional and more complete instructions on this kind of cording, send 10 cents and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper with your request for my booklet called "Spaghetti Straps and Chinese Ball Buttons."

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am very conscious of new sewing terms. Recently, I attended a sewing workshop and the instructor kept talking about the Hong Kong hem finish, but didn't tell us just what this meant. Could you please clear this little detail up for me?

Mrs. E. A.

Dear Mrs. E. A.:

The Hong Kong hem finish is found in many Oriental garments. It is probably a result of not having the commercial lace or hem tape that we use and the fact that most of their clothes are so beautifully finished, you rarely see an unfinished seam.

Cut bias strips of lightweight silk about one inch wide. This is stitched about ¼ inch from the cut edge of your hem with the two right sides of fabric together. Next trim the hem and the bias strip to about ⅛ inch. Fold the bias over the raw edges and baste or pin in place. Last, machine stitch the bias silk strip to the garment fabric from the right side of fabric, exactly in the crease where the bias strip was stitched to your garment. This machine stitching will not show if you are careful and does make a beautiful finish for any hem.

Edmonton Low In Living Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Newly-devised federal statistics comparing living costs in seven Canadian cities indicates Edmonton is about the least expensive place to live.

However, the comparative table of retail prices published today is incomplete because the Dominion Bureau of Statistics is still engaged in research to design a full city-to-city index of consumer costs.

The preliminary table covers price levels last May for Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. Items covered range from groceries to recreation and reading, but comparisons have not yet been worked out for other key elements in family budgets such as housing, fuel and lighting.

To make the comparison among cities, the prices of all elements are based on Winnipeg prices being arbitrarily valued at 100 index points. No aggregate index for all spending has been worked out because comparisons of housing and other items are not included.

In the groceries category, listed as "food at home," Regina has been included and emerges with the highest index at 104 points, or four per cent more than base-city Winnipeg.

Least expensive places for groceries are Toronto and Montreal, with 97 points each.

Revision in Canada's Role Seen by Mid 1970s

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's review of foreign affairs is likely to produce little in the way of early changes in Canada's international economic or defence policies, says a Canadian writing in the January edition of the Foreign Affairs quarterly.

"However, within a longer time-horizon—perhaps five years—the new ideas and attitudes that now are beginning to take shape will . . . have begun to be translated into policy," Roy A. Matthews of Montreal says.

Matthews' positions include director of research for the Canadian-American committee, a private study group. Foreign Affairs is a forum for viewpoints from high within the U.S. establishment and its editorial board includes McGeorge Bundy, former security adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, Allen Dulles, former head of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and Henry Kissinger, who is Richard Nixon's choice as chief foreign affairs adviser.

Matthews says he doubts whether Canadian NATO forces will remain in Europe past the early 1970s. He forecasts that Canada's "involvement in the defence of North America will be greatly revised within the next five years, and that the operation of the joint U.S.-Canada system in NORAD will be completely reorganized."

Writing on the theme of a "new Atlantic role for Canada," Matthews says he sees as the most striking feature of Canada in the 1970s a public awareness of Canada's national uniqueness, plus a "recognition of the very special relationship with the U.S. and a greater willingness to seek ways to exploit this unique position rather than to worry and complain about it."

Where government analysis "indicates that a particular feature of Canadian life has a high 'sovereignty content,' the policy will emphasize independence more strongly than before. But where the benefits of continental integration appear great and the adverse effects slight, there will be a preparedness to enter more fully into the American orbit."

Matthews says that "among the sectors in which more independence will be sought, in my view, is over-all foreign policy—including defence."

"Such a policy, while fostering a feeling of national purpose in Canada, will in no way aim at hurting the interests of the U.S. Indeed I suspect that the U.S. government, which has come to recognize the limitations which its position places on it in certain types of international situations, will increasingly rely upon the special role that a freer agent like Canada can perform."

But to convince allies it is pulling its weight, Canada may well have to increase spending on peacekeeping, if such roles materialize, and on foreign aid.

Matthews also speculates that by the "mid-1970s, Canada will be an ardent promoter of a broadly-based free-trade arrangement, the core of which will be some sort of Atlantic economic unit."

Moscow Battles Flu

MOSCOW (AP) — An extra 3,000 doctors from research institutions have been brought into Moscow to help fight Hong Kong flu. Valentina Vadyayeva, deputy chief of the city's health service, said that one-quarter of Moscow's 6,500,000 people have been vaccinated.

9 IN MEMORIAM

SMITH—In fond and loving memory of my dear sister, Jean N. Smith who passed away January 29, 1968, and my dearly loved mother, Ann B. Smith who passed away January 28, 1941.

At twilight when twilight hour draws near,
And sunset flames the sky,
I think of you dear ones
And the happy days gone by,
Thoughts of you come drifting back
Within my dreams to stay,
To know that you are resting
When the twilight ends the day.

—Treasured Memories—Joan.

SPAVEN — In loving memory of mother, Agnes Spaven, who passed away January 29, 1966.

When a mother breathes her last farewell
The stroke means more than tongue can tell.
The world seems quite another place
Without the smile on mother's face.

—Loving daughter Agnes.

STEPHENS—In loving memory of Bill who fell asleep January 29, 1960.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him dear.

—Dick, Pem, Dot and Alf.

STEPHENS—In loving memory of my dear husband, William, who passed away January 29, 1960.

Silently remembered every day,
Sadly missed along life's way,
Just as you were you will always be,
Treasured in my memory.

—Fondly remembered by his loving wife, Lillian Elennar.

WARWICK—In loving memory of our dear Wife, Mother and Grandmother, who passed away Jan. 28, 1965.

BONGO NEAR EXTINCTION

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The bongo, a rare and beautiful species of antelope, is being driven to the brink of extinction in Kenya by poachers, two Oxford University zoologists report.

The bongo has virtually disappeared from its former stronghold in the wild Cherangani Hills in northwestern Kenya, zoologists Richard Wrangham and Mark Stanley-Price said.

Wrangham and Stanley-Price came to East Africa specifically to investigate the habits of the bongo. In eight weeks, they located only a single group of 15 breeding animals, wihch they believe is the last remaining herd of bongos in the hills.

Doukhobors Return Land Deeds

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — Protesting government inaction, Sons of Freedom Doukhobors in Krestova, 280 miles east of Vancouver, are turning in their land deeds.

The Freedomites say the government has made it impossible for their spiritual leader Stefan Sorokin to return to Canada without fear of prosecution.

In a letter to Magistrate Williams Evans of Nelson, the Freedomites say Mr. Sorokin, now living in Uruguay, promised he would live with them if they bought the land and lived peacefully.

The Freedomites have turned in about 30 deeds and say there are more to come. However, a spokesman at the Nelson registry office says returning the titles and deeds doesn't mean renouncing ownership of the lands, as in order to lose the lands they must either not pay taxes for three years and have their deeds sold by auction or else the deeds must be transferred to another person.

Kentucky Ace Gets Bonus From Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference have announced the signing of running back James Franklin Dickie Moore of Western Kentucky University.

Head coach Leo Cahill of the Canadian Football League team said Moore, 22, has been given a two-year contract and a bonus for signing.

"I talked with Green Bay and they told me Moore was in the top 10 runners in the United States," said Cahill.

Because of a pulled hamstring muscle, Moore saw limited action last year. But in his junior year in 1967 he ran for 1,444 yards in nine games, the best rushing total in U.S. college football that year.

Canuck Bowlers Due to Compete At Puerto Rico

WINNIPEG—Plans for a nation-wide competition to send Canadian bowlers to an American zone tournament in Puerto Rico this year were announced at the annual meeting of the reorganized Canadian Tenpin Federation.

It is expected that two men and two women will represent Canada at the Puerto Rico tournament, Aug. 31-Sept. 6. The federation hopes to send a full team of eight men and six women to the 1971 world tournament, which will probably be held in Milwaukee.

Frank Degenstein of Regina was elected federation president during the meeting, at which Hazel McLeary of Victoria represented British Columbia.

The ISIS-A follows Alouette I (launched in 1962) and Alouette II (1965), which are still providing valuable data about the ionosphere. (CP Wirephoto.)

Hovercraft Steals Spotlight During Whistle-Stop Tour

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Liberal candidate in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands federal by-election Eric Winch made history Tuesday by becoming the first politician to campaign by hovercraft.

Sweeping in and out of Gulf Island communities on a day-long whistle-stop tour, Mr. Winch's party, including Victoria MP David Groos, drew good audiences.

But if the hovercraft's name was on election ballots Feb. 10, it would probably get more islanders' votes than Mr. Winch, Conservative candidate Magnus Verbrugge and NDPer T. C. Douglas combined.

One water surrounded resident took a look at the hovercraft and said "boy, that's what we need around here."

REACTION

The islanders' reactions were the same from Ganges to Galiano.

At Ganges a group of about 60 were on hand to greet the hovercraft party when it arrived at 10:15 a.m., 40 minutes out of Nanaimo.

While the hovercraft sped to Patricia Bay to refuel, Mr. Winch attended a coffee party arranged by Salt Spring Island Liberals at the Ganges Hotel.

He told a small group that he would like to see inter-island transportation improved and one sure way of improving it would be through the use of hovercrafts.

"Possibly the development of a hovercraft service can solve, or at least help solve, both the problem of inadequate ferry service and high freight rates," he said.

He assured the group that if elected he would press for significant improvements in inter-island transportation.

NOT JUST PROMISES

"These are not scatter gun promises," he added. "My theme is not promises I can't carry through."

The second stop was at Montague Harbor where the hovercraft whisked up over the beach and parked in a snow covered field, 200 feet from water.

A bright red sign saying "Vote Winch" was staked in the ground, and old-timer with a four-wheel drive truck awaited the party.

The two hovercraft hostesses sat in the cab with the driver while Mr. Winch, Mr. Groos, Pacific Hovercraft vice-president Byng Heeney and several newsmen clambered into the rear for a seven mile ride to Galiano Lodge.

At the lodge a welcoming committee awaited and lunch was served. Following lunch, Mr. Winch addressed the gathering.

He said he was an islander at heart and that he has known the gulf islands well since he was a boy.

"As someone once said," he quipped, "you can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy."

He reiterated his views on island transportation improvements before climinb back into the rear of the truck to return to the hovercraft.

CLOSER LOOK

A four truck convoy, filled with Galiano residents, followed for a close look at the hovercraft.

From Galiano the hovercraft zipped to Mayne Island where Mr. Winch addressed another group before continuing to Saturna and North Pender Islands.

At each stop the 10-ton SR-N6 swiched onto a beach, thrilling children and adults alike. Although many "Vote Winch" signs were evident at every call, the children left the politicking up to the adults while they scurried into the machine.

And the politicking adults cast curious glances at the hovercraft as they spoke with Mr. Winch, plainly anxious to make their own inspection.

The tour concluded at North Pender Island with a brief address to a handful of residents who ignored bitter cold to visit Mr. Winch and the hovercraft on the beach.

The party arrived at Patricia Bay precisely on schedule at 4:45 p.m.

GULF ISLAND SERVICE 'WITHIN TWO YEARS'

Hovercraft service to the Gulf Islands will likely begin within two years, Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. vice-president Byng Heeney said Tuesday.

Mr. Heeney said the Gulf Islands will be examined more closely as soon as his company's hovercraft routes between Nanaimo and Vancouver and between Vancouver and Victoria are operating smoothly.

He said one possible means of operation would be to use a single hovercraft to handle inter-island passenger and freight traffic and to connect with a Vancouver-Victoria hovercraft at a central terminal on the Gulf Islands.

"Hovercraft service will extend up and down the whole coast in a few years' time," he said. "The future looks great."

Volunteer Group's Greatest Need Is Drivers

Snow has fallen heavily on the volunteer bureau of the community welfare council.

Co-ordinator Mrs. D. Dickinson said that although volunteers are usually plentiful the recent weather has taken its toll.

Volunteers are still needed to help with the newly-formed Meals on Wheels program, to assist children in group homes having difficulty in school and to baby sit.

Right now however, drivers willing and able to brave Siberia like roads are needed most.

"Requests for assistance keep coming in but I guess most of our volunteers can't drive in this weather," said Mrs. Dickinson.

St. Croix Home From Upcoast Training Cruise

The Esquimalt-based destroyer escort St. Croix returned home today following a two-week training cruise up the B.C. coast.

A Canadian Forces spokesman said the ship visited Powell River, Campbell River, Kitimat and Prince Rupert. Special tours were organized for sea cadets and wrenettes in two of the ports.

He added the St. Croiz responded to two distress calls during her cruise, one to search for a youth who presumably drowned off Tsawwassen and the other to aid in fighting a tugboat fire.

Lesser Charge Laid Against Colwood Man

A charge of discharging a firearm with intent to endanger life was laid today against a Colwood man.

Robert B. Groseth, 292 Virago Cresc., was charged Dec. 21 with the attempted murder of his brother-in-law Gordon H. Arkinstall, 242 Island Highway.

At the beginning of a preliminary hearing today Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the more serious charge would be dealt with later, indicating it will be withdrawn.

Groseth was arrested Dec. 20 when Colwood RCMP attended at his Belmont Park address and flushed a man from the house with tear gas after a shot was fired from inside the front door.

He is represented by lawyer Brian Smith and elected trial by judge and jury on the new charge.

Before the evidence began Mr. Smith said he was disappointed the attempted murder charge was not withdrawn first.

TRUCK FIRMS LASHED ON SAFETY VIOLATIONS

Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey) Tuesday advocated a lower speed limit for heavy trucks on B.C.'s highways and stiff penalties for trucking firms that ignored safety regulations he proposed.

Mr. Hall, quoting figures of thousands of violations of statutory and industry-established safety requirements compiled in a special survey of trucks, said legislation is needed to back up the strengthened program of testing stations for commercial vehicles mentioned in the throne speech.

He told the legislature it should establish a special speed limit for trucks on all highways and require limits on hours of driving, rest periods and special physical and driving examinations for commercial truck drivers.

Trucking firms should be required to equip trucks with speed recording meters and turn in regular reports to the government showing the regulations were being observed on pain of losing their operating licences as well as fines.

He also called for an increase in highway patrols and roving check points.

U.S. Launches War Games In Germany

GRAFENWOEHR (AP) — The U.S. Army launched its biggest division-sized war games in West Germany in five years today with a simulated attack from the direction of Soviet-occupied Czechoslovakia.

About 7,000 men of the orange "aggressor" force crossed what the army called a "simulated political border where tension had been building up" for a thrust southeast to northwest.

The Czech frontier is only 25 miles from this U.S. training area and that proximity has caused repeated protests from East-bloc nations that the manoeuvre, Carbide Ice, is a provocative act.

Students Disrupt Board Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — About 150 flag-waving students, chanting socialist slogans, Monday forced cancellation of the first open meeting of McGill University's board of governors.

The students, many of them members of a group called the Socialist Action Committee, climbed up the stairway to the sixth floor of the university's administration building and refused to let the meeting proceed.

The students were protesting, among other things, the board's omission on its agenda of the student housing problem.

University officials said there was room for only 30 students to attend the open meeting.

When they were refused entrance to the elevators downstairs the militant group of protestors stormed up the stairway and marched into the board room. They took up positions on the floor, on tables and window ledges.

Principal H. Rocke Robertson asked the students to refrain from interruptions and allow the meeting to "get on with business."

His plea was met with anti-administration slogans and chants of "ban the board". He finally decided to call the meeting off and asked students to leave the board room. The protestors gradually moved out.

Crackdown Set

DUNCAN—All cars left on city streets because of the snow will be towed away and the driver charged for the cost of removal and storage, Mayor Jim Quaife said today.

The city's commissionaires are empowered under the Motor Vehicle Act to take the necessary action.

"Some of these cars have been there for weeks," the mayor said. "One car has been sitting on a main street with two wheels missing since before the snow."

BEAUTIFUL ANTELOPE NEARING EXTINCTION

NAIROBI (Reuters) — The bongo, a rare and beautiful species of antelope, is being driven to the brink of extinction in Kenya by poachers, two Oxford University zoologists report.

The bongo has virtually disappeared from its former stronghold in the wild Cherangani Hills in northwestern Kenya, zoologists Richard Wrangham and Mark Stanley-Price said.

Wrangham and Stanley-Price came to East Africa specially to investigate the habits of the bongo. In eight weeks, they located only a single group of 15 breeding animals, which they believe is the last remaining herd of bongos in the hills.

Britain Unveils Plan for Pensions at Half Income

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government unveiled today a plan for increasing old age pensions in what some experts hailed as the biggest step forward since the founding of the welfare state.

Instead of the present flat-rate pension paid to all workers at 65, a pension would vary according to earnings under the new plan. At the top end of the scale, a pension could be at least 140-per-cent higher than at present.

The plan is expected to take effect in 1972.

A government white paper describing the plan said average pensions might amount to about half the average income of the rest of the population, by the end of the century.

The top basic pension under the new plan would be £12 2s (about $31.46) a week as against the present flat rate of £4 19s ($11.70) plus a graduated addition of up to 9s ($1.17).

A present minimum of £4 11s ($11.83) would go up to £6 12s ($17.16) under the plan.

Persons earning £11 ($28.50) a week or less would get the minimum under the new system, while those earning £33 ($85.80) a week or more would get the maximum.

The plan would be financed by employers' contributions, amounting to about one half of one per cent of current labor costs, and by increased deductions from the incomes of higher paid employees.

Workers eligible for the maximum pension would pay £2 4s 6d ($5.77) a week, 19s 2d ($2.47) more than they pay now.

Deductions are calculated at 6¾ per cent of an employee's pay, and employers would make a matching contribution. To qualify for full benefit, workers would have to pay into the plan for 20 years.

'U.S. Dangerously Near Democracy'

By DAVID S. BRODER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Dr. Lloyd W. Bailey, the "faithless elector" from North Carolina, told a fascinated group of senators here that the United States is "dangerously close" to becoming a democracy and that abolition of the electoral college might doom the republican form of government.

Bailey, a Rocky Mount ophthamologist, made no apology for having voted for George Wallace even though he was chosen as a Nixon elector.

His defection—which survived a legal challenge in Congress earlier this month — has been cited by advocates of electoral reform as a prime example of the dangers of the existing system.

But the conservative doctor argued forcefully that the electoral college "is much more vital" today than ever and urged Congress to encourage electors to be "absolutely free" in their choice of a president.

"Then," he told the constitutional amendments subcommittee considering alternatives to the electoral college, "We'll have elections which are carried out by informed people . . . who are patriotic and take the time to go into things."

SHARES OPINION

Two of the three subcommittee members — Sens. Strom Thurmond (R—S.C.) and Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D—N.C.) told Bailey they shared his opposition to the proposal for direct presidential elections sponsored by subcommittee chairman Birch Bayh (D—Ind.).

Thurmond went further. He said he thought the proposal to free all presidential electors from obligation to support party nominees "is not a bad system. It would take the presidency out of politics."

On the second day of its hearings on various reform proposals, the subcommittee also heard Theodore C. Sorensen, former counsel to President Kennedy, advocate the direct-election plan and testify that the arguments Kennedy made in defeating a proposed 1956 change in the electoral college were no longer relevant to the political scene.

LIVELY DEBATE

But the focus of attention was on Bailey, the avowed John Birch Society member whose defection was the subject of a lively congressional debate when the electoral votes were counted Jan. 6. The Senate and House, in separate votes, upheld his right to be recorded for Wallace.

The slender physican told Bayh that "if the electoral college is abolished or emascualted, we will be transformed by the same stroke of the pen into a political democracy.

Our founding fathers went to great lengths to keep us from having a democracy because they knew that no democracy in history has survived. Yet, we are dangerously close to becoming one today on the national level."

Baily drew his definition of democracy from a 128 United States army training manual which he said called it a "government of the masses . . . (which) results in mobocracy and (whose) attitude toward property is Communistic."

Bayh observed that this did not sound like the usual definition of the world.

PUBLIC MISINFORMED

In arguing for complete freedom for presidential electors, Bailey said that most ordinary voters are "intentionally misinformed" by the press. He said that in his own case, the major news services and television networks had refused to carry his explanation for switching his vote from Mr. Nixon to Wallace.

"You feel there is some kind of national conspiracy, a gross cabal to distort the news?" Bayh ashed him.

"Well, it woul dappear so," Bailey said. "I cannot prove this, but the evidence is pretty clear to me."

Lakehead Merger Not Smooth

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The amalgamation of Port Arthur and Fort William may not be as smooth as some officials had hoped.

Darcy McKeough, Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister, annouced Monday that the two cities, with the townships of McIntyre and Neebing, will be dissolved Jan. 1, 1970, to form a new and as yet unnamed city.

But a protest letter was immediately fired off to Premier Robarts and all members of the legislature from a group calling itself the Fort William Taxpayers' Association.

The group, numbering about 300, said Fort William city council had no authority to proceed with the amalgamation after residents rejected the union in two plebiscites.

The letter, signed by President Arthur G. Fish, said: "The only way to rectify this undemocratic situation is to have the people decide the issue for themselves by a vote".

Mr. McKeough said the Lakehead will be incorporated as a city Aug. 1, 1969, to enable the "smooth operation of local government on the changeover date of Jan. 1".

Raids Protested

HONG KONG (AP)—North Vietnam's foreign ministry charged today that six United States B-52 bombers staged raids last week 30 miles north of the so-called demilitarized zone, "doing extensive damage to civilian areas and killing and wounding civilians." There was no comment from American authorities in Saigon.

MINISTER DEFENDS STRIP MINING

A cabinet minister Tuesday night reinforced an opening counter attack by the Social Credit backbench against critics of unregulated strip mining.

Minister without portfolio Mrs. Patricia Jordan said NDP MLAs "got wind that we were planning to bring in (control) legislation so they hippity-hopped onto the bandwagon."

She said they didn't act in a sincere interest for the welfare of the miners or the province, "but with a desperate hope of playing political games and making political gain for themselves."

Her attack supported the Friday speech by George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney) who berated conservationists for attempting to block the Kiser Coal strip-mining operation in the Kootenay which he characterized as the "best deal" B.C. had ever seen.

"What concerns me is your lack of concern for the miners," she snapped at the opposition.

"With surface mining, the miner, the one person with whom we should be vitally concerned in this debate, will have a freedom and safety never known in underground mining.

"He may enjoy the sun, the snow on his face and he may breathe fresh air while he works.

"And his family need not fear every phone call and every telegram.

"We all know the underground miner traditionally digs his own grave," Mrs. Jordan said.

"As he claws his way through the bowels of the earth he runs the risk of drowning by floods, suffocating from gases and being crushed by inevitable cave-ins. . . ."

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) broke in:

"But they don't get killed by a slide on a highway."

(He was referring to the massive slide of overburden from Kaiser's mountainside dump which swept down over the area's main highway late last year crushing to death a couple in a trapped car.)

Mrs. Jordan said Mr. Nimsick will never be re-elected in the area and NDP members have proved by their criticism they know nothing about strip mining and nothing about economics.

"Each time you open your mouths you prove you would confine those workers to economic uncertainty, danger and a short life and deny the beautiful city of Fernie an opportunity to upgrade its economy, enhance its beauty and enjoy the progress and the benefits of this great province."

Mrs. Jordan said despite a barrage of press criticism against Kaiser, 15 reporters and conservationists had returned from an expense-paid tour of the company's California operations "with the conviction that Kaiser is a good and concerned corporate citizen."

Mrs. Jordan said Howard Paish of the B.C. Wildlife Addociation took the tour and returned to say "Kaiser is the cleanest industrial plant he has ever visited and noted that Kaiser's attitudes are 20 to 30 years ahead of the time with regard to conservation."

She said one of the company's executives is the president of a conservation association.

"Kaiser, aware that coal dust during transport might cause concern, have designed special high-sided cars for this purpose and have stated that they would, in case this is not as effective as hoped, spray the coal with a detergent liquid."

Cities Called Leaky Buckets

By DON VIPOND

The provincial government cannot be expected to keep pouring money into "the leaky buckets" of British Columbia municipalities if they don't bring their services up to modern standards, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Tuesday.

Speaking to a Kiwanis luncheon at the Empress, Mr. Campbell said grants to municipalities here average three times what Ontario communities get from their government.

"It's time to lay the cards on the table, publicize the disparity in municipal costs and consider the alternatives, he said.

He quoted these per capita cost figures:

Fire protection in Victoria costs $16.92; in Oak Bay $12.72; in Saanich $8.54 and in Esquimalt $4.88. (Including standby costs for Esquimalt would about double the figure, he suggested).

THREE QUESTIONS

Garbage collection during 1967 cost $6.81 in Victoria; $3.21 in Esquimalt; $5.18 in Oak Bay and $3.22 in Saanich.

Administration costs in Victoria are $19.11; in Esquimalt $9.67; in Oak Bay $8.09 and in Saanich $6.83.

The figures raise three questions, he said.

- If the communities were amalgamated would there be a saving in unit cost?
- Is there any significant reason for the differences and if so, what?
- Is the quality (of these services) in any way comparable and if one is better than the other, why?

There are three alternatives, said the municipal affairs minister.

First, the system of seperate municipalities and services can be left as is.

Or the municipalities could politically amalgamate—"which I don't think would work."

Or there could be an amalgamation of some of their functions.

He said critics of the latter course stretch the imagination when they say it would damage local autonomy.

Provincial grants provide 16.12 per cent of the Victoria municipal budget and money from the federal government adds another 1.19 per cent.

In contrast, Ontario grants provide 9.5 per cent of Hamilton's budget and federal money .5 per cent.

There are few municipalities in B.C. that aren't getting three times the grants Ontario gives its communities, he said.

But it can't go on "if the municipalities will not or cannot put their house in order. . . ."

LOOK AT ALTERNATIVES

If the province and its communities are to carry out new concepts, utilize new procedures, the facts must be considered and people must be given an opportunity to look at some of the alternatives.

The basis on which B.C. society has been governed needs a critical appraisal, public and internal and at all levels he, suggested.

In passing, he said he thought there should be about 25 instead of 83 school districts in the province.

Most of his remarks continued an attack he launched last week when he claimed municipal leaders were guilty of a "snow job" when they criticized the provincial government over increasing local education taxes.

Under the school financing formula approved by the provincial government at the last session, school boards are finally having to account publically and in detail for their spending, he said.

Over the years school trustees have been willing to let municipal councils take the rap from ratepayers for rising taxes to finance the school systems.

And councils have follishly gone along with it, he said.

Among head table guests at the luncheon were Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes and Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis. Esquimalt Mayor Ray bryant missed the speech because of a prior engagement and Victoria Mayor High Stephen is ill.

Governor, Wife Get Subpoenas For Shaw Trial

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison is reaching for former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who sat three feet in front of John F. Kennedy and was wounded in the same gunfire burst that killed the president, as a climactic witness in clinching his case of alleged conspiracy assassination in Dallas.

Garrison issued subpoenas Tuesday for both Connally and his wife, who accompanied her husband in Kennedy's limousine into Dallas' Dealey Plaza, where Kennedy was slain on Nov. 22, 1963.

The subpoenas were returnable Feb. 17, which could mean the state is seeking the Connallys as windup witnesses in the Clay L. Shaw trial.

Shaw is charged with conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie, a flying instructor, to murder Kennedy.

Vet Privileges Now Enough, MPs Warned

OTTAWA (CP) — The chief administrator of the Veterans' Land Act warned a Commons' committee Tuesday excessive privileges for veterans could turn public opinion against them.

R. W. Pawley, director-general of the VLA branch of the veterans' affairs department, told the veterans' affairs committee he has "a hard time justifying why veterans should be treated differently at this stage."

The committee was discussing a bill, later approved, amending the Veterans Land Act starting with a clause which would increase interest rates on loans of more than $6,000 made under the act.

The rate for small-holder loans under $6,000, currently 3½ per cent, would remain the same. Rates for loans between $6,000 and $18,000 would be set by the government instead of being fixed at five per cent.

In practice they would be tied to the rate charged under the Farm Credit Act — currently 7¾ per cent.

Pawley said the composite interest rate paid on a maximum loan by the small holder would jump to about 6½ per cent from 4½ per cent.

Pawley said a decrease in basing the rate on the Bank of Canada long-term bond rate instead of the farm credit rate would currently be one per cent.

He compared what would be the composite rate for maximum borrowers, 6½ per cent, to the current maximum rate under the National Housing Act, 9¾ per cent.

Pawley said "there should be a difference" between interest rate paid by veterans and those paid by others, "but there should also be a balance . . . you can go too far.

"Any more privileges than this bill offers would probably invite criticism from the thousands of poor people in this country," he said.

Security Urged for Elderly From Rising Cost of Living

OTTAWA (CP) — Old age security payments should be geared to the nation's rising standard of living, the Canadian Welfare Council said Tuesday in the first of two statements on its two-year study of social policies for Canada.

The organization which claims more than 1,000 leading Canadians among its direct membership and indirectly involves thousands of others, bases its statement and 38 recommendations on the idea that social rights are distinct from civil and political rights. The second statement, on social planning, will be published in the spring.

The council says that the Old Age Security Act provides insufficient protection against increases in the price of consumer goods and services as measured by the consumer price index.

In the last three years price changes had been substantially higher than the maximum amount of protection provided under the act. Continued price increases of this order would mean many beneficiaries would suffer a permanent and progressive loss in purchasing power.

Retired beneficiaries also had the disadvantage of a fixed income while real incomes for the rest of the country continued to rise.

WANTS ANNUAL INCOME

The council also wants some form of guaranteed annual income for all Canadians and a substantial boost in family and youth allowances programs, with these programs expanded to include student allowances.

It recommends that unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation be extended to cover all members of the labor force. Social security measures were required to protect all those whose income was interrupted by sickness or temporary disability including childbirth.

The council states that although all people do not necessarily need social welfare services, there is a growing recognition of the importance of preventive programs. Many individualized social welfare services fell into this category.

"The council therefore believes that, nationally and provincially in Canada, our objective should be to expand the basic network of social welfare services to make them available when needed to all people, whatever their circumstances."

Such a network was only possible if it were publicly provided or supported. Some services might rely, however, on fee payments or premiums for service.

MORE PEOPLE MARRY BUT LESS BABIES BORN

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's birth rate dropped in 1968 to the lowest ever recorded, but the outlook could be an upswing as the marriage rate picked up last year.

Births for each 1,000 of population declined to an estimated 17.7, the 11th consecutive annual decline from the peak rate of 28.2 births per 1,000 in 1957. The 1967 rate of 18.2 was the previous low.

The marriage rate, on the other hand, increased for the fifth straight year to 8.5 weddings for each 1,000 of population from a rate of 8.1 in 1967 and a low point of 6.9 in 1963.

The death rate was 7.4, the same as the previous year.

HOME GARDEN

Coldframe Space Needed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Beyond keeping a cheerful outlook and the optimistic gardener's belief in an early spring, there is little to be done about outdoor plants at this time. Indoors, or in a greenhouse with continuous heat, a beginning can be made.

Hilda

It must be realized, however, when starting outdoor plants in heat, it is necessary to have cold-frame space available to harden off the plants gradually before they can be put out.

Some hardy annual flowers and vegetables are fairly easy to start indoors. That is, seeds will germinate readily enough with house temperatures.

It is the care they receive afterwards which determines whether final results will exceed the effort of production.

Even greenhouse-raised seedlings may run into legginess unless bright daylight occurs during February and March.

Those germinated and grown in sunroom or porch will need especial care.

A few basic rules are: plants in a temperature below around 50 deg. F. need less water than at higher rates; plants in poor light also use less water; never feed seedlings until they seem well established in flats after pricking out. One exception is a light foliar (leaf) spray with weak solution seaweed fertilizer immediately after pricking out.

Soil in flats should not be saturated with moisture during early weeks. Only when in full growth, mid-April for instance, with root systems at peak of activity, will young plants be able to use a great quantity of water.

Strong overhead light during a 10-hour period from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. will be an advantage to young seedlings indoors.

Give these points some consideration before you sow the seed, and your efforts will bear flowers and fruit instead of a crop of disappointments.

YOUR HEALTH

Kindly Discipline Required

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Anyone who knows anything about children knows that from the first month of life they are individual and different. Some are good, pleasant, lovable, affectionate, and easily handled. They need little correction or admonition, and they respond quickly and well to what they are told. They fit happily and easily into the family circle, and they show no unpleasant or vicious traits. They begin to walk and talk on time, and they stop wetting the bed when they should. Later, they become good students at school, liked by their teachers and their schoolmates.

Alvarez

Other children give trouble from the start. They may show great determination to dominate and run the mother, and early they may learn some trick, such as that of breath-holding, that frightens her into subjection. Every so often a child will have a tantrum and perhaps strike the mother or bang his head on the floor. At times he will be rebellious, disobedient, belligerent, unamenable to discipline, sullen, highly destructive, or curel to any kittern or puppy that gets into his clutches. A little later he may be attacking his playmates, stealing, lying, and throwing stones through the school windows. He may be insolent or incorrigible, and later he may join the worst gang in the neighborhood.

In between these two groups of children are others who are acting badly, mainly because of the association with stupid parents or ones who are such poor disciplinarians that they are incapable of gaining the respect or liking of the child, or of giving him any sense of security. It would be an unusual child who could grow up happily or normally in the company of some persons. I can think of persons who are too rigid in their ways, or who show no affection, or who are too quick to punish and to punish severely.

There is a tendency in many quarters today to let children do as they please, never curbing them or demanding obedience or courtesy to others. To me this course has always seemed very foolish; it fails to help the child in learning to live easily and comfortably and happily in this world; it commonly tends to make a little pest of the child; it adds greatly to the parents' strain in living with him, and it adds much to the strain the child experiences in living with himself and others. I have no use for this new practice of letting children grow up as they please; I am sure it is wrong. As I look about I see that the most important lesson everyone, young and old, has to learn in this world, is how to get along comfortably and happily with his fellows. For many a person this is a hard thing to do, and for some the lesson seems unlearnable.

It is so difficult for many to outgrow the original tendency of the little child to grab all the toys in sight, including those of a guest, and then to slap the guest when he tries to get back a toy or two. It is hard for some to learn, also, to overcome the early childish reluctance to see the guest gets a little of the ice cream, or later in life, to see the guest win an occasional game of some kind. It is hard to learn to stick to the rules and not to insist that these be changed when one is losing.

Since a child must learn these lessons someday, if he is not eventually to be disliked and shunned as a pest and a boor, I think he ought to be helped to learn them early.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

There Were Wolves On Yonge Street

By BOB BOWMAN

Many people in Canada hear about Yonge Street in Toronto long before they see it. The Calgarians certainly put on a show there when they invaded Toronto for the Grey Cup game. So when people see it for the first time they are always puzzled to know why the name is spelt Yonge rather tha Young which is the way it sounds on radio or television.

Bowman

Originally the street was a military road to get troops and supplies between Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario.

It was built by John Graves Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, when the made York the capital. The section between Lake Ontario and Lake Simcoe was called Yonge Street after Sir George Yonge who was British Minister of War at that time.

Officially the road opened on January 29, 1796, but four years later residents of York (as Toronto was called then) were holding meetings to urge the government to "open up Yonge Street". When merchants and citizens agreed to share expenses, an appeal was made for six good axemen to do some more clearing. They were still working in January 1801 because it is on record that payments were made to some of the axemen who brought in wolf scalps. Today the wolves on Yonge Street only whistle.

While work on Yonge Street was going ahead refugees from the French Revolution were given land there and began building homes. They did not settle successfully because most of them had been well-off financially in France and were not accumstomed to manual labor. They abandoned their holdings on Yonge Street and returned to France as soon as possible although one prominent family went to live on the Niagara Peninsula. If those refugees had remained on Yonge Street, as had been intended, their property would be worth millions of dollars today.

Other events on January 29:

1820—King George III died. Bank of New Brunswick was founded.

1829—McGill University opened with Archbishop Mountain, President.

1847—Lord Elgin arrived at Montreal to become Governor of Canada.

1859—Parliament met at Toronto.

1885—Statue of George Etienne Cartier was unveiled at Ottawa.

1921—Canada and France signed trade convention.

1946—Famous fishing schooner "Bluenose" was wrecked off Haiti.

Loses Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Eugene Lee Sobel, 27, assistant professor of mathematics at University of British Columbia, Tuesday lost his appeal against conviction of possession of hashish. He had been convicted in Richmond magistrate's court and sentenced to a day in jail and fined $1,000.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Thomas MacKie, age 13, of Sarasota, Florida, for his question:

Is it true that hurricanes are necessary?

The destructive forces of nature are a challenge to the mind of man—and some day we shall realize that we are talented enough to face and adjust them one by one. To do so, we must work with and not against nature. Meteorologists who claim that hurricanes are necessary have solved only one part of the problem.

The Age of Science is remodeling our world and for the first time in history, young generations are beginning to grasp the astounding factor behind the scenes. The human mind is capable of remodeling the world of nature. This is an overwhelming thought because such powerful talents call for a lot of sensible, head-scratching decisions. It is true that hurricanes play a part in the balancing factors that nature uses to govern the global atmosphere. The devasting destruction to human life and property is not a necessary part of the basic operation. When it comes to human comfort and convenience, nature is blind and neutral.

This objective situation presents us with a challenge that calls for a lot of scientific study, plus a lot of thoughtful decision-making on a global scale. First we have to figure the dynamics that cause hurricanes and their role in the world weather picture—down to the last detail. Then we can start seeking for methods to modify their damage to us—without destroying their general usefulness. One method might be to guide these wild weathery monsters away from populated land areas and out across deserted oceans.

Mixes Oxygen

Nature's weather laws aim to keep the global atmosphere in a balanced condition, evenly mixed and mingled. The rotating earth with its areas of land and sea, and the sun with its uneven distribution of warmth are busy upsetting this balanced plan. They create patches and great masses of warm and cool, moist and dry air. When opposite air masses meet, tremendous natural forces stir them up and they clash in weathery warfare above our heads. A hurricane is such a conflict.

The airy conflict stirs the different ingredients around in a spiraling doughnut of raging winds. The steady prevailing winds steer the furious battle from its tropical hatching ground often into the temperate zones. When the hurricane subsides, opposing masses of warm and cooler air have been blended and a vast mass of tropical air carried to merge with the atmosphere above the temperate zones.

The howling hurricanes play a part in the mixing and merging of the global atmosphere. And this constant stirring up is necessary to life on earth. It carries damp air from above the seas and distributes its moisture on the thirsty land. It wafts life-giving oxygen from the forested regions clear around the world. These are the things to keep in mind when we plan to divert destructive hurricanes—when we learn enough to remodel the global weather to suit ourselves.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Deborah Newcombe, age 12, of Staten Island, New York, for her question:

How much energy does the sun have left?

The sun, of course, is a nuclear powerhouse somewhat like the continuous operation of a hydrogen bomb. Its fuel is hydrogen gas. Its operation is nuclear fusion, in which atoms of hydrogen are fused to form atoms of helium. And the nuclear operation is conducted on a stupendous scale at a fairly constant level. Astrophysicists estimate that the solar furnace is fed 564 million tons of hydrogen fuel each and every second. This produces an estimated 560 million tons of helium and the remaining four million tons are converted into various forms of solar energy.

At this rate, you would not expect the solar furnace to last very long. If the sun were made of coal, it would have burned to ashes in about 5,000 years. But its nuclear activity has been going at full blast for at least five billion years and scientists estimate that only about 50 per cent of its hydrogen fuel has been consumed. As it grows older, the nuclear activity is expected to change. Many experts think that the sun will ration its remaining fuel and keep blazing away for another 10 or 12 billion years.

Varied NATO Views Healthy Sign—Winch

Opposing views at cabinet level over Canada's continued participation in NATO are a healthy sign, not a sign of crumbling Liberal leadership.

This point of view was expounded here Tuesday night by Eric Winch, Liberal candidate in the Feb. 10 Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands by-election.

Mr. Winch told a Liberal banquet at the Empress Hotel he favors staying in the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance "at least for the time being, until we can complete the review now being conducted . . ."

When Postmaster-General Eric Kierans last week urged a fast pullout of NATO, some newspapers "chortled over this apparent clash" with stands taken by Prime Minister Trudeau and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

DEBATE URGED

Mr. Winch suggested it has been forgotten that the prime minister invited debate on the issue.

The prime minister wants "to involve the entire country in a debate in which sides must be taken and Canada's entire role as a military force can be reviewed.

"The views are contrary, but they will guarantee one thing—involvement . . . and from our involvement will come a solution."

Mr. Winch said the same public involvement is necessary in solving the matters of new laws governing homosexuality and abortion.

NEWSPAPERS WRONG

"Some newspapers have already reported that we have a division in Liberal ranks on both issues.

"If by division they mean we are about to shatter as a party, the newspapers are wrong.

"If by division they mean we have men in our ranks who are unafraid to take a stand on controversial issues, and to voice their opinions, they are right."

He said his party is not afraid to argue, to fight, to decide . . . and accept the majority decision.

3-Year Term For Botched Shop Holdup

A 20-year-old Sidney youth was sentenced Tuesday to three years in the penitentiary after pleading guilty to attempted armed robbery.

Clarence Irwin Savinac appeared before Magistrate H. S. Noakes in Sidney magistrate's court.

He was charged with the attempted hold-up of Hilltop Grocery, East Saanich Road, last Nov. 14.

James Harold Bossert, 18, of Sidney, was sentenced last week to six months when he pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Sidney RCMP said Savinac entered the store with a stocking over his face and pointed a toy pistol cigarette lighter at the woman proprietor who chased him from the store with a pop bottle.

Bossert was outside the store in a car, police said. No money was taken.

Police said Savinac had a previous record for breaking and entering and theft.

Second Look Promised Breakwater

CHEMAINUS — Public Works Minister Arthur Laing has promised to take a second look at a proposal to build a $1,000,000 breakwater on Chemainus harbor.

The plan was rejected earlier because the federal government considered it was wanted mainly for pleasure craft.

But Mr. Laing has written to the Chamber of Commerce taking note of the contention the breakwater would provide protection for commercial and industrial endeavors.

He said the breakwater could be built under this department's marina policy whereby the government splits the costs with a private concern.

CAMPAIGNING

Mrs. Betty Deacon, past president of the Chamber, said she is still collecting letters from industry, stevedoring interests and the harbormaster to emphasize the importance of the breakwater.

MLA Robert Strachan and Liberal candidate Eric Winch have also entered the debate over the advisability of building the rock and floating structure.

Mr. Winch said he has written the minister contending the economy of the community centres around the sawmill of MacMillan Bloedel which recently extended its present dock and foreshore for lumber assembly.

He emphasized that the company complains that huge barges waiting for lumber to be unloaded are subject to heavy weathering. Mr. Winch also said he would speak to Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

NURSERYMEN FEAR HEAVY STOCK LOSS

COBBLE HILL — Considerable stock loss is forecast by nurserymen in the Cowichan Valley because of the cold weather and heavy snowfall.

But it may take until June before an accurate assessment can be determined.

"There'll be quite a bit of loss, no doubt about it," Dennis Killen, of Killen and Sons Nurseries, said Tuesday. "But it will be hard to tell until the snow goes and even then it will mean a wait until summer to get the full picture."

Mr. Killen has already had one greenhouse collapse. He declined to place a figure on how much he expected to lose on frost-killed ornamental shrubs and other outside stock, but "it could be considerable."

He said private gardens would be even worse off than commercial nurseries because most persons haven't the experience of how to combat the extreme cold's effect on plants.

Gerry Hibers of Dogwood Gardens considers the snow may have been a blessing in disguise.

"The snow came almost at the same time as the frost so the frost didn't get a chance to penetrate too far. Luckily the ground was quite soft and now the snow is acting like a blanket and keeping things warm," he said.

Mr. Hibers said a dangerous threat to bulbs in the ground could result from a quick thaw and then a further deep freeze.

He estimated loss of "several hundred dollars" worth of Japanese azaleas which froze in the ground.

He also said two eucalyptus trees were victims of the weather. One had blown over and was under a pile of snow while another had frozen.

"It is in the area of experimental plants and shrubs that most of the losses will come," he said.

A spokesman at Koksilah Forest nursery said no adverse affects were expected there since trees are of natural varieties of Douglas fir and Western red cedar and had been planted early enough to be past their susceptible stage when the cold weather came.

$2M Sooke School Vote Approved for March 29

The department of education has approved a $1,998,665 building referendum for the Sooke school district, trustees were told at a meeting Tuesday night.

The school board will seek approval from ratepayers in a vote March 29.

The referendum is to provide classrooms, equipment and sites needed to meet an anticipated 36 per cent enrolment increase over the next three years. There are 4,959 pupils in the district's schools now.

FOUR NEW SITES

The referendum if approved will provide money for four new school sites and three new schools in addition to numerous classroom additions.

In other business, trustees decided they did not favor amalgamation among school districts. Their comments had been invited in a survey being undertaken by the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

Among reasons cited for the stand-pat stand:

- The Sooke school district is as advanced as others locally and ahead in some areas.
- The geography of the widespread district — it reaches from Colwood and Langford west to Port Renfrew — creates the possibility outlying areas would be neglected.
- Trustees felt there would be a lack of Sooke district representation if it was part of a large capital region school district.

The board also decided to advise principals dress regulations could be relaxed for the duration of the cold weather — thus permitting slacks for girls, dress which is customarily prohibited.

Fishermen 'Serfdom' Protested by Douglas

LADYSMITH — Commercial fishermen are working under a system of 19th century serfdom, New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas said here Tuesday.

Attacking the federal government's fisheries policy, he said most fishermen won't be able to break lose from the system until the laws are drastically changed.

He told a meeting of campaign workers:

"There is a dire need for a government-operated finance plan, independent of the large companies, that will allow fishermen to obtain low-interest loans to purchase boats and gear.

"The present company-financing is forcing the independent fisherman to owe his soul and business to the large companies, just as the serfs of old were in economic bondage to their master."

★ ★ ★

Mr. Douglas is the NDP candidate in the Feb. 10 by-election in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

He said the present form of licence limitation in unacceptable to the vast majority of fishermen.

"The main objection is that it could lead to control of the fleet by the large fishing companies, leading to a virtual monopoly situation with a low return to the small fisherman.

"We urgently need a larger exclusive fishing area for Canadians.

"What is needed is to enforce the 12-mile limit on a headland to headland basis, with Hecate Strait to be included in an exclusive Canadian fishing zone," said Mr. Douglas.

"While the Liberal candidate has been making pious noises about changing some of the unfair restrictions on the independent fisherman he knows full well the policy of the government is to continue to cater to the large fishing companies as it has in the past."

MOTEL HIT BY FIRE NEAR DUNCAN

DUNCAN — Fire Tuesday night extensively damaged four units of the Thunderbird Motel just north of here on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Only one family was at home at the time of the blaze and there were no injuries.

Three fire-fighting units from Duncan and one from North Cowichan attended and prevented the fire from spreading to 14 other units.

A fire marshal's investigation is to begin today. No estimate of damage was available. The motel was built in 1955.

Man Found Dead After Shovelling

DUNCAN — George Charles Poirier, 58, of Old Koksilah Road, was found dead outside his home Tuesday night after shovelling snow from his roof.

Police said a coroner's inquiry has been ordered but no date has been set.

Driver Injured

DUNCAN—Murray Daniel Carlin of Old Koksilah Road is in satisfactory condition in hospital today suffering head cuts following an accident on Cowichan Bay Road Tuesday night.

RCMP said a car driven by Carlin collided with a parked vehicle.

'Stores Selling Sniffing Kits'

An opposition MLA Tuesday charged the government is using the legislature for irrelevant breast-beating over drug abuse while children are sold glue-sniffing kits by corner grocery stores on the lower mainland.

"Surely there is something we can do about this," said Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey).

"I can take you to corner grocery stores where proprietors will sell two tubes of glue, and two brown paper bags, to youngsters," he said during the throne speech debate.

'JOKE' SHOW ORDER

He said there are proprietors "who joke when they order their supplies from the wholesaler and who knowingly sell glue to young kids who come in to buy a tube for one of their friends who is out of his mind around the corner."

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell demanded to know why Mr. Hall hadn't reported it to the attorney-general's department.

"I'm doing that now," Mr. Hall replied.

He said he had just obtained figures from a small wholesale firm which supplied glues as well as numerous items exclusively to small grocery stores in the lower mainland.

The firm reported that its sales of glue to the grocery stores jumped 100 per cent from 36 dozen in 1967 to 72 dozen tubes last year.

It also reported an "incredible" increase in sales of plastic glue since September and a 50 per cent increase in sales of two-ounce bottles of acetone during the past year.

Mr. Hall said while all this was going on, the legislature's time was wasted during the past two years discussing and voting on defective government bills banning LSD and marijuana which eventually were thrown out by the courts as ultra vires.

"On top of that, we are being faced with an increasing amount of opinion that says there is nothing wrong with the substances we banned," Mr. Hall said.

GLUE, ACETONE

"And on top of all, we have the situation where other substances—harmful substances—are being used by an ever-younger segment of our young people—glue and acetone," he added.

"I must ask the question: what relevance have we got to these problems? What is being done? Let's look again at this glue business . . ."

He said not only had the government's legislation accomplished nothing but the special legislative committee on drug abuse had been allowed to disband.

"Surely, 55 adult legislators can come up with a program of action to remedy this situation.

"I look forward to hearing from the attorney-general later in the session."

Viet Cong Announce Seven-Day Ceasefire

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong today announced a seven-day ceasefire for the Tet lunar new year beginning Feb. 15.

But the South Vietnamese government, caught by a major guerrilla offensive with many troops on leave during a similar truce last year, said it would delay a decision on its own ceasefire plans.

A government spokesman said that any ceasefire by government forces would certainly not run as long as a week.

Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky said in Paris Monday that government forces would stop shooting for a few days beginning Feb. 16.

The lunar new year, Vietnam's most celebrated holiday, falls this year on Feb. 17.

The anniversary of last year's offensive comes this Friday, and there has been speculation that the Viet Cong may attempt some action within the next few days to mark the occasion.

37 Stitches To Close Neck Wound

A Sidney woman, left within "three-eighths of an inch of her life" after being attacked by a German shepherd dog, is in satisfactory condition in Resthaven hospital.

Mrs. Ginger Norman, 10000 Third Street, required 37 stitches to her throat to close the wounds. She was taken to hospital late Saturday night but the incident was not reported to Sidney RCMP until Tuesday afternoon.

Police said today the dog, owned by Mrs. D. Pope of Tyron Road, apparently attacked the woman when she bent down to pet it while visiting the Pope residence.

The dog grabbed her by the arm and then went for her throat, "damn near killing her" police said.

The dog was turned over to the dog catcher early today, police said, and will be given to the SPCA, presumably to be destroyed.

Tenders Okayed On Hospital Job

The calling of tenders for construction of an addition to the Nanaimo General Hospital has been approved.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said the proposed addition will include provision for 89 extended hospital care beds, 25 rehabiliation beds and 24 psychiatric beds.

TEACHERS IN DISPUTE VETOED BY TRUSTEES

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP)—Top school trustees from across Western Canada voted Tuesday not to employ teachers from districts where they are in dispute with school boards.

The action, taken at the Western Conference of School Trustees Associations, is aimed immediately at Calgary, where teachers have voted in favor of a strike, but will apply to all districts.

Speakers said trustees must be more militant, to meet increasing militancy from teachers.

Big Winter Resort Disney's Last Idea

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A year-round resort 7,800 feet up in the High Sierra in Sequoia National Park received a go-ahead Monday from the U.S. forest service.

The approval means "realization of one of Walt Disney's last and greatest dreams," said Disney's brother, Roy O. Disney, board chairman of the sponsoring Walt Disney Productions.

Among conservation groups opposing the development was the Sierra Club, a nationwide organization.

Dr. Edgar Wayburn, president, said the Sierra Club has "under consideration the filing of legal action, but first we want to study what the Disney firm plans and what is involved."

Wayburn said the club feared Mineral King Valley would be ruined sine Disney plans "to put as many people into Mineral King on a given day as enter Yosemite Valley at any one time, and it is admitted Yosemite is overcrowded and Mineral King is one-sixth to one-third the size of Yosemite."

The resort will be known as Mineral King, after the valley. It will be built in a wilderness area 55 miles east of Visalia and about halfway between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

No automobiles will be allowed within 1½ miles.

An estimated 5,000 skiers will zip down the slopes on weekends by 1973. By 1978 weekend skiers are expected to number 8,500. Most visitors are expected for summers, however, and sports such as horseback riding, hiking, camping and fishing.

Unitarian Relief Boasts Best Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada sent its greatest relief shipment of food overseas in 1968, Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, the agency's executive director, said in her annual review released Tuesday.

The committee is a non-denominational, non-political relief and rehabilitation agency founded in 1945.

Important new donors this year included the federal government which donated $100,000-worth of dried, salted Atlantic codfish and the British Columbia government which gave a carload of skim milk for Korea and one of evaporated milk for India.

"Altogether in 1968," Dr. Hitschmanova said in her review, "we shipped over 2,500,000 pounds of food overseas — the largest quantity ever—with the highest percentage naturally destined for Korea, to come to the rescue of victims of two consecutive droughts in the province of Chollanamdo . . ."

The committee also shipped 341,935 pounds of clothing, layettes and quilts, the highest total since the agency's inception.

It successfully completed its drive for campaign funds amounting to an over-all objective of more than $1,295,000.

The committee's sources of revenue included private donations, bequests totalling $31,519, Christmas gift card proceeds of $17,164 and two Canadian government grants.

The grants, from the Canadian International Development Agency, were $11,200 for work in India and $2,538 for salaries of three new social workers in Korea.

The Times has conducted a drive for the Unitarian Committee Fund for several years. This year the campaign realized $11,913 in contributions.

More Showings Planned for Wildlife Films

The Audubon wildlife films have become so popular that matinee showings, in addition to evening presentations, have been planned for the balance of the film program.

The color film shows, sponsored by the Victoria Natural History Society, are held once a month in the Newcombe auditorium at the Provincial Museum.

An official of the society said attendance at the last two film-lecture programs was so great that people had to be turned away.

For this reason it was decided to hold matinee showings, starting at 2:30 p.m. The regular evening program will start the usual time—8 p.m.

Next programs are Feb. 7 and 8, Wings of the Wild, with Alvah W. Sanborn; March 7 and 8, This Earth, This Realm, This England, with C. P. Lyons; April 11 and 12, Wanderings of a Naturalist in the Australian Bush, with Harold J. Pollock.

ITU Calls Strike

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Composing room workers at The Star went on strike in a contract dispute Tuesday, preventing publication of the daily newspaper's two regular editions. The International Typographical Union set up picket lines.

Humor Prompts Finale?

By BERYL PROUDMAN

A spirit of academic humor must surely have prompted Hugh McLean to end his organ recital at St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday night with Cesar Franck's Choral No. 1 in E.

For his almost perfect interpretation of Franck at his most ludicrously romantic, Mr. McLean pulled out every quivering stop in a no-holds-barred, passionate rendition of this extensive and sometimes tedious work.

Those who enjoy luxuriating in romantic organ music must have been transported with delight by the heavenward-ascending rising cadences and trembling intensity of this extravagantly overstated pastiche.

If, however, this Franck Choral was offered as a serious finale to an interesting program very well played, then it lacked any reference to the other works or the restraint with which Mr. McLean played them.

SUSTAINED GROWL

In introducing the 16th century works of Bull and Cabezon, the organist explained that, as the composers were familiar with the larger organs of Europe, he, like them, would not limit himself to the narrower confines of the English organ of that era.

In Cabezon's Verses on "Hail Star of the Sea," the recitalist produced some startling lovely sounds from the instrument. The pleasantly biting discordance of the early music was emphasized in one section by a sustained growl which eventually became irritating.

Although he said a mere 10 fingers and two feet hardly equipped him to match agility with a mechanical organ, Mr. McLean achieved a satisfying performance of Mozart's Fantasia in F Minor for a Mechanical Organ.

CONTRASTS

By a careful choice of stops he brought out the contrast between the bright, almost impertinent reiteration of the middle section and the hautingly seductive chords of the final adagio passage.

Bach was represented by two works. An early, seldom-performed Prelude and Fugue in A Minor, although somewhat disjointed and not without rough spots in its construction, was interesting. The 4th Trio-Sonata (E Minor), after an initial reluctance to come alive, became more and more pleasing and brilliant as it progressed.

The wide experience of this well-known recitalist allowed him to demonstrate many of the beauties of this organ and to control its tendency to rampant exuberance. It has never sounded more attractive than under the expert hands of Hugh McLean.

More Planes Hijacked

MIAMI (AP) — Two U.S. airliners carrying 143 persons made landings in Havana under hijackers' commands Tuesday as January's toll of pirated commercial aircraft soared to 10—half of last year's record number.

An Eastern Airlines jet, hijacked Tuesday night with 105 passengers and a crew of eight aboard, returned to the United States early today.

Authorities in Miami said two prop-jet Electras would be sent to pick up the other passengers.

The 30 passengers and crew members aboard a National Airlines jet hijacked over the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday morning returned to Miami later in the day, leaving in Havana two men who said they were fugitives from a California prison.

DON'T PUT ELDERLY 'OUT-TO-PASTURE'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Opposition to putting the elderly out-to-pasture in out-of-the-way places is voiced by the Hellyer housing task force.

The seven-man team stressed that special care be taken in selection of sites for elderly citizens' housing projects.

It said this was vital "to ensure that these people are able to retain physical and social contact with the rest of their community."

The elderly must be made to feel they are still a very real part of the community.

11% Sales Tax Removal Urged

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The first major task force report of the Trudeau government calls for an attack on Canada's housing problems across a broad front.

Recommendations range from larger National Housing Act mortgages with lower down payments and more time to pay to elimination of the 11 per cent sales tax on residential building materials and a shift in the major burden of education costs from the property owner to the general provincial taxpayer.

In all 47 reforms are recommended that would shake up present financial, technical and legal systems.

"Every Canadain should be entitled to clean, warm shelter as a matter of basic human right," the housing inquiry headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer declares in a report tabled in the commons.

The report also takes aim at land speculation with a recommendation that all profits from sale of land be treated as taxable income. It suggests as well a special tax be imposed when land is bought and sold without improvement.

Building of an entirely new city is proposed as a pilot project for new policies and methods.

NHA Rate Should Be Set Free

The NHA interest rate, says the report, should be set free to find its own level in the market. The task force rejects subsidizing mortgage interest rates for low-income buyers as a costly measure that would inevitably add to the tax burden on the income group it was meant to help.

The task force proposed establishment of a new federal department of housing and urban affairs and of a central mortgage bank to provide additional liquidity for existing lending operations.

Establishment of the task force was announced July 17 and the first public hearing was held in Ottawa Sept. 15. The task force covered 80,000 miles investigating the country's present housing situation and gathering opinion from experts and the public.

Calling for a substantial increase in the present ceiling, $18,000, on NHA mortgages, the report suggests "that the $30,000 range would appear appropriate in present circumstances."

Forty years is mentioned as a possibility to replace the present 25-year payment period. The report's firm recommendation is simply that the term "be lenghthened to the extent that might be of assistance to prospective borrowers."

Also proposed is a progressive reduction in down payment requirements "to the point where middle and lower-income groups can obtain modest housing under a lease-purchase system without initial equity participation."

The task force paints a vivid picture of city slums where poverty "is abundantly visible in the decripit structures which form its housing, the cracked pavement of the streets which are its recreation area, and the rodents which are its wild life."

Income Subsidies for Poor

It proposes a new approach to the housing problems of the poor, including incme subsidies to enable poor families to find their own housing in the market, a more selective approach to urban rehewal, including renovation of sound existing housing rather than the creation of vast subsidized-housing projects bearing a social stigma, and vigorous enforcement by municipalities of bylaws protecting mimmum housing standards.

No large new public housing projects should be undertaken, the report recommends, until the federal government has initiated "a thorough research program into the economic, social and psychological issues of public housing."

Pilot housing projects for Indian, Eskimo and Metis peoples should be given a fair trial and vigorously pursued if successful the report says.

The needs of the old also receive special mention. Special care is called for to ensure that housing projects for the old should be located where their occupants will be able to keep in touch with their community.

Municipalities Should Act

The report calls on municipalities to move boldly into buying and developing of land for housing.

They should "acquire, service and sell all or a substantial portion of the land required for urban growth within their boundaries," it says.

A related proposal calls on the federal government to make direct loans to municipalities or regional governments to help assmble and service land.

To relieve the individual property owner of the heavy burden of school taxes the report says at least 75 to 80 per cent of education costs should be paid by the provincial treasuries from general tax revenues.

Universal adoption of a national building code and streamlining of housing regulations are recommended as a means of cutting down red tape that hampers building programs and makes them more costly.

Speculators Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal housing inquiry struck hard at land speculators in its report Wednesday. It recommended that all profits from land sale be treated as taxable income and that a substantial part of land required for development be assembled by municipal governments.

The report spoke of massive profits by speculators and said the present system is heavily over-weighted in their favor.

Besides urging that all land-sale profits be treated as taxable income, it urged that consideration be given to a special tax where ownership is transferred without improvements.

And within recognized limits of market demand, it said, municipalities should ensure that property assessment procedures encourage rather than discourage use of land to its maximum planning potential.

Citing Saskatoon as a good example, it sketched a system under which municipalities or regional government would cut out speculators by buying up land, servicing it as needed and re-selling it to builders.

SUGGESTS DIRECT LOANS

The federal government should make direct loans to municipalities to assist this assembly procedure, it said.

The report, prepared by a committee headed by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, said the right to own and dispose of property and take a reasonable gain from labors is an integral part of the Canadian tradition.

"But the task force seriously questions whether such rights can be stretched to encompass situations where the owners of the land reap gigantic financial benefit not from improving or working it, but merely by allowing it to lie fallow or in admitted under-use while the efforts of the community around it make such land an ever-increasingly valuable asset."

Protestant Extremists Jailed

BELFAST (AP) — Police seized two leading Protestant extremists and took them to jail today while Prime Minister Terence O'Neill prepared to face a vote of confidence.

Police arrested Rev. Ian Paisley in a hospital lobby and took him to begin a three-month sentence on charges of unlawful assembly. Paisley protested that the police broke an agreement to give him time to consider an appeal.

A number of Paisley's Free Presbyterian churchmen followed their leader to the prison gate. He rolled down a window of the police car and called out: "Just say that the police broke their word, that is all."

Paisley went to hospital for treatment of a hand cut Tuesday when he scuffled with police who tried to arrest him at his home.

Paisley's chief aide, Maj. Ronald Bunting, was arrested at dawn and taken to jail in his pyjamas after police broke down his front door. The police said Bunting wouldn't let them in.

Bunting had also received a three-month sentence Monday on charges resulting from a demonstration last November.

BOTH CAN APPEAL

Both men can get out on bail if they decide within 14 days to appeal their sentences.

The government meanwhile proposed tougher laws to quell religious and political disorders as the prime minister tried to rally support for the confidence vote.

Bunting later was brought to court at Bangor, County Down, and sentenced to a further month in jail on charges of assaulting police and obstructing police while resisting arrest.

Iraq Accuses Israel Of Massing Troops

(From AP-Reuters)

Iraq accused Israel of massing its troops to attack the 20,000-strong Iraqi force stationed in Jordan while in Iraq itself a new mass spy trial was reported under way.

Baghdad radio, in a broadcast monitored in the Lebanese capital of Beirut, said the new trial began Tuesday behind closed doors. It said the defendants were accused of working for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The broadcast did not mention the number of defendants, but London sources said earlier that 35 persons, 13 of them Jews, would be tried by Iraq's revolutionary court on charges of spying and sabotage.

In Baghdad, Information Minister Abdullah Salloum al-Samarri told a news conference that Israeli forces were preparing to attack Iraq's forces in Jordan in reprisal for the public hanging of 14 persons including nine Jews convicted of spying for Israel.

The Israelis were enraged by the executions, and their government denied the victims had been spying for Israel.

PROVOKE PROTESTS

The executions also provoked varying degrees of condemnation in several capitals.

"This is a purely internal affair with no room for intervention by any other country," Samarri said in the trials.

Iraq already has announced its forces are in a state of military readiness for any Israeli reprisal.

Pope Paul said today the executions caused dismay and abhorrence in the world. The fact that nine of the victims were Jews aroused the suspicion that racial motives were involved which should not exist among civilized nations, he told pilgrims at his weekly general audience at the Vatican.

But the pontiff said he hoped Israel would not take revenge for the executions.

The Arab world outside Iraq itself has been silent.

In Canada, the government said it was seriously concerned at the execution of the 14 men.

RETARD SETTLEMENT

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in Ottawa that the executions were the kind of events which retarded and diminished the prospects of a lasting settlement in the Middle East.

Sharp said he had received messages from many Canadians over "these disturbing events—events which most surely outrage public opinion everywhere."

The U.S. state department announced it has urged Israel not to retaliate. Diplomats in Washington believe a reprisal raid coming so soon after Israel's Dec. 28 commando attack on Beirut International Airport might start another full-scale war.

State department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference in Washington: "The position every American administration has taken regarding the cycle of provocations and reprisals has been a consistent one. It should be avoided."

Iraq hanged the 14 alleged spies Monday despite clemency appeals from Pope Paul, UN Secretary-General U Thant, Britain and the United States.

HOWL FOR MORE

Travellers arriving in Beirut from Iraq said mobs in Baghdad howled for more executions as the hanged men dangled from gallows in the city's central square.

Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol blamed the world for

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters) — About 10,000 Iraqis demonstrated in front of the British Embassy in Baghdad today, then dispersed without causing any damage, Baghdad radio reported.

The radio said the deomonstrators shouted slogans condemning British interference in the domestic affairs of other states and denouncing a "mob attack" on the Iraqi Embassy in London Tuesday night.

Members of trade unions and the National Union of Students and the Teachers' Association took part in the two-hour protest, the radio said.

German Rebellion Against N-Treaty

BONN (WP) —The parliamentary leader of West Germany's biggest party said flatly Tuesday he would not support the signing of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty as long as the Soviet Union stuck to its threat of intervening in Germany.

Mounting signs of rebellion here against the treaty came as two more North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, Italy and Turkey, signed the treaty in Washington, leaving only West Germany, Portugal, France and the U.S. as non-signatories within NATO.

The position toward the treaty, which represents a hardening trend inside the Christian Democratic Party, was contained in a speech in Muenster by majority leader Rainer Barzel.

NDPer ASKS PROBE ON INSURANCE PROFITS

Wootton Report 'Too Hot to Pigeonhole'

By JOHN SLINGER

William Hartley (NDP — Yale Lillooet) said Tuesday the Wootton report on car insurance charges that insurance companies have been fixing prices on a no-competition basis in B.C. for nearly 100 years.

"What greater condemnation could you have of an industry than that?" he asked MLAs, to preface his list of reasons why the province should adopt "publicly-owned, publicly-operated car insurance."

An insurance agent in Meritt, Mr. Hartley charged the government used a form of public insurance for its own 5,723 vehicles and quoted the highways department 1967-1968 report as saying cost for full liability insurance on these vehicles was only just more than $25 a year.

"Yet this government refused to take action to give the same cheap coverage to private citizens.

"When the Socreds go down they'll be known as the slickest con artists in the history of this province!"

His cry brought Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan to his feet demanding the statement be withdrawn because of a standing rule in the house against "that sort of language."

The Speaker ordered it withdrawn and Mr. Kiernan, almost choked with anger, said "I refuse to take that from this member or any other person in the country."

Earlier, Mr. Hartley charged that the way the government benches had sat silent on the Wootton recommendations "indicates that you have been well paid."

WITHDREW CHARGE

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, on a point of order, said the session had just begun, car insurance was mentioned in the throne speech and demanded the "flagrant accusation" withdrawn.

After being asked twice by the Speaker, Mr. Hartley withdrew it.

Mr. Bennett indicated in the throne speech that, with the house's permission, he will send the Wootton report to committee this session.

Mr. Hartley told the house that if the government was willing to set a full-scale royal

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JAN. 29, 1969 —PAGE 17

Arthur Mayse

On a flat day early last December, Oak Bay Marina's Mv Lakewood eased her 61-foot length away from her berth. After some necessary backing and filling, she hooked up to one of the strangest tows this port has seen . . . or rather failed to see, since most of it was submerged.

Operation Sea Change was under way.

Moving gently astern of the Lakewood were two wire-mesh seal pens from the Undersea Gardens complex. Instead of seals, they held live ling cod and rockfish, wolf eels, flounders, greenlings, dogfish, skates, sablefish, starfish, sea anenomes and bewildered octopi.

With the tourist attraction's many-windowed viewing hull scheduled for enlargement and a new Inner Harbor berth, its marine livestock was being shifted to temporary moorings elsewhere.

Manager Mrs. Evelyn D. Young of Victoria Undersea Garden — others now draw visitors at Seattle, Oregon's Newport, and Santa Barbara—asks me not to reveal the spot. But there, fed by skin diver, the fish are flourishing.

Casualties during the unique transfer?

"One dogfish," says Mrs. Young, "which we'll certainly have no trouble replacing. And a skate that hadn't been in good health before the move."

Victoria Good Citizen Freeman 'Skipper' King, winter-clad in duffle coat and rubber boots, dropped in this morning with news of two well-loved wild parks. Francis is one, the other bears Freeman King's name, and the joined pair comprise a 225-acre wildlife sanctuary in Prospect Lake area.

Four deer, one of them a large buck, have moved in. They are browsing on willow twigs and cedar fronds, and are obviously doing not too badly.

The same for the park woodpeckers, Skipper reports. The flickers are apparently finding nourishment in ants from hills cleared of snow by whipping winds, and the larger pileated species continues to probe snag or standing timber for woodborers.

But the small birds are harder hit, and so far on his chilly patrols, Skipper has scattered about 150 pounds of poultry scratch to keep them from starving.

"And apples," he told me. "There's nothing the robins and varied thrushes like better. I've gone through two boxes already."

At this point, I asked the tough and cheerful naturalist how he himself is making out.

"Fine!" he said, tugging his duck-billed cap into place. "Had to shovel through a drift on my driveway, but with chains for the back roads I have no trouble getting around."

At 78, may we be so hardy!

Two weeks ago today, I brought the case of a child and a family in need of help to your attention. The response was instant and vigorous, as witness a Florenda Joy Fund that has rocketed to over $5,000.

With thanks, and with the reminder that any fund surplus will go toward heart-saving apparatus badly needed in our city, here are more names of donors:

'Mrs. R.', 'A Friend,' Mrs. Jack Watson, F. A. Mobler (Shawnigan Lake), J. Wilson, 'Adult Education Student,' Charles L. Clarke (via CKDA), Thunderbird Drum Corps, Margaret J. Brown, B. L. McLeod, 'J.J.M', Richard McDonald, Jr., Timothy David Roark, T. J. Lopthien, J. E. Jones, David Richardson (Eastsound, Wash.).

Vicky Jones and Valerie Parkes—13-year-olds who ask me to thank the Garden City area neighbor from whom they collected $8—Mrs. Barbara Hastings (Ganges), Bill and Trudi Barclay, "To Help a Little Girl', Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Gunderson on behalf of Kyle, Kevin and Amy.

POSITIVELY N.B.I.S.

THINK AHEAD . . . AND SMILE!

Despite the wintry blizzards, the provincial cabinet looked ahead to the delights of summer sunshine today.

It decreed that Daylight Saving Time will start at 2 a.m. April 27 and end Oct. 26 this year.

The two or three-inch snowfall which hit Victoria today is expected to taper into flurries tonight.

Clear cold weather will follow —and there's "NO BREAK IN SIGHT," the weathermen say.

Temperatures dropped to 13 in the city overnight and to five degrees at the airport. The snow began to fall at about 3:30 a.m., whipped by brisk north breezes.

High for today was expected to be 25 degrees but tonight's low could be 12.

TRAFFIC SNARL

The newest snowfall brought a flurry of fender-bending to city streets. At one point today about 30 cars were involved in a massive tie-up at Foul Bay and Lansdowne.

The continuing cold was blamed for a general shortage of pressed sawdust logs. Every dealer in town appeared to be sold out Tuesday afternoon.

Log producer, B.C. Forest Products Ltd. was limiting sales this morning to 30 per customer and there were long line-ups of purchasers.

Many drivers have found they can improve their traction in new snow by carrying heavy weights in their trunks. But one unidentified Cadboro Bay resident warns against the system he tried.

He put a 100-pound sack of potatoes in his trunk. They froze, then thawed and left him with a trunkfull of instant mashed spuds.

Rights' Group Meets Tonight On Next Move

The Victoria branch executive of the B.C. Civil Liberties Association is meeting tonight to decide what action will be taken amid charges and denials that Saanich police harassed three teen-agers last week.

"This is not a dead issue," said Mrs. C. S. Burchill, honorary secretary of the association.

"All three teen-agers maintain what they swore in affidavits was correct."

A report issued by the Saanich police commission late Monday said it "can find no foundation for any of the allegations" and that there was "nothing to criticize in the behavior of the police concerned."

It is a fact, however, that the three teen-agers left the police station in the early hours of a below-freezing morning after being questioned about an incident earlier in Cadboro Bay.

SHOES CONFISCATED

The youths said their shoes were confiscated and they were turned out of the police station.

The police commission said the teen-agers were asked to take their boots off and did so. The boots were needed to check with footprints at a service station.

The commission said the youths were "not forced" to leave in their stocking feet.

"They were simply advised that they were free to go and they left of their own accord without asking for any assistance."

(Police earlier had tried to reach the parents. The mother of one boy said she could not afford taxi fare while the parents of the other two boys did not answer the phone).

COMMON SENSE'

A former Saanich prosecutor, meanwhile, criticized police for allowing the teen-agers to leave without shoes.

Kenneth Murphy said in his view police could not forcibly take shoes without making an arrest, unless the youths surrendered them in which case the police got them voluntarily.

However, since the police commission said the boots were voluntarily surrendered, "they should have made some arrangement for them to get other footwear. It's just a matter of common sense."

Crash Victim Still in Coma

Barbara Bonner, 21, of 3175 Norfolk, is still unconscious and in poor condition today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The daughter of former attorney-general Robert Bonner suffered head and pelvis injuries in a two-car crash early Sunday.

FROZEN HOSE being bent by fireman is testimony to bitter weather into which the Sparvier family fled. Fire ate out the roof. Bad-luck house was scene of a shooting some years ago, before present occupants arrived. Const. Harry Hoshal was seriously wounded while seeking out a suspect.

Oil Can Found in Car Detective Tells Trial

A five-gallon oil can was found in the car of a man alleged to have set fire to a house, it was stated in Victoria county court Tuesday.

Garth Dyke Drover, 31, was charged with setting fire to a house at 1304 Dunsterville on Nov. 16 last. The house, owned by Robin Adkin, had been moved to Dunsterville from another district and was empty at the time.

Detective Frank Briers of Saanich police said, after the fire, he found an overturned oil can in a car standing outside Drover's home at 3066 Carroll Street.

He said Drover had previously admitted the car was his.

Witness said a call reporting the fire came in at 12:45 a.m. on Nov. 16 and he was on the scene a few minutes later.

"The house was burning furiously," he testified. "Flames had broken through the roof and were shooting 25 to 30 feet in the air."

Detective Briers said he found fresh, unscored tire marks on the road in front of the burning house. He covered these with planks of wood so they could be examined later.

After Saanich fire department had extinguished the blaze, he went into the house and collected several samples of burned wood.

"They smelled of fuel oil," Detective Briers said.

Soon after 4 a.m., in company with Detective Leslie Ledson, he visited Drover's home at 3066 Carroll Street.

"As we entered the house, we noticed a strong smell of fuel oil," Detective Briers said. "The accused was lying fully dressed on a mattress in the front room. He got up and we noticed his clothing smelled of fuel oil."

Detective Briers told Drover that he had information that he (Drover) had threatened to burn Mr. Adkin's house down.

The accused became agitated and ordered the two detectives to leave his house. Outside they found the car and the overturned oil can inside. Oil had seeped through the floorboards of the car.

"It smelled like the oil in the burned house and in Drover's house," Detective Briers said.

He said he and Detective Ledson returned to Drover's house at about 2:45 a.m. on Nov. 18. They took Drover to the police station and charged him with arson. He said he had nothing to say until he had consulted a lawyer.

SAW CAR

Thomas Lakeland said he notified Saanich police of the outbreak of fire at 1304 Dunsterville. He lived nearby and had an unobstructed view of the house from his kitchen window.

He said he saw a car stop outside the house and, a few minutes later, heard the sound of breaking glass. Soon after, Mr. Lakeland testified, he saw a glow in the basement window and smoke rising from the roof. He telephoned Saanich police.

Answering crown counsel Alan Bigelow, Mr. Lakeland said he thought the car was light in color and of 1953 or 1954 vintage.

Three boys who live nearby—Christopher Page, 14, James Campbell, 14, and Gordon Drummond, 14—testified they saw a light-colored car parked in front of 1304 Dunsterville.

The hearing continued today.

'Old Boy' Just Ignores 26-Year Generation Gap

By ROBIN BURGESS
Uvic Correspondent

If there's a generation gap at the University of Victoria, Norm Wright, 46-year-old presidential candidate in the Alma Mater Society elections Friday, hasn't heard about it.

In a unique reversal, Mr. Wright, leading a slate of nine candidates called the United and Independent party (U. and I.), is running on a platform of rational liberalism. His main opponent, 26 years younger, is a staunch conservative.

FEAR BASED

"I don't accept radical conservatism—I think it is based on fear," Mr. Wright told a rally Tuesday.

"But I don't accept radical activism either because I think it is also based on fear."

He said criticism of students actively involved in bringing about academic reforms is not justified.

"No one thinks it odd if an old-age pensioner campaigns within the group to get benefits for old-age pensioners. It's considered perfectly legitimate."

The U. and I. candidate's main opponent in the presidential showdown is 20-year-old Drew Schroeder, who heads a nine-man slate, the United Student Movement, dedicated to moderate-conservative student government.

SWASTIKA

Comic relief was provided by a "bodyguard" wearing a swastika armband which stood beside Mr. Schroeder as he spoke.

The guard was apparently not part of Mr. Schroeder's campaign, but a dissenting student expressing his opinion of the USM candidate's platform.

Mr. Schroeder sounded a warning against a "turn toward the left" on Canadian campuses.

"We want to improve the image of the student in the academic community."

By getting the support of the community, students will be in better bargaining position with the provincial government, he said.

In a question and answer period all candidates were asked to list the amounts and sources of their campaign funds.

$360 IN COSTS

Mr. Schroeder, who has run the most active campaign, cited donations from the candidates and their parents. He said the total cost was about $360.

Mr. Wright estimated his costs at about $120.

Three other candidates are also running for AMS president.

Ray Kraft and Dan Gerwing are independents. A third "surprise" candidate is Lex Varmley of the Logical Positive Party. The LPP platform is based entirely on old slogans.

Veterans Open 50th Convention Friday Morning

British Columbia Command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada will hold its 50th annual convention in the Empress Hotel Friday and Saturday.

It will be opened Friday at 10:30 a.m. by Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson. With him on the platform will be Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria, minister without portfolio Grace McCarthy, and Jack Lundberg, Dominion president of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans.

A motion to support the transfer of Shaughnessy Military Hospital, Vancouver, to a civilian authority will be placed before the convention.

Family Dashes From Burning City Dwelling

. . . LET'S DO IT EFFICIENTLY

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria's community service agencies flew into action today to help the burned-out family of Henry Sparvier.

And once again, the need for a co-ordinating emergency aid bureau in Greater Victoria was underlined.

A Times news teams at 9 a.m. today visited the burned-out family of eight where they had been taken in by neighbors.

The Sparviers were sharing a ground-floor apartment already crowded by a family of vfie. Another family lives upstairs.

Mr. Sparvier is out of work and his family needs help. The first to offer it was the Salvation Army, which sent 13 blankets in the middle of the night in a police car.

This morning the family did not know whether more aid was forthcoming. Still shocked by their predicament, they had not even taken stock of their situation.

The Times advised the Red Cross of the situation and explained the mother required diapers for the five-month baby — and probably a great deal more if investigation were possible.

MUST APPLY

A spokesman at the Red Cross said blankets are made available to the Salvation Army. If more aid was required the family must apply

"We would have to hear from them."

The spokesman said it was possible baby clothing could be furnished but no drivers were available.

The Times phoned the Salvation Army and explained the circumstances. An official took the family's address and said police had been advised to tell the family if it needed clothing, members could pick it up at the Salvation Army stores.

When told that the family was still numbed by its losss, the Salvation Army spokesman agreed to send an investigator.

Contact was made with B.C. Protestant Orphange Home and an official there said he would investigate whether the institution could take the Sparvier family in until other arrangements were made.

Later, Community Welfare Council advised the Times it had made further arrangements with St. Vincent De Paul Society, a member agency of Community Chest.

The society was placing the family in a motel and would furnish beds and bedding and clothing as required. The motel would be a temporary arrangement until permanent quarters are found.

Five minutes later the Times was informed by the Salvation Army that one of its representatives and a man from the orphanage had just completed transfer of the family to the orphanage.

DUPLICATION

The community rescue had been accomplished—as usual with the newspaper and various independent and uncorrelated agencies each going about it in its own way . . . with a duplication of effort.

The main thing was, the family, 10 hours after the fire, was in receipt of generous care.

But within the various agencies there was serious consideration being given suggestions expressed to the Times by a fireman, anonymously:

Why can't we have one emergency bureau which could be contacted by police or firemen and could swing into action immediately?

It could call on the various agencies which offer aid as the aid is required. It should have an emergency budget to place the family in care immediately.

The way it is now, the community rallies for some cases, depending on the situation, while some others receive little aid. Sometimes agencies duplicate efforts and waste time.

Sometimes people in the community turn out with emergency aid—often baskets of clothing which don't fit.

Everyone wants to help—but let's do it efficiently.

6 Children, Wife Roused By Husband

A Victoria family of eight fled in the snow as fire destroyed their John Street home at 2:30 a.m. today.

Sheltering with neighbors are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sparvier, 572 John, and their six children, ranging from five months to eight years.

The blaze erupted in a cupboard from an overheated stove-pipe.

The stove it served had been loaded with wood and chips from a nearby mill as the family tried to maintain warmth in the non-insulated wood-frame house.

Awakened Family

Henry Sparvier, 36, and drawing unemployment insurance, said he was sitting on his bed having a cigarette before turning in when he saw the flames through a crack in the cupboard.

He roused the children and his wife.

"I tried a couple of buckets of water, but it didn't work" he said.

He said the children moved quickly out into the 14-degree weather and snow, some of them without waiting to put on their shoes.

"Darryl, he's two, was calm. He sat there and got dressed and said he wanted his coat."

While city firemen fought the blaze, which demolished the roof of the home, the family was taken in by Cyril Prescott and his family at 2519 Ludgate.

Need Diapers

Mrs. Sparvier said the Salvation Army sent some blankets but she needs diapers for the baby and some of the family need more clothing.

She did not think the family possessions were lost. She said firemen spread tarpaulins over everything. But gallons of water had probably soaked everything and smoke damage was expected.

Home Insured

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said only the fact Mr. Sparvier was awake saved a possible tragedy.

He said the home is owned by Rudolf Reicheneder, 1818 Belmont, and is insured.

The owner told firemen the wood heater was not in the house when he rented it to the family.

Damage totalled about $4,000, firemen reported.

Subdivision Turned Down

Saanich lands and planning committee agreed Tuesday to reject a request to subdivide five acres at 790 Haliburton, between Beaver Lake and Cordova Bay.

The application sought to split up the land into 10,000-square foot lots. At present there is a 1.6-acre minimum subdivision size.

The committee was told that how subdivision should proceed in this area is under review.

Ask The Times

Q. How are municipal police court magistrates appointed and what qualifications are required? Are RCMP personnel given preference?—R. E. G.

A. Appointments are made by the provincial Attorney-General's office. Legal training is an advantage but not mandatory. In many smaller, rural areas magistrates are not lawyers. A magistrate must be of good character, an upstanding citizen and intelligent. Retired RCMP personnel sometimes are appointed magistrates but there is no stringent rule regarding this.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.
